A DONE OVER DEMAGOGUE.

Peter Brush was in a dilapidated condition—out at elbows, out at knees, out of pockets out of spirits, and out in the street, 'an out and outer' in every respect. He sat upon the curb stone, leaning his head upon his hand, his elbow being placed upon a stepping stone.—Mr. Brush had for some time been silent, absorbed in deep thought; which he relieved by spitting through his teeth, formed into the gutter. At length, heaving a deep sigh, he spoke. 'They used to tell me put not your trust in princes—and I hav'nt None of 'em never wanted to borrow nothing of me. Princes! pooh! put not your trust in politicianers! them's my sentiment. There's no two mediums about that.—Hav'nt I been serving my country this five years, like a patriot; going to meetings and huzzaing my daylights out, and getting as blue as blazes; hav'nt I plocked the windows, got licked fifty times, carried I don't know how many black eyes and broken noses, for the good of my commonwealth, and the popularity of our illegal rights, and all for what! Why for nix. If any good is have come out of it, the country has put the whole of it in her pocket, and swindled me out of my earnings. I can't get no office!—Republics is ungrateful, I did'nt want no reward for my services. I only wanted to be took care of, and have nothing to do; and I've only got half nothing to do! Being took care of was the main thing. Republics is ungrateful, I'm swaggered if they ain't!' 'Come with me,' said Charley, helping him along I'll take care of you.—But what made you a politicianer—hav'nt you a good trade?' 'Trade! yes; but what's a trade, when a feller's got a soul—a whole soul? Trade! I loved my country to take care of me.—Head-works is the trade I'm made for—for talking that's my line. Talking in the oyster cellars—in the bar rooms—any where. I can talk all day, only stepping for meals, and to wet my whistle.

But parties is all alike, I've been all sides, fired 'em, and know 'em—none of 'em gave me any thing, and I've a mind to knock off and call it half a day.'—Knickerbocker.

GRISPING OLD GARMENTS INTO NEW.—Sir George Head, in his Tour through the Manufacturing Districts, gives the following account of a new trade carried on at Dewsbury: Literally tearing in pieces fusty old rags, collected from Scotland, Ireland, and the Continent, by a machine called a 'devil,' till a substance very like the original wool is reproduced. This, by the help of a small addition of new wool is respun and manufactured into sundry useful coarse articles, such as the 'wadding' which Messrs. Sulze and Co. introduce within the collars of their fashionable coats, and various descriptions of druggets, horse-sheeting &c. The trade or occupation of the late owner, his life and habits, or the filthiness and antiquity of the garment itself, oppose no bar to this wonderful progress of regeneration; whether from the scaffold or the gibbet, it makes no difference; so that, according to the transmutation of human affairs, it no doubt frequently does happen, without figure of speech or metaphor, that the identical garment to-day exposed to the sun and rain in a Kentish cherry-orchard, or saturated with tobacco-smoke on the back of a beggar in a poor-house, is doomed in its turn, perfumes, liquids odoriferous,' to grace the swelling collar or add dignified proportion to the chest of the dandy.—Old flannel petticoats, serge and bunting, are not only unrivalled and brought to their original thread by the claws of the devil, but this machine, by the way, simply a series of cylinders armed with iron hooks, effectually, it is said, pulls to pieces and separates the pitch mark of the sheep's back,—which latter operation really is a job worthy of the very devil himself. Those who delight in matters of speculation have here an ample field, provided they feel inclined to extend their researches on this doctrine of the transmigration of coats; for their imagination would have room to range in unfettered flight, even from the blazing galaxy of a regal drawing-room down to the night cellars and lowest haunts of London, Germany, Poland, Portugal, &c., as well as probably even to other countries visited by the plague. But as such considerations would only tend to put a man out of conceit with his own coat, or afflict some of my fair friends with an antipathy to flannel altogether, they are much better let alone. * * It is really extraordinary to observe, on taking a portion of shoddy in hand as it comes from the mill, the full extent of its transmutation—how perfectly the disentanglement of the filament has been effected; although, notwithstanding its freshened appearance, time and temperance must have inevitably brought it nearer to the period of ultimate decay.

