POETRY.

AN EDITOR'S DUTY—What is it?

Is it to crouch to wealth or power,
To laud the fav'rite of the hour,
To bow and stoop for favor?
Is it to quail in virtue's cause,
And shrink when vice contemns the laws
Of God and man, when few will pause
T' extend an arm to save her?

Is it to spread o'er beauty's face,
(Adorn'd with every beaming grace,)
The crimson'd tinge unwonted?
Is't to record the jest profane,
To use th' Eternal's name in vain,
To give to meek religion pain,
Which conscience ne'er confronted?

Is't to withhold from art, the meed
Of praise; or science to impede
In her career of glory?
Is it to shield the trait'rous elf
(Who, void of honor, wrapt in self,)
Would sell his natal soil for pelf,
And fear to tell the story?

No! 'tis to wield the honest pen,
To seek the applause of virtuous men,
To light the smile of beauty;
T' encourage science, foster art,
To search the treach'rous villain's heart,
To do the faithful watchman's part;
'Tis this 'to do my duty.'

THE VISION—A FRAGMENT.

——— His form was that of youth, erect and bright
In boyhood's beauty; and the fearless air
Of pride was mingled with the tender grace
That dwelt in every movement; and his brow
Was high and fair, and o'er it clustering locks
Of ebon hair waved thick and dark; his eye
Was bright and piercing, and its stedfast gaze
Was full of lofty thoughts, that seem'd to soar
Far above earth and range among the stars,
And grasp the past and future—In his hand
He bore a harp, and ever and anon
He swept, as if unheedingly, the strings,
Whose tones, high swelling, rose upon the ear
So wildly beautiful—then died in silence.
Around him flow'd a sable velvet robe,
And on his breast he wore a gorgeous star,
The symbol of his rank.—Alone he stood,
Wrapp'd in the workings of his own high thoughts
Like to a youthful god, a thing for men
To kneel and worship.

* * * * * *

The vision came once more, but not the same.
Years had passed o'er him, and yet more than years;
Deep grief had dwelt upon him, and his form
Was bent and faded; and his look of pride
And fearlessness was chang'd to bitter scorn;
And the deep trace of passions, fierce & high,
Was on his noble brow, and his dark hair
Was thin and silver sprinkled—his keen eye
Was sunk and hollow, but not dimm'd by age,
Nor yet by tears the once rich bloom that glow'd
Upon his cheek, a few short years had seen
Chang'd—wither'd to the pale and sallow hue
Of heart-corroding care—He stood on high,
As on a lofty mountain, and men turn'd
And on him gaz'd with awe and admiration.
Some, too, did hate him, but alike he seem'd
To scorn their hate and praise: the same high thoughts
E'en as at first, were beaming in his eye—
The stedfast look was there—but not alone,
For meaner things had reached his lofty spirit
And stain'd the brightness of his glorious mind.
He struck the harp—'twas with a master's hand—
And sang a noble song: his theme was man;
For he had been a wanderer from his youth
And dwelt in many nations; he had search'd
The hearts of men in every clime.—But 'mid
The sweetness of his tones, harsh sounds were heard,
And sadness mingled with his song; and wo,
And passion fierce, and scornful mockery,
And curses dire.—Sudden he ceas'd and flung
Aside the harp—he paus'd—a moment paus'd
Then grasp'd the sword, and shouted 'Liberty!'

* * * * * * *

——— The vision chang'd again.
I stood amid a multitude that gaz'd
With sorrowing hearts and streaming eyes upon
A new rais'd tomb. Warriors were there and maidens,
And aged men, and mothers with their babes;
All, all were mourning—every land, methought,
From the world's widest bound, gave forth a groan;
And men look'd on each other, as if earth
Were darken'd by the terrible shadowing
Of some all nameless universal wo,
And murmur'd 'Death!'—Lo! he, the lofty one,
The warrior bard lay there, 'mid nations' tears
The marble closed upon that clay that once
Was BYRON.

