Tell he[illegible]'s lovely ta[illegible]
Where's the snow—the [illegible]
On the lovely lilly flowe[illegible],
Where the hues the sunset shed
O'er the roses crimson hour?
Where's the gold—the bright pure gold—
O'er the young laburnum flung?
And the fragrant sighs that breathed
Whence the hyacinth drooping hung?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

Maiden, lovelier than the spring,
Is thy bloom departed too?
Has thy cheek forgot its rose,
Or thine eye its April blue?
Where are thy sweet bursts of song?
Where the wreaths that bound thy hair?
Where the thousand prisoner curls?
And the sunny smiles are—Where?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

Youth, where is thine open brow?
What has quell'd thine eagle eye?
Where the freshness of thy cheek,
And the dark hair's raven dye?
Where's thy crimson banner now?
Where's thine eager step and sword?
Where's thine hour of dreamless sleep?
Where frank, jest and careless word?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

Where's the lighted hall; and where
All that made its midnight gay?
Where's the music of the harp?
And the minstrel's nightly lay?
Where's the graceful saraband?
Where the lamps of starry light?
Where the vases of bright flowers?
Where the blushes yet more bright?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

Where are those fair dreams that made
Life so beautiful at first?
Where the many fantasies
That young hope so fondly nurst;
Love with motto like a knight,
Faithful even to the tomb?
Fortune following the wish;
Pleasure with a folded plume?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

Oh! mine own heart, where are they—
Visions of thy earlier hour,
When thy young hope's colors were
Like those on the morning flower?
Where's the trusting confidence
Of affection deep and true?
And the spirit's sunshine like,
Which o'er all their gladness threw?
Gone, gone—they all are gone.

SITTING FOR A WIFE.—An advertisement having appeared in an Edinburgh paper, headed "To Single Ladies," in which the advertiser professed himself ready to enter the bands of matrimony with a young lady in possession of £100 a year, and that every thing might be fair and above board, he gave notice that he might be seen every day in the week sitting on a particular seat on the Carlton-Hill, from 12 to 1 o'clock, dressed in mourning and reading a newspaper. Accordingly on Monday, precisely at the appointed hour, a very respectable gentlemanly-looking person, in mourning, took his seat, produced a newspaper, and sat the prescribed time on the stone seat between the Observatory and Nelson's Monument. At this place, the grass being newly laid down, policemen were stationed to keep off the crowd so that the exhibitor was seen to the fullest advantage. He appears to be turned of 40, & a stranger, but has no appearance of a sporting character.

His stipulation as to the lady's fortune is moderate; but as the whimsical affair is very naturally supposed to be connected with a heavy bet, the sum is of no consequence. He takes no notice of the crowd which surrounds him, to whom he politely bows when his vigil expires. On Wednesday he found it difficult to get rid of them, as they persisted in following him about the hill. Let the inducement to this strange undertaking be what it may, it is any thing but a very comfortable one. To sit an hour in the open air, in such an exposed situation in the last week of October, and during remarkably foggy weather, is rather too much; but he appears to bear it all with stoical indifference. For the fuller gratification of his numerous visitors he should finish by having his name and residence cut on the stone, as an imperishable memorial of his folly.

"BURIED ALIVE."

HANOVER, Pa. Jan. 20.—We are informed that, week before last, during the cold and windy weather, a young man, a market tender by profession living several miles west of this place, on his return from Baltimore, whither he had been to dispose of his cargo finding the piercing sharpness of the wind and cold exceedingly unpleasant, resolved to creep into an old empty chest he had on his wagon in ordinary use for stowing away market articles, but then empty. He had scarcely time to feel snug and comfortable in his new quarters before a stick placed as a supporter of the lid of the chest gave way; it fell, and being we suppose a spring lock, closed firmly on him, and all his efforts to force it open were unavailing. Being thus buried alive, and finding it impossible to extricate himself, in the extremity of terror he screamed, shouted and hallooed, but all to no purpose; the chest was tight and the wind high, and the sound of his voice could not penetrate his sarcophagus.—His horses, accustomed to the road, travelled on unconscious of their master's unpleasant incarceration, and proceeded three miles, when at last the (supposed) absence of the owner excited attention. The horses were stopped and having at last made himself heard, he was released from his uncomfortable durance, with great pleasure to himself and the amusement of his deliverers.

Daniel was hired out in Easton, and went off under pretence of going to Camp Meeting, and there is reason to believe that he was accompanied by a negro man, the property of Mrs. Smyth, who was also hired out in Easton, and is of a chesnut colour and rather tall I have no knowledge of what clothes Daniel took with him, other than a blue jacket and fur hat nearly new It is more than probable that these negroes will make their way either to Delaware or New Jersey.
