POETRY.

From the Baltimore Patriot.

ON THE COMPLETION OF THE BATTLE MONUMENT.

The thoughts that nerve the soldier's heart,
While grappling with the foe;
That to his arm the power impart,
To strike a double blow;
And those which patriot love inspires—
Which fire the soul of song—
My country now my aid requires—
"My country—right or wrong."

Nor these alone: He sees a wreath
Bedeck his living brow;
A chaplet, if he sleep in death,
Wove from the cypress bough.
The marble pile he sees arise;
His name's the theme of song;
And—"Victory or death," he cries—
"My country—right or wrong."

MEXICAN MINING COMPANIES.

The following is an extract of a private letter from Mexico. Its contents are of some interest; particularly in reference to the progress which is making in working the several mines belonging to the different Companies formed in this country:

English paper.

"MEXICO, July 9.

You will express surprise, perhaps, at my not sending you more political news, but it is only because there is none to send. The Congress, it is expected, will meet on the first of next month, and then, perhaps, we may find some gossip to send you. I find this city more agreeable as a residence than any part of South America I have been in.

"I have been naturally led, since I have been here, to make some comparison between this country and that other section of South, (or, I should say, Spanish) America, of which, as you are aware, I know the most—I mean Colombia; and I should say, that although, as regards their separation from Spain, it is as complete in the one country as in the other, yet, in point of national feeling, altogether, Colombia is more advanced than Mexico. Fourteen years of warfare, difficulty, and suffering, have developed and matured a national character in Colombia in a greater degree than has occurred here, precisely because the same causes have not prevailed to the same extent. However, causes of a different kind are at work in this country now, which, it is hoped, will tend every day towards its advancement in civilization. The principal of these, and the one which now engages most of the public attention, is, the working of the mines. You have little idea in England of the benefit which the mining districts of Mexico are already feeling from the putting their industry in motion. All the people are employed. There is a demand every where for horses, provisions, iron, paper, and every thing that the miners want for their operations. The three principal English Companies have apparently taken different courses of proceeding, each and all of which are the subject of conversation and criticism here. The Real del Monte Company, who have got the immense mines of Count Regla, go upon the plan of employing steam engines. Their engines are arrived on the coast I hear, and it is said they expect to get them conveyed to the mines, and to have them erected and be ready for work by next spring. The question that is propounded among the learned in these matters is, whether, after the engines have got to work and done their business by draining the mines, the same result could not have been obtained by the means of the country, and at less expense, and with less delay than by steam engines? The expense of conveying the steam engines, and repairing the roads for that purpose, is very great.

"The Anglo Mexican Company, which has its mines principally in Guanaxuato, has followed a different plan. They have adopted the Mexican system of Malacates, making some improvements in them, and by means of these they are draining the great mine of Valenciana at the rate of 10,000 tons of water per week. I was perfectly astonished to find the power of these things. Eight of them, I understand, are now established on the great shaft of Valenciana, and are at work night and day. Each malacate takes 12 horses, which are relieved every six hours. The expense must be very great, but the mine is yielding ore every week. Both this Company and the Real del Monte have had out a good many Cornish miners.

"The next great Company is the United Mexican. It seems to be the policy of this Company, as far as I can learn, to work entirely with the means of the country, capital and management being the great articles they supply. They have got some very valuable mines in Guanaxuato, Zacatecas, and other districts. The whole of these Companies are under excellent management.—The one last mentioned, the United, is under the direction of Don Lucas Alaman, Minister for Foreign Affairs, a man of great value to this country: able, upright, scientific, and with a great turn for mining. He is assisted by one or two London merchants, who, with him, form a Board of Management here. The Anglo-Mexican is under the direction of Mr. Williamson, who resides at Guanaxuato, a gentleman who some time since, undertook the working of the King of Persia's mines, but was obliged to leave that country in consequence of the treatment he received there. He is a man of great talent, judgement, and exertion. The Real del Monte is under the direction of Captain Veitch, an officer of Engineers, and son of a physician in London of that name. He appears to be a very able man, equal to the trust reposed in him, and is very much esteemed. Besides these, there are three or four smaller Companies. The effect of their several labours must be soon felt in this country, and I guess it will not be many years before it is felt in Europe."