Absence of Mind.—The Boston Transcript relates the following specimen of absence of mind.—A boarder at the Quackinbob hotel on retiring to rest, in a state of "betweenity," put his boots to bed, and placing his neck in the jack, pulled his head off!

LATEST FROM THE SOUTH.

Charleston papers to the 22d inclusive, and New Orleans of the 11th, were received yesterday by the steam packet lines.

The Charleston Courier of the 22d instant states, on the authority of an officer who left Columbus on the 19th, that all the troops, with the exception of two companies, have left Fort Mitchell for Tuskeegee. Major Lomax's batalion left on the 17th, the Marines, under Col. Henderson, on the 19th, and the Washington Volunteers on the 20th. A detachment of Marines, under Col. Miller, are encamped on the Federal Road, 15 miles from Columbus. The 4th Artillery, commanded by Lt Col. Brooks, are encamped 30 miles from Columbus and 12 miles from Tuskeegee. Mounted men from a portion of each detachment, have been furnished as escorts to the mails, and the neighborhood has been so effectually scoured that no danger may be apprehended. The battle of Chickhatchee, fought on the 24 instant, by the regiment of Col. Beall and the friendly Indians, under the direction of Gen. Scott, has probably terminated the war. They have returned to Columbus. It is the opinion of Tom Carr (to whom too much praise cannot be awarded) that the discomfited Indians will not attempt to go to Florida, but will return to Fort Mitchell, and surrender to Gen. Fenwick.

A letter from the Post Master at Columbus, under date of 15th July says—

"You can, after the receipt of this, forward all the Mails for the West on this route, as usual. The road between Columbus and Tuskeegee, which had been seriously injured by the Indians, has been repaired so as to admit the passage of the stages. Two military posts have been established on the Mail route, and, in addition to the regular troops at these posts, mounted escorts are furnished to accompany the Mails through the nation. Individuals desirous of passing to the West, can travel the Mail route with perfect safety, either in the stages or in private carriages, as the road is literally lined with troops."

At a public meeting of the citizens of [illegible] was

Resolved, That this meeting concur in opinion with the Chamber of Commerce, that it is expedient to the commercial and agricultural interests of South Carolina, to apply for an Agency to the Bank of the United States for the purposes of Exchange, to be established in this city.

The Mobile papers of the 13th report the health of that city to be good.

A letter from Augusta, Geo. under date of 16th instant, says:—"Information has reached us that 500 Indians have escaped from the troops at Fort Mitchell, and fled to the swamps. Our troops had a fight with them, and we were beaten off."

The Texian government has declared that the bounties of lands granted to volunteers shall be as follows:—

"To all who are now in service and shall continue in service faithfully during the war 1280 acres.

"To all who have served faithfully, or who shall have served faithfully for a period, not less than six months, 640 acres.

"To all who shall have served faithfully for a period not less than three months 320 acres.

"To all who shall have entered service previous to the first day of next July, and shall continue in service faithfully during the war provided the war shall continue for a period more than six months, 960 acres.

"To all who shall enter the service after the first day of next July, a quantity proportioned to their service and to be hereafter determined.

The appointment of Major General and Commander-in-chief of the Texian army has been conferred upon M. B. Lamar, late Secretary of State. Brigadier Gen Rusk retires from the field to the cabinet.

End news for the Barbers.—The following advertisement appears in the late numbers of the London Courier:—"To shave without a razor water has been deemed impossible; the newly invented Axyrite will, however, effectually supercede the old plan, and be found to possess most extraordinary advantages.—To the sportsman or traveller, the nervous or near sighted, it is invaluable, its operation being safe, easy and expeditious. It may be used whilst walking, riding, or sailing; is cleanly, durable, and economical.

A crazy man named Samuel Bridge, from Philadelphia, arrived in Washington last week, and with all dignity drove up to the President's house, alighted, walked in, and demanded possession.—Subsequently he called upon the Secretary of the Treasury for the keys, and then proceeded to the house of the Secretary of the Senate, for the purpose of making arrangements for calling an extra session of the Senate! He says it is the wish of the people of Philadelphia that he should assume the duties of President of the United States. He was taken up and committed for safe keeping.—Alex. Gaz.