TO THE FREE AND INDEPENDENT VOTERS OF CAROLINE COUNTY.

FELLOW-CITIZENS,

Having taken notice of the course pursued by a portion of the state of Maryland relative to the manner that Candidates would be brought before the people, for Electors of the Senate, and observing they have voluntarily come out, without the aid of the old caucus institution, in many, if not all the counties, with the exception of Harford, and the City of Annapolis, and having myself been pressed very much in the course of the spring past, to be a candidate for the aforesaid place, by a large portion of the most respectable democrats of the county, I did consent to gratify them, and observed to the people of the county that I was a candidate: However, after that, a portion of democrats, who are still in favour of caucusing, succeeded in getting up a caucus. I had come to the conclusion not to be a candidate: but since the nomination of the Candidates for the Legislature, the people observing that the caucus having disposed of, upon the same character, a double portion of public preferment, have expressed great dissatisfaction, thereat, and have come forward to me and pressed me to be a candidate, I declined it, with an expectation that there would be federalists out as candidates until the present. I now consent to be a candidate, presuming there will be no federalists as candidates; but at the same time, the public will understand that, if the federalists shall form a ticket, and come forward that, in that case I am no candidate. My only object is that the people may have a chance of a choice, and not leave the balance of the state to believe that there are but two characters in Caroline that are worthy of notice, by heaping on them a double portion of office both honorable and profitable. Fellow citizens, should you see proper to select me for the above appointment, my strongest abilities will be exerted to get a senate not inimical to the interest of the state of Maryland.

Vendue.

In further pursuance of the order of the Orphans' Court of Talbot county, I will sell the residue of the personal estate of the late Lloyd Nicols, deceased, at Mount Pleasant on the evening of SATURDAY the 9th day of September next, if fair, if not, the next fair day after Sunday, the sale beginning precisely at 2 o'clock, P. M.

This residuum will consist of a great quantity of most valuable plate—a remarkably fine 8 day imported clock, some pieces of valuable household and kitchen furniture—a quantity of nice pork, with a good ox cart, and a variety of articles too tedious to mention, but of great use to the purchasers. Terms of sale same as before. Notes with approved security taken for all sums of five dollars or upwards payable six months after date—below that, the cash will be required.

Boot & Shoe Store.

William White,

OPPOSITE THE COURT HOUSE, (EASTON,)

Has just received from Baltimore a handsome supply of Ladies' and Childrens' boots and shoes, which he will dispose of very low for cash—He has also received from New York a large supply of red and black morocco skins of the first and second quality, which he will either manufacture into boots and shoes or dispose of, low for cash, by the single skin or by the dozen.

W. H. finds he can purchase Boots & Shoes on much lower terms, for cash, in either of the above cities, than even on a short credit—he has therefore determined to sell for cash alone, and invites all those who are in want of articles in his line, and who have the needful, to give him a call, examine for themselves and he has no doubt of their purchasing.

COACH GIG AND HARNESS

Making.

The subscriber avails himself of the opportunity of informing the citizens of Somerset, that, having opened shop in Princess Anne, he intends carrying on the Coach Gigg, and Harness-making business in all their various branches. Having furnished himself with experienced workmen and a good stock of materials, he flatters himself, he shall be able, by executing his work with neatness and despatch, in the most fashionable manner and on the most accommodating terms, to meet the wishes of the public, and especially those who may favour him with employment. Prompt attention will be given to business; and every effort used to please his customers, and to show himself worthy of public confidence. As heretofore, the citizens of Somerset, have, mostly, been under the disagreeable necessity of sending their work to some distant shop out of the county, he hopes for the future this necessity will be prevented; and that they will avail themselves of the advantages of relief now offered them. He solicits a share of public patronage; pledges his assurances that nothing on his part shall be wanting to render general satisfaction.—Persons wishing work done in his line of business would do well to give him a call.
