EASTON, (MD.)

Saturday Morning, July 1.

WHIG CONVENTION.

Persuant to public notice the delegates selected to meet in convention, to nominate a suitable person to represent the congressional district of Cecil, Kent, Queen Anns, Talbot and Caroline counties, in the Congress of the United States, assembled at Centreville, on Saturday 24th of June, when James B. Ricaud of Kent, was called to the chair, and William Hemsley of Queen Anns, appointed Secretary.

On motion, Resolved, That the Hon. James A. Pearce, by his able and efficient course as the late representative of this congressional district, merits the confidence of the people, and this Convention therefore unanimously recommend him, as eminently entitled to the zealous support of the district at the ensuing election.

Resolved, That a committee of one from each County be appointed to notify by letters, the Hon. James A. Pearce, of his nomination. The following gentlemen compose said committee.

Messrs H. L. Edmondsen, of Talbot.
W. B. Wilmer, Kent.
H. Hollingsworth, Cecil.
William Orrell, Caroline.
John C. Ruth, Queen Ann's.

Resolved, That this Convention recommend to the Whigs of the several Counties in the second Congressional district, to hold County Meetings, and that the Hon. James A. Pearce, be requested to attend.

Resolved, That the thanks of the members of this convention be tendered to the Chairman and Secretary.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this Convention be published in the Whig papers of this district.

JAMES B. RICAUD, Chairman.
William Hemsley, Secretary.

All Aback.—The Van Buren Convention, which met at Centreville, on the 20th ult. and nominated Gen. Foreman, as their candidate for this congressional district it appears have to do their work over again the General declining to stand a poll. We presume as they cant get a General, they will be obliged to put up with a Colonel.

We were presented by our neighbour, Mr. Firbanks, a few days since, with a beet which measured 10¼ inches in circumference, weighed 3 lbs and 2 oz's. at 2 months one week growth.

THE CROPS.—The Norfolk Herald of Saturday says—"The farmers are now busy with their scythes. It is the beginning of the wheat harvest, and the work goes merrily on. The neighboring counties of North Carolina—Currituck, Camden, Pasquotank, Perquimans, &c. have fine wheat grounds and industrious husbandmen. They calculate on 50 per cent. above an average crop.

The Wheeling Times of Saturday last the 24st ult. says:—"The prospects of the growing crop in sections of the country, where they were, early in the season, the most unpromising, now bid fair for an average return. In this vicinity, the prospects for an abundant crop of grass, oats, rye and wheat, were never better."

THE EX PRESIDENT.

The Nashville Union of June 13th contains a long communication under the signature of Andrew Jackson, purporting to be a review by that personage, of the testimony of Judge White before Mr. Wise's Investigating Committee. This precious document occupies nearly twelve columns of the Nashville Union, and has a tail piece of about half that length, consisting of various certificates, got up after the usual fashion of the professed author.—The Baltimore Patriot says, there is not a true friend of the Ex-President who will not find in this mission a source of abundant mortification—utterly destitute as it is of a single passage or a single expression on which a candid and reflecting mind can dwell with any degree of respect or complacency. In its tedious diffuseness, low party slang, paltry sophistry, and malignant vituperation, it is like the rest of the Kitchen literature; and it is evidently the production of one of that abandoned cabal, who controlled Gen. Jackson when President, by ministering to his vanity, his passions, and his prejudices; and who now make use of his animosity towards Judge White, to subserve the purposes of Mr. Van Buren in Tennessee. Our readers will bear in mind that this reply to Judge White was promised in march last, but it has been kept back three months, & is now brought forward on the eve of the Congressional and Gubernatorial Elections, in the hope that its misrepresentations and aspersions may have full effect, before time is afforded to refute them. Of the degree of credit which is to be attached to these statements, some notion may be derived from the fact that General Jackson is here made to affix his signature to the declaration that neither Gen. Eaton nor Mr. Van Buren had any expection of filling any situation in the public service after resigning their places in his first Cabinet!! Credat Judæus!

With respect to all the points to which Judge White's evidence refers, the case is left exactly as it was before. It is a question of veracity between the Judge and Gen. Jackson, or rather the unprincipled crew, who manufacture statements to suit their own wishes and designs and induce him to take the responsibility of their authorship. We believe the cabal might as well have spared themselves the trouble of this publication. No man of ordinary information will ever believe that General Jackson wrote it; and people of a different class, will not, we apprehend be found studying so lengthy a paper

REFLECTIONS, No. I.

When we contemplate the glorious perfections of Deity which are exhibited to us in Creation, Providence, and Grace, we are compelled to admire, if not to adore, 'the great first cause of all things.' Creation truly displays omnipotence actuated by mercy, and directed by wisdom, with an awful immensity of space in which to perform those stupendous works of Creative energy. We admire the skill of the Architects, which is exhibited in the ruins of Balbec, Palmyra, the temple at Jerusalem, and the more modern and chaste buildings of London, Paris, &c. &c., but in a few centuries at most those magnificent works of art, 'will dissolve, and like the baseless fabric of a vision, leave not a wreck behind.' But the workmanship of God, after the lapse of almost six thousand years, shows no marks of decay, every part continues unimpaired, and each succeeding day developes new beauties to the contemplative mind. These considerations ought to lead man to reflect on the transitory scenes of mortality, as far too trivial for the noble intellectual faculties with which man is graciously endowed, and turn his thoughts to consider the permanent scenes beyond the boundaries of time. Creation speaks in a language understood by all the posterity of Adam that this power and Godhead of the Deity are Eternal.' But the devout astronomer, contemplating with a philosophic eye, the overwhelming maghitude of the innumerable orbs rolling through the illimitable regions of ether, hears them proclaim, in their harmonious dance. 'The hand that made us is Divine.'

