Declaration was signed. It breathes, says the New York American, the spirit of a prophet—the confidence of a patriot, and the determination of one ready at any moment to lay down his life for the cause he had espoused. Its predictions have become history—and on his head has beamed and will beam the unfading "rays of light and of glory." The letter follows:

PHILADELPHIA, July 5, 1776.—Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever decided among men. A resolution was passed unanimously, "That these United States are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States."

The day is passed.—The 4th of July, 1776, will be a memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe it will be celebrated by succeeding generations, as the GREAT ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL! It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to the Almighty God. It ought to be solemnized with pomp, shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations—from one end of the continent to the other, from this time forever! You will think me transported with enthusiasm; but I am not. I am well aware of the toil, and blood, and treasure it will cost to maintain this declaration, and support and defend these states: yet through all the gloom I can see a ray of light and glory. I can see that the end is worth more than all the means, and that posterity will triumph, although you and I may rue, which I hope we shall not. Yours, &c.

JOHN ADAMS.

For the Easton Gazette.

To E. K. WILSON, Esq.

Sir,

You have been announced as a candidate to represent the sixth congressional district composed of Dorchester, Somerset and Worcester counties in the next Congress of the United States—I am fully aware of your talents, your experience, your public worth, your private virtues—You have every claim to respect—You cannot but be apprized that a faction as audacious in its aims, as it is unprincipled in its materials is arraying against the present administration—such a state of things every man who feels any interest in the welfare of this country must deprecate, & endeavour to avert—It behoves then those who wish to see the government conducted on just and enlightened principles of policy, neither upheld by ministerial parties nor embarrassed by factious opposition to inquire into the views of those who solicit their suffrages as candidates for Congress—I beg therefore respectfully that you will, through the same medium this inquiry is made, explain the course you will pursue if elected a member of the 20th Congress.

A VOTER of the 6th Congressional District.

For the Easton Gazette.

MR. GRAHAM,

It is truly gratifying to see so many respectable characters coming out as electors—men too who are calm and dispassionate in their sentiments, who desire to see a good Senate, not a party one—Among these candidates we find a member of the Executive Council—Judges, and other able men. The sentiment of Maryland, no doubt, if fairly collected, is to have a Senate of the very ablest men in the state without regard to party politics, regarding only the high character and abilities of the Senators themselves—This is as it should be and the people ought to rouse up and interpose in their own behalf and get such electors, and such only, as would pledge themselves to discard party and look for the most distinguished, learned and elevated men.

Z.

A Camp Meeting will be held in the woods adjoining the town of Church Hill in Queen Ann's county, to commence on the 24th of August—there is a spring of excellent water adjoining the woods in which the Camp will be held.

Who will not blush for the character of civilized man on reading the following?

"COLORADO RIVER, April 29.

On the 2d inst. a party of Indians, 16 in number, came to the house of one of our citizens under the pretence of friendship; but who in the course of the day became very impudent and manifested signs of hostility. It was in consequence, thought advisable to embody a parcel of men, not for the purpose of defending only, but also of attacking them. Runners were immediately started through the settlement for that purpose; they were attacked at day light on the succeeding morning, and thirteen of their number were killed, the balance, three of them, two of whom were wounded, escaped to their village. Spies were sent after them to ascertain if possible what might be their further intention, who upon arriving at their village, found them all in lamentation and bustle, and who were not permitted to stay among them. They could learn nothing decisive, except being told "that the Americans were not good." Under the apprehension that they will seek to revenge themselves of our settlement, we have all left our homes and are fortifying ourselves in the interior with all speed; but I much fear this unfortunate event will be the ruin of our settlement.

Among the other reasons which have led me to this conclusion is the fact that there are but few of us, who will be able to raise any corn; for myself I cannot attempt to attend my place. I shall therefore, have my bread to buy the next season, and in all probability my meat likewise, as my hogs runaway, from the fort, to my old place and are killed by the Indians."

From Poulson's American Daily Adv.

Last week, two men were on their way to my house from my harvest field, wherein they had been at work; the one with a scythe and cradle and the other with a scythe. The former had the scythe and cradle on his shoulder, much elevated above his head. The other carried the scythe much depressed, so that it was near the ground. A cloud charged with the electric fluid, came suddenly over them. A flash of lightning almost invisible, struck the elevated scythe, and prostrated the bearer of it, so that he appeared to be nearly dead. His companion was unhurt, but his scythe was wrested from him by the lightning, and thrown ten or twelve feet distant. The scythe and cradle were driven nearly as far and both in different directions.

