Land for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale the FARM where he lately resided, handsomely situated in Talbot county, about three miles from Easton, and containing about and is as comfortably situated as any in the county, off the salt waters—there is a Brick Dwelling House, Kitchen and Smoke House, together with all the necessary out buildings, which consist of wood; the buildings are not in good repair, at this time—There is about one hundred and twenty acres of wood or timber land, and about twenty acres of good meadow grounds, together with a plenty of marl, and is well watered with never-failing streams together with as good an assortment of fruit of different kinds as almost any in the county. It can be divided into two farms, one containing about 230 acres, the other about 190, each to have a plenty of timber. I will sell either parcel, or the whole. I deem it unnecessary to say any more about it, as I conclude that no person will purchase without viewing it; the property will be shewn by Mr. Benjamin Kemp, who resides on the premises, and terms made known by the subscriber, near St. Michaels, JAMES DENNY.

"The editor of the American Farmer, appropriates a certain portion of each number of his journal to the amusement and improvement of the fair sex—giving them every week essays, recipes, lectures on domestic economy, cookery, &c. &c.—For some weeks past he has been publishing "a whisper to a newly married pair." The whisper to the Husband ran through several numbers and has been concluded. It is said the ladies were much delighted with that whisper, and whilst they were felicitating themselves on its good effects, out comes the "whisper to the wife," under various heads. The last American Farmer contains the following:—Amer.

ON PRUDENCE AND DECORUM.

"Though a woman before her marriage may be admired for her gaiety, her dancing, dress, painting, singing, &c. yet after it, we expect her character to display something more substantial. To a man who must spend all his days in her company, these little superficial decorations would speedily become insipid and unimportant. Love can be preserved only by the qualities of the heart, and esteem secured by the domestic virtues."

"A man does not want to be dazzled in his matrimonial connexion, or to possess a partner who seeks the admiration of coxcombs or beaux. He wants a person who will kindly divide and alleviate his cares, and prudently arrange his household. He seeks not a coquette, a fashionist, a flirt; but a comfortable assistant, companion and friend."

"On the day of her marriage," says an admired writer, "a woman's tour of gaiety should end." In one of the Genoa countries, during the wedding day, a large fire is made, and the bride enters with a little basket in her hand, containing all her ornaments, rude and simple as they are—shells, beads, &c.—and flings them into it; intimating her intention of assuming for the future the dress as well as character of a matron—O! that our British matrons would take a hint from these wild and untutored Indians!

How indecorous, offensive and sinful, is it to see a woman exercising authority over her husband, and saying "I will have it so. It shall be done as I like." But I should hope the number of those who adopt this unbecoming and disgraceful manner is so small as to render it unnecessary for me to enlarge on the subject.

Never join in any jest or laugh against your husband. He may be a plain and insignificant, even a ridiculous man: be it so; why did you marry him? You should have known all those defects before marriage. It is now too late: and as a wife, self (not to say a word of duty) calls on you to hide his faults; and, whenever you possibly can, to bring him forward and make him of importance.

Assiduously conceal his faults, and speak only of his merit. In the married life, confidants are by no means desirable. You may be listened to with sympathy and interest?—but will this redress your grievance? By no means. Therefore never complain of him. In the first place, you violate a sacred duty by exposing your husband's faults; and in the next, even a certain degree of female dignity should combine with better motives to prevent it.

I would also strongly recommend a concealment from others of any little discord or disunion which occurs between you.—Repeated with additions and aggravations, it only gives food to the busy whisper of the malevolent, and as the witty Richardson says, "is sure to be remembered long after the honest people have quite forgotten it themselves." Besides, on those occasions, rely on it, the world is much more inclined to be your husband's advocate than yours.

In my opinion, there can hardly be a more despicable object than a married woman receiving the particular attentions of any man but her husband.

A flirting girl is indeed bad enough; but a flirting married woman should be an object of contempt where ever she appears.

Perhaps your husband may be a plain man, or an old man; and though possessing both sense, merit, and feeling, neither cultivated nor captivating. Let this circumstance make you peculiarly circumspect in your conduct. The eye of the world is on you; and though your husband may scorn to betray even by a look, any expression of jealousy, believe me it gives him no pleasure to see you dancing and chatting away with every young man who approaches you; for, at the moment perhaps when his good sense and manly pride make him smile, and join in the laugh and chat around, his heart may be exceedingly vexed and fretted at what he is ashamed to acknowledge even to himself. To say the truth, I never met with any husband, handsome, ugly, young, or old, who was pleased at seeing his wife's conversation and attraction much engrossed by other men.

Be you ever so conscious of a superiority of judgement or of talent, never let it appear to your husband. "A wife rules best by seeming to obey." And a man cannot endure the idea of inferiority in intellectual endowments. The very idea of being reflected on makes him infinitely more obstinate, and more wedded to his own opinion, when perhaps a little management and good sense would bring him at once into your plans and wishes.

THE WEEVIL.—A writer over the signature of "A Farmer" in the Baptist Recorder, (a paper printed in Bloomfield, Ky.) states that he has been completely successful this year—in which the Weevil has been remarkably destructive—in saving his wheat from its ravages. The plan which he adopted and recommends is, as he terms it "the old plan of putting it up in the chaff."—The course pursued is, to get the wheat out as soon as possible after harvest—taking care to have it dry—for in this the whole secret of salvation lies. There should be as much of the horse litter thrown out as possible—if put up in pens, they should be floored with rails or plank, ten or twelve inches from the ground then a good floor of straw—line the sides as you go up—the whole should be well covered from the weather, and therefore a good barn would be preferable to pens."—Gaz.

Surgical operation.—In the 17th number of the New York Medical and Physical Journal, Dr. David L. Rogers has reported an important and interesting case of epilepsy, of fourteen years standing cured by the operation of trepanning.

The subject of the case was a Mr. D. aged 46 years, who had labored under fits of epilepsy for the previous 14 years. 'For the last ten,' says the report, 'they have occurred so frequently as to disqualify him for labour of any kind and they have gradually increased in frequency and violence. From their long continuance his mind is much impaired, and he is fast approaching to a state of idiotism." It appears that he had received a blow on the head, some time previous to these fits, which fractured his skull. Dr. Rogers conceiving this to be the cause of the fits, recommended an operation for his relief; and accordingly on the 5th of Feb. 1825, assisted by Professor Mott and Dr. King, he removed the injured portion of bone by the application of the trephine, and found a spicula of bone projecting into the brain. Dr. R. adds, "nine months after the operation, I saw this man in the street: he stated that his memory had nearly recovered its usual strength, he has had no return of the fits; and is so far restored to health as to attend to his business without any inconvenience."