When we consider again the continual kindness of God in so liberally providing for the innumerable wants of mankind, and out of his rich store house supplying all his need, here the perfections of Deity are as gloriously displayed as in the more stupendous works of Creation: Not only are the various wants supplied of eight hundred millions of the human family; but from the rich, and inexhaustable treasury of Heaven, are all the wants of animated nature liberally satisfied. The Elephant, the most despicable insect in the estimation of puny mortals, and even the smallest animalcule which inhabits the water, are all the peculiar objects of the Great Creator's kindness.—He who hears the 'young ravens when they cry,' and kindly listens to their petitions to supply them with necessary food; will he not much more liberally provide for all the wants of the human family. While the subjects of the King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, are faithfully attached to his cause, and continue obedient to his commandments, every thing will be provided for them temporally and spiritually, requisite to render their lives happy, their deaths triumphant, and their eternity glorious. Therfore one of the most gracious precepts of Heaven, is, 'seek yo first the kingdom of God and his righteousness,' and all these things shall be added; that is by complying with this kind request, all other favors will be added necessary to render man happy in time and in eternity.

With what lustre do the perfections of Deity shine in such gracious promises as are contained in the blessed gospel of our adorable Saviour, assuring all things requisite for the innumerable wants of so many millions of living creatures. In animated nature, whether in air, earth, or water, the thousands of species of animals, differ in food, and clothing: yet the Providence of God is so great, and his wisdom so infinite, that he adapts their food and clothing, according to the nature of each species in the frozen regions near the North pole, the milder regions of the temperate climes, and in the burning sands of the torrid zone.—How great and marvellous are thy ways, O thou King of Saints! Thy store house is inexhaustable—Thy treasury is always replenished—Thy goodness is bounded only by the bottomless pit—Thy mercy endureth for ever!

Thy Providence my life sustain'd,
And all my wants redress'd,
While in the silent womb I lay,
And hung upon the breast.

To all my weak complaints and cries,
Thy mercy lent an ear;
Ere yet my feeble thoughts had learn'd
To form themselves in prayer.

PLANTAGENET.

Arkansas.—This State has lost the use of her portion of the Surplus Revenue, in consequence of the negligence of the State Treasurer. He had drafts on the Agricultural Bank of Natchez, for $135,000, which he happened to be too late in presenting. He has proceeded to Washington to ascertain whether the government can afford relief.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

At a meeting of the American Institute of the City of New-York, held at Clinton Hall, in said city, on the 18th day of May, 1837.—it was Resolved, 1st. That the present condition of our commercial community generally is that of the most painful embarrassment, and that the distress is rapidly extending to all the other occupations and departments of productive industry, and that thousands of our most industrious and useful citizens have been dismissed by their employers, and their wages, the sole reliance for their daily food, their clothing and habitations have within a few days been entirely cut off.

2d. That it is of vital importance, that the causes of this wide spread distress should be early and fully understood, so that remedies, as far as practicable, may be provided for existing evils, and preventitives to guard against future evils.

3d. That, in the opinion of this Institute, the multitude of discordant views promulgated, in relation to the causes of our present disastrous condition, have led to popular errors, that have in a measure turned the public mind from the accumulating debt in favor of foreign nations, which the repeal of countervailing protective duties has swelled against us, which is now pressing on our banks, and incapacitating them from administering relief to their suffering customers.

4th. That the only way to correct the public mind, and restore confidence, regularity and prosperity, is by the dissemination of correct knowledge among the people, as to the prominent causes of our embarrassment, and by producing a general concert of action in applying suitable remedies.

5th. It was also resolved, That a General Convention of representatives from all the productive portions of our country, without distinction of parties, for the purpose of a full and candid exchange of sentiments, and a thorough investigation of cause and effect, and concert in action, would greatly conduce to a favourable state of things, and, it is hoped, hereafter may prevent the recurrence of those evils with which we are now visited; and that it be recommended, that the said convention be held at Philadelphia, in the state of Pennsylvania, on the first Tuesday of August, 1837, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and that it consist of business men, selected from the productive classes, and that they continue, by adjournment, to meet until the desired object be attained.

6th. It was further Resolved, That, as the American Institute was incorpolated to encourage agriculture commerce, manufactures, and the arts, in this state and the United States, it is peculiarly appropriate, that it should recommend and forward such measures as are calculated to advance the great interests of industry, and produce a sound and healthy state of things; and especially on occasions like the present, when the banks acknowledge their inability to supply the requisite circulating medium, and every occupation is experiencing the most intense suffering.

7th. It was finally resolved, That, in order to render this convention effective, and procure a full representation of business men, delegates be invited from all the states—the cotton growing as well as the grain growing, manufacturing, and commercial—from cities, counties, towns, and agricultural societies, incorporated manufacturing and mechanic associations, as well as rail road and canal companies, and that a committee be appointed, on behalf of this Institute, to consult with the friends of national industry, and solicit the concurrence of all those friendly to the foregoing objects, and that meetings be held at an early day, to elect delegates to respond to this recommendation; and that suitable papers be prepared and published in order to give publicity to the convention and its objects, and to impress on all interested the necessity of general attendance, concert and co-operation.
