POETRY.

From Mrs. Colvin's Messenger.

THE DEATH OF VALLE.

"About half-way to the scaffold the troops halted on some occasion, and Valle marked the military step just as if he had been at the head of his company. He was opposite a Coffee-house, and asked for something to drink. The man who brought the glass, trembled as he presented it. "Be calm" said he to him, "do as I do." He took three separate draughts exclaiming at the first, "to France!" At the second, "To the brave?" And at the third, "To God."—Memoirs of a French Sergeant.

The morning sun shone clear and bright,
On the vine-clad hill's of France,
And back was thrown its gorgeous light,
From glittering spear and lance!
A multitude had gathered there,
Where the soldier was to die;
And gently o'er the ambient air
Rose the chilling, stifled sigh.

Why starts the crystal drop from eyes
Which never wept before?
And why are heard those wailing cries
Above the drums hoarse roar?
Why! ask yon scaffold's lofty cross?
It tells the hated tale,
Ask of the crowd, whose deep-felt loss
Swells heavily the gale.

What answer hath the scaffold given?
What says the weeping crowd?
That he who now from them is riven,
In Freedom's cause was loud;
And proudly were his accents thrown,
O'er that assembled plain,
Hush'd be the sob and still the groan,
He'll not be heard again.

"Weep not my friends" he firmly said,
"See how the brave can die,
Weep for your country, to her aid
With zeal and valor fly:
Draw nigh, and with me drink 'To France;'
Then, "to her good and brave,"
Now,—"To our God," and then advance
And see the Patriot's grave."

A scornful smile was seen to gleam
Across his manly brow,
'Twas still—men gazed as from a dream,
Where is that glory now?
Alas! that speaking glance which shone
With stern and virtuous pride,
Has passionless, reluctant, flown
With life's receding tide.

SPRINGS.

THE SPACIOUS AND ELEGANT HOUSE belonging to the company at these springs which was completed last fall, has just been opened, and is now ready for the reception of visiters and boarders, under the superintendence of the subscriber.

This Watering Place is finely situated in the high and healthy country, five miles west of Wilmington, commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country, the river Delaware, and the neighbouring States. The grounds of the company afford pleasant and shady promenades, and are bounded by fine streams of water.

The virtues of the waters of those springs are those of the purest Chalybeate, according to the analysis of Professor Keating of Philadelphia. They have been particularly efficacious in Bilious and other fevers, and are celebrated as a fine tonic.

The near vicinity of Wilmington offers at all times access to an excellent market, and the daily intercourse by steam boat lines from that place and New Castle, to Philadelphia and Baltimore, affords a facility of communication not possessed by any other watering place.

Parties can be accommodated at a short notice with dinners, collations, ice-creams, &c. &c.

The Proprietor pledges himself that no exertion shall be spared on his part to gratify every want of the visiter to this pleasant and salubrious retreat.
