John Campbell aged about 57 years being duly sworn on the part of the Caveators, deposeth and saith —
In the year 1818 Mr. Thomas Jenifer sent for this deponent to come into his room and after he had gone in asked if this deponent would write a will for him — He desired me to take down the heads of the will and I could write it out at my leisure — He said he had a will then by him, but he wished to make a new one, because in the will which he then had he had left his brother Walter too much of his property and Daniel too little. — upon being asked by this deponent what disposition he intended to make of his Estate he named his negroes, devising a boy called Henry who waited upon him, free, and a woman called Betty, whom he had promised his wife at New York to set free, or that she should never serve any person but himself — That he was induced to give Henry his freedom, in consequence of his fidelity — He desired this Deponent to give Charles and his cook called Betty to Walter Jenifer & also mentioned other negroes whom he devised to Walter and said that he gave Charles and Betty being house servants to Walter who had none and Daniel had, and then mentioned other negroes which he intended to give Daniel — He then stated Miss Sally Hanson had lived in the family from her infancy, and she would expect that he would give her something; that he thought his Estate would allow him to give her $1.000 — and desired this deponent to give her that sum — He then said he would reflect in what manner he should divide his real Estate — or the rest of his property (this deponent cant say which) between his brothers of which he would inform this deponent when he called on him again. This deponent then asked him whom he should name as his Executor, and he answered his two Brothers Daniel & Walter — This deponent then retired from the room. — Mr. Jenifer got better and this deponent was never again called upon to write the will. This deponent upon interrogatory states that at the time above mentioned he asked Mr. Jenifer whether he knew his situation or the amount of his debts, and Mr. Jenifer replied that upon examining his accounts with Mr. Stone, he discovered that he owed either $1.000 or $1000. this deponent cant say which. —

Question — Did he ask then what the first letter of his name was? answer I do not think he asked the first letter of his name at any time. — Question were the letters composing his name mentioned to him in their consecutive order and after he had written the preceding one? ans I do not think every letter was named to him as he wrote, but in writing his name he was occasionally at a loss, and when he was thus at a loss, a letter or letters were named to him. Question — In signing the codicil was he at a loss for his name or the letters thereof, or did the same prompting take place? Answer He was at a loss for his name but once during the execution of his will, which as I before stated, I think was when he was about to sign the will; but he was at a loss occasionally for the letters composing his name as well in signing the codicil as the will, and they were named to him in the same way either by Mr. Stone or myself.
