ally inter that man when he came out of the hands of his Creator, was pure and holy uncontaminated with sin and transgression. We have the authority of the Great I AM to sustain us in this inference: For, after the Creation of man, and being viewed by the keen inspection of him who never erred, he was pronounced to be 'very good.' His intellectual faculties were unclouded. His rational powers clear; his judgment correct; and every principle of the soul unpolluted by iniquity His affections were pure and unwaveringly fixed on God, the author of his existence: And to use the copious expression of St. Paul, his 'whole soul, and body, and spirit,' were entirely free from all moral, as well as natural evil.

In every respect he was perfect, and well enabled to serve God perfectly without a Saviour, Redeemer, or an intercessor in the court above. No seeds of iniquity were found in his nature from which transgression could arise. If, therefore, no subtle enemy had been found to seduce him from his allegiance to God, his Creator, Governor, and consequently his lawgiver, he would never probably have transgressed the authority of Heaven, but he and his posterity would have remained untiringly attached to their God, and of course privations, sickness, afflictions, wars and rumors of wars with all the concomitants of sin, would never have been known in our part of Creation, but universal peace and unabated felicity would have continued the portion of man forever.

But man's first disobedience, and the fruit.
Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world, and all our wo,
With loss of Eden.'

'Moses, who informs us, that God created man in his own image, and after his likeness, soon casts a shade upon his original dignity, by giving us a lamentable account of his fall. He represents him after his disobedience as a criminal under sentence of death; a wretch filled with guilt, shame, dread and horror; a vagabond turned out of a lost paradise with a cursed wilderness, where all bears the stamp of desolation for his sake.'

By this awful fall the body of man became subject to pain, diseases, and death with all the natural evils peculiar to mortality: his intellectual faculties were completely wrecked; the noble powers of his mind entirely prostrated. Previously to his fall his understanding was so unclouded, his conceptions so clear that when the Creator required him to name the various living creatures brought to him, he appears to have named them according to their nature. 'And Adam gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field. And whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.' But after the 'fatal transgression,' what gross darkness enveloped his whole soul! his will was stubborn, and directly as well as unceasingly opposed to the government of his God. The puisne arm of mortality was raised in rebellion against Heaven, and his actions then declared that he would not have God to rule over him; and this wilful opposition to the laws of the Governor of the Universe, is still alarmingly exhibited by the conduct of his posterity. His understanding, or as Locke defines it, 'exact comprehension' was so darkened that he appears incapable of discerning the attributes of God. Omniscience was eclipsed from the view of his mind, and he endeavored to screen himself behind the trees of the garden, from the inspection of the Omnipresent Deity.

In the place of love to God filling Adam's heart, hatred to his service, and rebellion against his laws, pervaded his whole soul. The wrath of Heaven began to kindle against him. The thunder of God's justice rolled in horrible peals ready to burst upon his guilty head. The direful lightning of a sin avenging God, gleaming from the throne of the Eternal, horribly glared around his guilty soul. The sword of Divine retribution was drawn from the scabbard, and waving in direful gleam, visible to the eye of the mind, with flaming characters legibly inscribed upon its awful blade, 'THE SOUL THAT SINNETH IT SHALL DIE.' The father of the human family looked upwards, and there he beheld the frowns of Heaven; he looked downwards and the sepulchre opened her voracious jaws to receive his polluted body; he looked forward and an awful flaming lake of fire and brimstone, waiting his reception, to engulph his soul for ever.

PLANTAGENET.

NEW WHEAT.—We saw on Saturday evening a sample of very beautiful wheat of the new crop, which has been sent from Virginia to Messrs. W McDonald & Co: Its quality was remarkably fine, and reminded us of what we had been accustomed to see in past years of full crops. We hope we may not be mistaken in regarding this sample as an earnest of the excellent quality of the crop of the present year, the yield of which, taking the country at large, promises to be but little short of a fair average.—American.

LATEST FROM MEXICO.

