LATEST FROM ENGLAND.—By the Packet ship Algonquin, which arrived at Philadelphia on Sunday from Liverpool, our correspondents of the National Gazette and Freeman's Journal, have received London papers to the evening of the 6th ult. and Liverpool to the 8th.

It is said that trade and manufactures had revived in a degree; but the improvement was not considerable. The London Courier of the 5th, after observing that it does not share in the gloomy anticipations of some editors, "who think that the reverse which the commerce and manufactures of the country have recently experienced, is the signal and the commencement of decline in the national wealth and power,"—adds,—"yet it cannot be denied that those interests are in a state of great depression; that the navigation of the country excites lively alarm among those most interested in its support, that large classes of people are in a state of destitution; and that circulation and credit are undergoing changes, the effects of which few persons even profess clearly to foresee." The Liverpool 'Albion,' of the same date, contains a long, elaborate essay on the 'state and prospects of the Cotton trade,' which concludes thus.

'Upon a review of the whole subject, we cannot see any reason for despondency respecting the cotton market. On the contrary, we see every reason for hope. Its present view is evidently encouraging; and the prospects as to the future are more favorable at this moment than after the events of the last five months, the most sanguine among us had the courage to anticipate."

The British Parliament was to be dissolved, and the elections for the new one engaged a large share of the public attention and the pages of the newspapers. Even the London Courier calls for the choice of really independent men, and the Morning Chronicle says—

"Our readers may be assured that the work for the next Parliament will not be light. The occasion demands active and clear-headed men, able and willing to fight against selfish monopolists and extravagant consumers of the resources of the nation."

It is mentioned in the Courier that the Peruvian government had "refused to close with an offer of two millions and a half of dollars, to purchase the mines in its territory." According to an official communication of the Secretary General of that government, the minimum price for which they will be sold is three millions of dollars; and it appears by computation that there are about five thousand mines (bocas minas) belonging to the State. The offer is addressed to America as well as Europe.

On the 2d June, the opposition in the French Deputies, bitterly upbraided the ministry, for not having a military establishment, proportionate, in extent, to the establishments and attitude of the other great powers of Europe. General Montmaris observed—

"The national dignity required that the peace establishment should be on a more imposing footing. . . . . The Kingdom of the Netherlands (he said) has 180,000 men under arms; Prussia has an army of 200,000 soldiers, besides the battalions of Landwehr and Landsturm. The military force of the German Confederation, amounts to 300,000 men, and may, at the first signal, be raised to 450,000. England, whose position dispenses her from keeping up a numerous army, has, nevertheless, military resources well organized.—Russia has more than 700,000 men, without including her military colonies. To this military state of the European powers, we have only to oppose an army which does not amount to 200,000."

On this the London Morning Chronicle makes the following commentary.

"O unfortunate people of France! though you amount in number to thirty millions, and the Prussians only to ten millions, and the Netherlands to five millions, yet your government will not indulge you with an army so large as that of the former, and little larger than that of the latter. That governments, relying on the permanence of peace, and believing that the ability to carry on a war successfully depends mainly on husbanding the resources, and relieving the burdens of a nation during peace, and knowing besides, that if France ever be involved in war, it must be through her own ambition, and not that of the King of the Netherlands, though he does maintain 180,000 men, chooses rather to repeal twenty millions of taxes, than to add a hundred thousand men to your army, to strike an awe into your neighbors! But let us hear what the Minister of Finance can allege in justification of himself against these heavy accusations.

'France (he says) has been represented as not in a condition to maintain a struggle with foreign powers, as unable to provide for the wants of the different services; and it has even been said, that it was imprudent to repeal taxes on the mere probability of an increase in the receipts. Fortunately, Gentlemen, all these fears, exist only in the imagination. You shall judge, gentlemen, if it is imprudent to diminish the burthens of the tax payers—we know already the receipts of the four first months of 1826, they exceeded by 6,642,000 francs the receipts for the same months of the former year; and by 12,510,000 francs, the receipts calculated on in the Budget. We thought that in such a situation of prosperity and increase, the first duty of a Minister was, to contribute to the general prosperity by a diminution of taxation, in order that we might the more easily find new resources, in case they should ever become necessary.'

"How confounded Lord Palmerston would be with an Opposition like this, dissatisfied with his labors to keep all our establishments on a footing worthy of the great military nation which gained the battle of Waterloo; and how confounded Mr. Hume would be with a Ministry, so lost to glory as to prefer taking off taxes, to adding to the national expenditure!