The injured man was brought home by two men, apparently lifeless, though he revived for a short time, when seated in the house, and was apparently in his senses. Sharp Vinegar was rubbed on his temples and head generally.—Whilst it was thought his revival was insured, he was suddenly deprived of his senses, and being laid on a mattress on the floor, he was seized with the most terrific spasmodic or convulsive fits I ever witnessed. In his paroxysms he was so powerfully strong, that two robust men were scarcely able to hold him in a recumbent position. Thus he continued in successive fits during two hours. He had been stripped and incessantly rubbed with coarse towels, both cold and warm brandy plenteously applied. No apparent change took place, until cataplasms of vinegar and mustard were applied to the soles of his feet and around his ancles.

In a few minutes after this application, he showed signs of recovery, and finally became tranquil and sensible of his situation. At this moment a Physician arrived and bled him plenteously. He was enabled to sit up, though much debilitated. An attempt to bleed him had been early made, but he had no pulse, and the attempt was abortive. He was carried to bed, and slept tolerably complacent through the night. The next morning he arose with no complaint but debility, and he is now perfectly recovered—No marks or discolouring appeared on any part of his body.

I gave it up as a lost case, several times during his paroxysms, but enjoined perseverance in the frictions, unceasingly.—When he could, at intervals, swallow, Oil of Peppermint was thrown down his throat, and it was perceived to be useful. On his recovery, he said his feelings first returned when the cataplasms operated, so far as he could judge.

I relate this incident thus particularly, to inform of the remedies, as well as to put farmers on their guard when a threatening cloud approaches. Let them throw from them all iron or steel implements; avoid trees and other such dangerous shelters, and prefer encountering even the most violent storms.

Perseverance in the frictions, and the accompanying remedies, saved this man's life. He must have perished had he been alone when the accident occurred.

Some years ago a labourer in one of my fields, escaped being stricken by lightning, but a hoe, with which he was working, was wrested from his hands & driven to a considerable distance. An axe and even a pitchfork, have been known to attract the fatal fluid, and cause the deaths of those who held them in a thunder storm.

"Learn to be wise by others harms."

DESHA.

At the June term of Harrison county court, held at Cynthiana, (Ken.) the case of Isaac B. Desha was called, but all the jurors were rejected—they having formed or expressed an opinion as to the prisoner's guilt. A second effort to obtain a jury on the next day was also unsuccessful, and the trial was abandoned for the term. No expectation is now entertained, that he will ever again be tried in that county. This will in effect acquit him, or keep him a state prisoner at an annual expense to the state of three thousand dollars.

TOWN MEETING.

At a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the town of Easton, called and held at the Court House on Wednesday the 12th July, 1826, the following Preamble and Resolution were proposed and adopted, and ordered to be published in the Easton Newspapers.

Whereas information which cannot be questioned, has been received by the Board, that the venerable John Adams and Thomas Jefferson have lately departed this life; and it being believed that the citizens of the town and county, in common with the grateful people of the United States, are solicitous to express their feelings of sorrow and condolence, for the loss of two Patriots so eminently distinguished for their talents, wisdom, virtue and services during an arduous Revolution in promoting and maintaining the Independence of their Country: in order therefore to give them an opportunity of unitedly devising and agreeing on the most suitable and proper mode of publicly expressing (on a future day to be by them appointed) their respect for the memory of the deceased; It is resolved that they be requested, and they are hereby respectfully invited to assemble at the Court House on Tuesday the 18th July inst. at the hour of 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and to organize themselves and proceed to express such opinions and sentiments as the illustrious characters of those deceased Patriots and the solemnity of the occasion may inspire.

By order of the Board of Commissioners,
JOHN GOLDSBOROUGH, Pres't.
Test T. NEEDLES, Clk.

TO A CORRESPONDENT.—The essay against Mr. Teackle's School Bill signed a "Common Farmer" is received, and will be published if the author will let us know who we are dealing with—upon matters of controversy we must know with whom we deal, and we will give the most solemn pledge always that this is exclusively for ourselves, as we will uniformly act with strictest confidence; we would observe also that there is nothing objectionable in the essay, our columns are free to it, and to all public discussions that relates to public matters; but we know not to what a controversy may lead, and as we never shrink from responsibility, we must know for whom we become responsible—Our thanks are tendered to the "Common Farmer" for his preference of correspondence, and his essay shall appear whenever he complies with our established custom.
