yes sir, surprise, that the "Agy Club of Easton," the well known abilities of whose members, are as familiar to us as Musquitoes are in February, with the venerable President, Scroggins, at its head, after having published to the world, their flaming array of ingeniously transposed and copied resolutions and remonstrances, against the liabilities they presume to suppose themselves subject to, from "the rude assaults" of unoffending and unsuspecting females; should not as dexterously and ingeniously have sought from the same source, (if their own brains could not furnish it) a copy of a reply, but at the first charge of the bayonet, to have fled precipitately from the field of action, without taking a single shot, and yield their defence into the hands of "Peter" who is not even known to be a member, fie! fie! my good fellows, tho' your cause is bad, despair not, it is impossible that your sufferings from the "rude assaults" of female charms, could yet have been enough to have totally annihilated you from the pages of remembrance; rally then again around the standard of your constitution; you have espoused a cause, support, defend and protect it from the "rude assaults" of matrimonial encroachments, until your own conscience should convict you of your error, then like penitent mourners, fly to the only refuge, the foot of wounded female delicacy, & on your bended marrow bones, with hands uplifted and eyes streaming with tears, implore their mercy & forgiveness, & my word for it, their tender sympathetic hearts will not withhold it from you.

With regard to the personalities, alluded to in Peter's publication, I think like some of the ancients of former times, his power of reflection and discrimination must be much too large, for the space left in his cranium for the reception of it, and consequently as an idea goes into his head, so it must come out, for the want of room enough to turn it over, now sir, if you or any reflecting man will examine Timothy Twist, and say that there is in it one single sentence that applies to you, or you, or you, (unless your own conscience convicts you of it.) I will yield. It is true sir, I cut a garment, and it may also be true sir, that it fits, and well too, but I am entitled to no credit for it, for they sent me the pattern to cut it by, and I was so precise as to rip it to pieces and cut mine by the old, piece by piece. If therefore it fits, they must certainly be pleased, if it does not they must keep it, as I do not hold myself responsible for a fit, unless I cut by my own measure.

"A waiting volume of rejected addresses," did you say sir, yes sir, I boast of the honor you have conferred upon my name say any thing about me sir, rather than say that my heart can ever be callous to the winning and angelic influence of female attractions, nay sir, if every hair of my head numbered some sad and heart rending disappointment, I should still glory in the cause, and hope, the sheet anchor of my faith would buoy me up, & inspire, in my breast, a confidence that at some future day, I might be able to attract the affections of some amiable and interesting fair, from which source, I am convinced that man's real happiness in this life can alone abundantly flow; and not like yourself and the "Agy Club," cut your cable, and set your sails for that Port alone, "where Females dwelleth not" and where their benign and heart cheering influence, cannot be expected to assail your callous and obdurate hearts.

I regret, to be compelled to ask, so many explanations, but I have always been taught to acknowledge my ignorance, and ask information, and that courtesy demanded of the one asked, the information required, if he was capable of giving it, upon this ground I would ask "Peter" (as I did the "Agy Club" an explanation of their resolutions, which I presume they have declined giving until they hear from the parent Society) the definition of a Henpecked Husband; now sir, I know the meaning of Hen—of Pecked—and of Husband, separately, but if taken together they mean, that a Husband is to set quietly and suffer himself to be peck'd upon by a hen, without offering resistance or getting out of her way, all I can say in his defence is that he is a blamed fool, and deserves it—"Peter's" dictionary can no doubt either theoretically or practically give a correct definition, if this is not.

I have not had time to look at the Q's, but I presume a considerable Quantity of bashfulness must pervade the heart of "Peter" and the Agy Club, when they reflect that to be known, is only to suffer total annihilation from female society, their assertion that the Ladies ask not the aid of Timothy in their defence, to the contrary notwithstanding, this alone will protect them from the "rude assaults of the matrimonial noose.' I have now, sir, occupied much more of your useful columns than I intended or had a right to expect, in conclusion I would say to "Peter" that his publication is not to the point, there not being one single point in it, if he intends to defend and support the principles of the "Agy Club" let him do so exclusively, and notwithstanding the ability that he exhibits, and that of President Scroggins to back him, I shall never be found weary in well doing.

Yours Truly
TIMOTHY TWIST.

THE DEPOSITE BANKS.

If we mistake not, the incident to which we are about to ask the attention of our readers, will turn out to be of no mean consequence in the history of the domestic relations of the United States, as the pioneer to more extensive developments!

Before we relate the incident, we think it best to go back a few weeks, for the purpose of placing the reader in possession of some precedent facts, which it is proper he should know, if he be not already acquainted with them. On the 3d day of December, the official paper in this city, in the course of a reply to certain allegations of the Washington correspondent of the New York Star, made the following quotation from a Letter of that correspondent, which we had not read until we met with it in the Globe:

'One part of the statements of this mischievous letter-writer we think proper to notice; not that we attach importance to his stories, but it is good to expose wilful mistatements which are propagated by others of some repute upon the same subject. The writer of the letter says:

'As Mr. Taney will be nominated for the Chief Justiceship, it is due to the character of the Senate, as well as the cause of sound principles, to inquire whether that individual, as acting Secretary of the Treasury, did not withhold certain information called for by that body. It appears that about the latter end of the session of 1833, on motion of Mr. Webster, it was resolved that the Secretary of the Treasury should inform the Senate whether any officer has been appointed by the Administration, whose duties were connected with the deposite banks, the nature of the duties, the compensation, by whom appointed, and under what authority. To which Mr. Taney, in substance, answered, no such appointment had been made, and no person was employed having authority to interfere with the business of the deposite banks, except S. McKean, a clerk in the Treasury Department, who, for years back, has had some important duties assigned to him in this respect.'