By schr. Cora, Captain Delvaille, left Matamoras on the 14th June, private letters have been received which state that the appearance of the American fleet off that port, had created considerable alarm amongst the inhabitants, who fearful of an attack had packed up all their valuables for a move 1000 troops, with two twenty four pounders, were ordered to hold themselves in readiness for immediate service in case of an attack. This fear was happily dispelled by General Filisola and the American Consul, who repaired together on board the Constellation, Com. Dallas's flag ship, where matters were adjusted satisfactorily.

The Government troops had an engagement with Montezuma, and completely defeated him, as we are informed; in that case, by the next arrivals, a good supply of specie may be here expected.

Commodore Dallas has forwarded dispatches to the U. S. Government.

It was thought the Julius Cæsar would not be released, being a lawful prize, as she had munitions of war on board.

Nothing had transpired in regard to the probable fate of the Champion.

THE GREAT SHIP.

It is announced, officially, in the Army and Navy Chronicle, that the United States ship of the line PENNSYLVANIA, which has been on the stocks at the Navy Yard in Philadelphia; since the year 1813, will be launched on Tuesday, the 18th of July, at 3 o'clock P. M.

LIVING ON SMALL MEANS.

A correspondent of the Salem Gazette gives the following as the substance of Dr. Alcott's last work.

'For breakfast, eat two cents worth of dried apples without drink. For dinner, drink a quart of water, to swell the apples. Take tea with a friend."

A Specie-paying Bank.—A merchant of this city having received a check of $10 on the Brooklyn Bank, being for money deposited before the suspension of specie payments, presented it day before yesterday at the Bank, with a demand for specie. The Bank would neither pay specie, nor its own bills. The check was sent a second time to the Bank, but with the same result. Yet this is a Bank which pretends not to have suspended specie payments. Neither have we. We paid out out a silver sixpence yesterday.—N. Y. J. Com.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life, on the 30th of June last, near Hillsborough, Caroline County, Mrs Eliza Knotts, consort of Mr. David Knotts, and daughter of Mr. Spedden Orem, of Talbot County, aged 53 years. She was one of the most amiable of women, a sincere friend, a devoted wife, and a kind mistress. She imbibed in early life the religious sentiments of her venerable father, who is a firm Methodist. The love of God in a worlds salvation from sin, as demonstrated by the death of Jesus Christ was a theme on which she loved to dwell, it gave her abundant support in the hour of trial, it enabled her to endure afflictions with a patience worthy of all praise, and bore her out to the last As she lived in the enjoyment of that truth, which maketh free so she died in possession of that peace which the world can neither give nor take away.

Her funeral was attended at the residence of her father, in Ferry Neck, on Sunday the 2d inst. A very large assemblage attended the mournful occasion, and testified by their presence and sympathies, the deep interest they felt in the solemnities of the occasion, and high esteem in which the deceased and the bereaved family were held —The Rev. Peter Tarr delivered a discourse to the afflicted family, and simpathizing multitude. Lasting friendship will hollow the spot where she reposes. Her memory is embalmed in the cherished recollections of those who knew her worth; and her husband will long remember so faithful a consort.

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION NEATLY & EXPEDITIOUSLY EXECUTED AT THIS OFFICE.

WOOD & TIMBER LAND WANTED.

The subscriber has occasion to ascertain if it be practicable to obtain some thousand acres of

on the navigable waters of the Chesapeake bay. Persons having such to dispose of, will please address me, stating the number of acres, how much of it in wood and whether any timber and the description of both the nearest and the most distant point of either, from sloop navigation—the probable number cords of wood within a given distance from the landing; the proportion of the land cleared and ploughable, with a general description of the soil and the improvements—though these are of less importance, as wood and timber, especially the former, are the chief objects—also state with precision how little money will be demanded in hand and how long a time for the balance to be paid in instalments and again, for what price per annum negro men may be hired in the neighborhood, and what are the current prices paid for cutting per cord, pine and oak.