A PAIR OF PRESIDENTS.

Upon its being yesterday, mentioned, in the hearing, of our friend Gildibus, that the President had signed the deposite bill, this remark was made—'Yes, great men see great things in the same light. President Santa Anna, when a prisoner after the defeat and slaughter of his army, says with much coolness—'I have concluded to remain a prisoner with the enemy.'—So President Jackson, observing that the deposite bill passed both Houses of Congress, by a majority of more than three to one, where by the veto was totally vetoed, concluded to give it his sanction. He surrendered to the force he could not resist.—There is point in the comparison.—Louisville Journal.

A Sign in North Carolina.—The Wilmington (N. C.) advertiser, has been sold out by its former, Van Buren editor, Mr. Thomas Loring, to Mr. Joshua W. Cochran,—who will make it, as it should be, an Anti Van Buren Journal. Mr. Loring says he first tried to sell the Advertiser to those who would publish a neutral paper—but none would buy.—He then tried to dispose of it to his Van Buren friends—but they were afraid, it seems, that they would not be able to get a tolerable support. So at last he had to dispose of it to Mr. Cochran, who will support the cause of the people.

Col. Benton.—This noisy, roaring empty-headed partisan, who has been the Jupiter Tonans of demagogues for some time past, is about to be cut by his party. The New York Times thus whistles the poor devil down the wind:

"It was an unfortunate circumstance for the country that the only antagonist plan to this was the wild and extravagant one of Mr. Benton, which went to require not only immediate appropriation greatly exceeding the amount in the treasury, but to involve the necessity of inestimable and limitless expense hereafter. Mr. Benton's ultraism has within [illegible] influence"—Albany Daily Adv.

From the Atlas.

PROSPECTS AT HOME.

From all that we can learn from every quarter, we are convinced that the Whig ticket will succeed in this State at the coming election by a much increased majority. The rejection of Governor Everett by the Van Buren portion of the Antimasonic party, and their denunciations, have elevated him in the opinion of all honest men, and given him new strength. The infamous course pursued during the last session by the Van Buren leaders in Congress, has disgusted the reading, thinking and intelligent people of Massachusetts. The fact that all our delegation in both branches of the National Legislature—by whatever party elected, and whatever political principles professing—have gone uniformly together on all important subjects—and against the measures of Mr. Van Buren—speaks trumpet tongued to an enlightened constituency.

How does it happen that Mr. Borden, Mr. Jackson, and Mr. Adams—two of whom at least have been claimed as Jackson men,—have yet in every instance, without any important exception, voted against the measures of the administration, and with their Whig colleagues? No man not even Mr. Wise or Mr. Peyton—has inveighed with greater severity against Mr. Van Buren and his policy, than Mr. Adams. No man has pursued a course more consistently sustained on Whig principles than Mr. Borden. No Whig in the State is more thoroughly a Whig, or a more ardent friend of Daniel Webster, than Mr. Jackson. And why is it that we hear no complaints among their constituents, that they have failed to act as it was intended they should act? Why do not the Van Buren journals in this State speak out boldly against the recreant administration men who always vote with the Whigs? Why do they not remind Mr. Adams that he denounced the Whigs as destitute of all principles—and that he has, notwithstanding, sustained all their measures? Why do they not remind Mr Borden that he was elected in opposition to the Whigs, and that he has notwithstanding, always thrown Whig votes? Is it not because the course of these gentlemen is sustained by the public opinion of the State! Is it not because the Whig policy is the truest policy, and the best policy of the country—and is so universally received by the people of Massachusetts?

It is not possible that our people should sustain Whig principles and Whig measures, without sustaining Whig candidates. We think that the course of all our Congressional delegation is in the highest degree honorable to them and the State. It is so considered throughout the country. They have sustained ample appropriations for defence—they have sustained, in its broadest sense, the right of petition—they have sustained the attempted redress of Indian Grievances—they have sustained the distribution