"While France has, ever since the Peace, been proceeding in an uninterrupted career of prosperity, it is painful to think that the same period in this country has been marked by uniform distress in one division or another of our population. At one time, the distress was agricultural; at another, manufacturing—at one time we had transition from war to peace—at another we had excess—at another scarcity—at another over trading; but we have always been laboring under convulsions of some kind.—France, that country which some of our great land-holders pitied so much this last session, because it was without the blessings of primogeniture, and game laws, does not, to be sure, pay twenty millions for cotton which she sells for ten—she has not, like us, had the advantage of driving a like profitable speculation in wool—she has not been favored with the purchase of South America, by the introduction of improved machinery, with which we may hope to be one day as rich as the Spaniards—but she has been regularly advancing in wealth and industry

"The strength of a government is in the ease and happiness of the people, and not in the number of men under arms. The French have no cause to envy, either the Prussian peasantry of soldiers, or the English peasantry of paupers."

FROM RUSSIA.

Capt. Dickinson, of the ship Triton, arrived at Boston on Wednesday, informs that the Empress Elizabeth, widow of the late Emperor Alexander, of Russia, died about the 10th of May, on her way from Taganrok to Moscow.

The fate of the persons concerned in the revolt on the accession of Nicholas would soon be made public. It was said that none would suffer death; but that they would be exiled to Siberia; for a longer or shorter period, according to the degree of guilt.

EASTON, MD.
SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 22.

THE TALBOT MEETING.

Agreeably to the notice published in the several newspapers in the town of Easton, by order of the Commissioners of the Town, a meeting of the citizens of Talbot county was held in the Court House at Easton, on Tuesday, the 18th day of July, 1826, when the objects of the meeting were stated by Nicholas Hammond, Esq. who concluded by proposing that a Chairman be appointed, and Major General Benson was selected and took the chair.

The following Resolutions were then offered by John Leeds Kerr and adopted by the assembled citizens.

Resolved, That, as it is the peculiar duty of a Republican people to bestow on their departed patriots and benefactors a just meed of grateful respect and admiration for the disinterested exercise of their talents and zeal in the cause of their country, and as, at the most trying and perilous crisis of our Revolution, the late departed patriots, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams, were the most distinguished promoters of that high emprise and noble daring, with which this People resolved finally to dissolve the political bands which had connected them with another, and to assume, amongst the nations of the earth, the separate and equal condition to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitled them, and, throughout that arduous contest, at every hazard and with every sacrifice, devoted their whole hearts and great abilities to the cause of liberty, and, since the establishment of our free and happy government, have served the nation in the most important trusts and most exalted stations,—it is, with a high but mournful gratification, the citizens here present do declare their deep sense of the illustrious services and their esteem for the renowned civic virtues of their deceased countrymen.

Resolved, That, as a token of their veneration for the memory of those departed patriarchs of liberty, the citizens here present agree to wear crape on the left arm, for the period of thirty days, and recommend to their fellow citizens at large to assume the like badge of national mourning.

Resolved, That Thursday, the 27th inst. be set apart as a day sacred to the memory of the two deceased Sages and Patriots and in honour to their distinguished virtues and talents, so long devoted to their country's service; and that the citizens in town and country be solicited to abstain on that day from business of all kinds.

Resolved, That a Committee of Arrangement be appointed for the purpose of inviting all the citizens of Talbot county to unite together on Thursday, the 27th inst in a solemn procession of mourning for the death of these departed worthies, and that that Committee invite and request some patriotic citizen to deliver an eulogium on their virtues and public services.

Resolved, That ———— be a committee for the foregoing purposes.

The blank in the last resolution having been filled by the nomination of the meeting with the names of the following gentlemen, to wit:—John Leeds Kerr, William Hayward, Jr. Robert H. Goldsborough, John Goldsborough, Lambert Reardon, Edward N. Hambleton, John M. G. Emory, George W. Nabb, Richard Spencer, Thomas Henrix, Daniel Martin, Thomas P. Bennett, and Dr. Nicholas Hammond.

It was further Resolved that these proceedings be signed by the Chairman and published in the Easton Gazette and Republican Star. P. BENSON, Chairman.

Harbouring Apprentices.—At the June term of Baltimore City Court, came on the trial of William K. Mitchel for harbouring two apprentices of Hester Crockett from the 1st of May to the 30th June, 1826, inclusive. He was found guilty, and the counsel for the prosecution contended that Mitchell be sentenced to pay $1,66, 2-3 for every hour each apprentice was harboured, according to the act of 1748, which declares, that persons harbouring servants shall pay one hundred pounds of tobacco, or $1,66 2-3, for every hour each servant is harboured, one half to the party grieved and the other to the State. The penalty incurred by Mitchell, according to this act amounts to four thousand eight hundred and eighty dollars. The Court agreed with the prosecuting counsel, but delayed passing sentence in consequence of the suggestion that a compromise would take place.—Balt. Pat. July 12.

A man in New Orleans advertises that he has "invented a coach for travelling through the air with safety." The Advertiser says he can carry the mail and one or two passengers with him; and that his vehicle is completely manageable, except in severe gales of wind, when he can descend from his aerial voyage at pleasure. If proper assistance be given him, he will by next Christmas be ready to ascend from any appointed place, manœuvre and manage his coach with nearly the swiftness of a fowl, and show to the world that man can travel through the air as well as on water!!