'He then charges Mr. Taney with having 'withheld certain information called for' by the Senate, and says, 'at the time Mr. Webster called for the information R. M. Whitney held, and still holds, authority from the President to impose on the deposite banks.'" &c.

After some sharp strictures on this charge, which the official journal termed 'infamous,' the Editor remarked as follows:

'In regard to the use made of Mr. Whitney's name, we are authorized to state, the assertion that he held, and still holds, authority from the President,' &c in any way relating to the deposite banks is destitute of truth; and, furthermore, it is untrue that, at the time referred to, he was in any wise employed by any one of the deposite banks.

'If any or all of the deposite Banks think proper to employ Mr. Whitney, or any one else, to reside in Washington or elsewhere, as their agent, we presume they have a perfect right to do so. Every thing connected therewith is a matter resting entirely between such banks and the agent or agents which they may think proper to employ.'

This statement arrested our attention at the time, as comprising the first admission we had seen, on official authority, of the possibility that Mr. Whitney was employed, and received compensation in any shape, as an Agent between the Treasury, and what we will call (for the sake of brevity) THE PET BANKS—We copied the two above paragraphs into this paper, and remarked upon them, that, if Mr. W. was an agent at all and if he received any compensation for such agency, it now appeared that it was paid by the Deposite Banks. If we qualified our statement by ifs, we added, it was because we had nothing more than ifs for our authority.

Now for the new incident. By the last Mail from the West, we received the Missouri Republican of the 19th of January, containing the following:

'Important Disclosures—We understand from Vandalia, that the Illinois Senate was, last week, through a committee appointed for the purpose, engaged in an examination of witnesses and papers touching the relations and correspondence of the State Bank of Illinois with the Treasury Department of the Government, pendings its application to be made a depository of the Public Money. It was established, we have understood, by the evidence of gentlemen on the ground and from the letters of Reuben M. Whitney, (the Agent of the Pet Banks near the Treasury) that the principal objection on the part of the government to granting the application arose from a belief that the bank could not be used to aid the election of Martin Van Buren to the Presidency. Whitney in his correspondence with the Director of the Bank, cited the election of Senators in Sangamon, shortly after the establishment of the Bank at Springfield, and Gov. Duncan's letter about that time, as evidence that the Bank had used its influence against the Administration, and therefore he would not sanction the application until the Bank exonerated itself from the charges. Col Mather, President of the Bank, Judge Smith, Samuel Wiggins Esq. and others were examined; and, on Saturday, the sergeant-at-arms was despatched for R. Tilson, Esq. The report of the committee will of course be printed, with the examinations and so much of the correspondence as can be obtained.'

[The italics in this paragraph are those of the journal from which we copy it.]

Now we are not going to affirm the exact truth of the above statement, because there may have been error in the information which the editor of the Republican has received. It may, by possibility, be all false. But this we must observe, in regard to the journal in which we find it: that it is a journal discreetly conducted, not prone to violence, and not given to misrepresentation. We must suppose, therefore, until it is contradicted by evidence, that the statement which it makes is substantially true, and will be borne out by the testimony which it appears has been taken before a committee of the Senate of Illinois, and is to be published by its authority.

We must, as now viewed, consider this as the first evidence, accidentally arrived at, of a system of political corruption by means of the control exercised by the Executive of the U. States over the public treasure; the existence of which has been suspected by many, and asserted by some, but which, until this moment, we have not been thoroughly convinced of. We cannot doubt, with the evidence now before us, that, through the instrumentality of the Pet Banks, the public money is deliberately used, (not spent, observe, but used,) to the amount of the twenty millions of dollars now in the Treasury, with the direct view of procuring the election to the Presidency of him whom the President is known to prefer as his successor.

What say the Expungers to all this?

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST,

AND NEWS OF THE DAY.

EMBELLISHED WITH A MULTITUDE OF

COMIC ENGRAVINGS.

A new periodical, of a novel character, bearing the above application, will be commenced on the beginning of January, 1836. While it will furnish its patrons with the leading features of the news of the day, its principal object will be to serve up a humorous compilation of the numerous lively and pungent sallies which are daily floating along the tide of Literature, and which, for the want of a proper channel for their preservation, are positively lost to the Reading world. Original wits and humorists of our time will here have a medium devoted to the faithful record of the effusions of their genius. It is not necessary to detail the many attractions which this journal will possess, as the publisher will furnish a specimen number to every person who desires it—(those out of the city, will forward their orders, postage paid)—He pledges himself that no exertions on his part shall be wanting to make each succeeding number superior in every respect to the preceding ones.

The Salmagundi will be printed on large imperial paper, equal in size and quality to that which is at present used for the Gentleman's Vade Mecum. It is calculated that it will contain more than will be furnished to the patrons of this Journal in one year—these, in addition to an extensive and choice selection of Satire, Criticism, Humour and Wit, to be circulated through its columns, will form a Literary Banquet of a superior and attractive order; and the publisher relies with perfect confidence on the liberality of the American public, and the spirit and tact with which this expensive undertaking will be prosecuted, to bear him successfully and profitably along with it.

The terms of The Salmagundi will be two dollars per annum, payable invariably to advance. No paper will be furnished unless this stipulation is strictly adhered to. ☞ Clubs of three will be supplied with the paper for one year, by forwarding a five dollar note, postage paid. Clubs of seven will be supplied for the same term, by forwarding a ten dollar note. ☞ The papers that are sent out of the city will be carefully packed in strong envelopes, to prevent their rubbing in the mail.

☞ The Salmagundi will be published as ultimate weeks—otherwise it would be impossible to procure the numerous Embellishments which each number will contain—and the general interest it will afford must be enhanced by this arrangement.

☞ All orders must come postage paid.