Answers to this cannot be too particular on all points, and the writers may be assured that while it will be best to state at once the lowest price per acre—no use will be made of the information to the detriment of the party should it not end in a sale.

Proposals will be received for the smallest tracts, provided there be wood enough convenient to navigation, to make it an object, it may be well when there is cleared land and improvements, to state what the land has rented or would rent for.

STEAM MILL, AT EASTON POINT,

The proprietors of the Steam Mill at Easton Point, have the pleasure of informing the public and the friends of the establishment that they have attached to the Mill a

CORN CRUSHING MACHINE,

those persons therefore who may wish to have their Corn Crushed in the Ear (or plaster of their ground,) we assure them it can be done in the best manner, with great dispatch and little cost to the Customers, compared with the great advantage derived from feeding stock in that manner. They also take the liberty of informing the public that their machinery for cleansing and manufacturing wheat into flower, is in complete order. Any individual sending one hundred or more bushels of wheat to the mill, can have it ground and put up in the best order for market without any other charge than the ordinary toll for grinding.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

At a meeting of the American Institute of the City of New-York, held at Clinton Hall, in said city, on the 18th day of May, 1837.—it was Resolved, 1st. That the present condition of our commercial community generally is that of the most painful embarrassment, and that the distress is rapidly extending to all the other occupations and departments of productive industry, and that thousands of our most industrious and useful citizens have been dismissed by their employers, and their wages, the sole reliance for their daily food, their clothing and habitations have within a few days been entirely cut off.

2d. That it is of vital importance, that the causes of this wide spread distress should be early and fully understood, so that remedies as far as practicable, may be provided for existing evils, and preventitives to guard against future evils.

3d. That, in the opinion of this Institute, the multitude of discordant views promulgated in relation to the causes of our present disastrous condition, have led to popular errors, that have in a measure turned the public mind from the accumulating debt in favor of foreign nations, which the repeal of countervailing protective duties has swelled against us, which is now pressing on our banks, and incapacitating them from administering relief to their suffering customers.

4th. That the only way to correct the public mind, and restore confidence, regularity and prosperity, is by the dissemination of correct knowledge among the people, as to the prominent causes of our embarrassment, and by producing a general concert of action in applying suitable remedies.

5th. It was also resolved, That a General Convention of representatives from all the productive portions of our country, without distinction of parties, for the purpose of a full and candid exchange of sentiments, and a thorough investigation of cause and effect, and concert in action, would greatly conduce to a favourable state of things, and, it is hoped, hereafter may prevent the recurrence of those evils with which we are now visited; and that it be recommended, that the said convention be held at Philadelphia, in the state of Pennsylvania, on the first Tuesday of August, 1837, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and that it consist of business men, selected from the productive classes, and that they continue, by adjournment, to meet until the desired object be attained.

6th. It was further Resolved, That, as the American Institute was incorporated to encourage agriculture, commerce, manufactures, and the arts, in this state and the United States, it is peculiarly appropriate, that it should recommend and forward such measures as are calculated to advance the great interests of industry, and produce a sound and healthy state of things; and especially on occasions like the present, when the banks acknowledge their inability to supply the requisite circulating medium, and every occupation is experiencing the most intense suffering.

7th. It was finally resolved, That, in order to render this convention effective, and procure a full representation of business men, delegates be invited from all the states—the cotton growing as well as the grain growing, manufacturing, and commercial—from cities, counties, towns, and agricultural societies, incorporated manufacturing and mechanic associations, as well as rail road and canal companies, and that a committee be appointed, on behalf of this Institute, to consult with the friends of national industry, and solicit the concurrence of all those friendly to the foregoing objects, and that meetings be held at an early day, to elect delegates to respond to this recommendation; and that suitable papers be prepared and published, in order to give publicity to the convention and its objects, and to impress on all interested the necessity of general attendance, concert and co-operation.
