PUBLIC MEETING.

There will be a public meeting held in Easton on TUESDAY 18th inst. when the Hon. James A. Pearce is expected to address the people, It is hoped Mr. Evans will also attend.

Easton, July 8.

The Citizens of the Bay-Side district, are informed that there will be a Fish Feast at the Broad Creek Neck Meeting House, on Thursday next, 20th of July.

It is expected that Mr. Pearce, will on that occasion visit his fellow citizens of that district. Our Whig friends generally are invited to attend.

MANY CITIZENS.

July 15

We published in large type, a Whig meeting to be held in Easton, on Tuesday next, 18th July, & invited Mr Evans to attend upon the occasion. Strange to tell the press over the way mistook or misrepresented the day of meeting—informed its readers that Tuesday last, was the day and that it was impossible for the Van Buren Candidate, Mr. Evans, to get the notice in time to attend—and doubted our sincerity in inviting him. We advise the Editor to look sharper in future before he spends so much breath. We assure him we were sincere in desiring the attendance of Mr Evans. We are curious to hear his vindication of his course in the electoral college, in September last; and his reasons for treasonably endeavoring to stop the wheels of our government. He, with eighteen other men, on that occasion did a deed that will go down with infamy to posterity—and deservedly so—for history furnishes no darker plot against the rights and privileges of a confiding people.—How do the people of this district know but this learned Theban, John Evans—this profound constitutional lawyer, not rocked in the cradle of 1776, but the treasonable one of September 1836, may refuse to enter congress, if they are even mad enough to elect him—He may require a pledge from Congress that it will not charter another 'monster,' or else his highness will not enter that body. We were willing that this corps of nineteen should float down the tide of time, with the silent odium they so richly merit and have received from the people—and for ourselves intended not to disturb their unenvied quiet—But when we see one of them, John Evans of Cecil county, placing himself before the people of this district, in times like the present, for their suffrages, we cannot repress our indignant feelings—Him, whom the sight of his native state without government or laws—(the first of the old glorious thirteen in such a predicament) —about to be plunged in anarchy and confusion—moved not—who at such a time prefered party to country, how can it be expected that in times like the present—when rain stalks through the land and the stoutest are appalled, that such a man can meet such a crisis! The idea is futile—he has not mind—he has not soul—he has not patriotism enough—and we entreat the people not to confide their interests in such a quarter—but to be warned and take wisdom from experience.

We perceive that the plain and undeniable statement made in our last paper, in answer to the false attack of the Van Buren print of this town, upon Mr. Pearce, has roused the choler of its doughty Editor. He exhibits all the impatience and virulence of the slanderer when laid bare to public scorn. His last article is a complete abandonment of the charge against Mr. Pearce and leaves us nothing to attempt in his vindication. We do not know that the praise of even candour in the retraction of error is due the Editor; for there was no denying or cavilling with black and white—and Mr. Pearce's language stood staring him in the face and contradicting his assertions.

That his wrath, at such exposure, should be roused and that ourselves should receive a small portion, is not surprising—Independent even of the cause of anger on this score, the bilious season approaches, and we presume the miasma of the stable yard begins to excite his bile. We therefore overlook all this, and place it to the proper account.

We could but smile at the ridiculous air of the young man in advising us to stick to our trade, or profession.—We presume from this, he intends resuming 'the sock and buskin,' and again to strut his busy hour upon the stage finding his new vocation does not suit his genius as well. We were brought up to the types and intend sticking at them; and therefore advise him to profit by his own advice given in his last paper to ourselves. We advise him further, hereafter when he gets articles written for him not to permit any Latin to be introduced.—It at once dispels the delusion of their being written by himself, which otherwise might possibly prevail.—Cause your writers to cling to their vernacular. We do not know of any other advice we have at present. We dont often notice the railings of that print—it is only when it attacks the reputation of some candidate, immediately before the people' and when possibly its statements unanswered might do harm, that we pay it the honor of a passing notice. This caused us to insert the article of Saturday last, and we have done with the matter.

☞The Lady's Book for July has just been received,—it has for the frontispiece two beautiful sketches, illustrating the poem of Fridolin, and contains a variety of interesting original matter, from some of out best authors.

KENTUCKEY ELECTIONS.—The contest for Congress in Kentucky is confined to three districts, last represented by Van Burenites. In the nine districts represented by Whigs the friends of the administration have deserted the field, scarcely making a show of opposition. In the other district, last represented by Mr. Hawes, (V. B.) the track is yielded to Mr. Rumsey, a staunch Whig, who walks over unopposed. Our friends are pretty confident of carrying another of the Van Buren districts, which was represented by Mr. French, and the appearances indicate that the Whigs will be successful in the others also. Thus giving to Kentucky an undivided Whig delegation.—Balt. Chron.

PARTY MOVEMENTS TO ARMS!

The wire workers of the Van Buren party have concluded to try to raise a military spirit to sustain the administration at the point of the bayonet! At a meeting held at Philadelphia it has been,

'Resolved, That the more effectually to uphold the Constitutional Government of our choice, and our love—to secure the rigid enforcing of the laws of Congress, &c. AND THE ORDERS OF THE EXECUTIVE, EITHER NOW ISSUED, OR WHICH MAY HEREAFTER BE ISSUED, &c. &c. we the SOVEREIGN PEOPLE do hold ourselves ready to ORGANIZE in this city and county of Philadelphia, a first volunteer legion of TEN THOUSAND MEN, to be as SHORTLY AS POSSIBLE FULLY ARMED AND EQUIPPED; the same to be called THE PHILADELPHIA UNITED STATES MINUTE MEN."

'Ten thousand men' 'fully armed and equipped,' 'to enforce the ORDERS OF THE EXECUTIVE, either now issued or which may hereafter be issued." Have we come to that?

DREADFEL ACCIDENT AND LOSS OF LIVES!

Correspondence of the Balt. Chronicle

Alexandria, Wednesday, July 12, 4 P. M.

The steam ferry boat lately built in Baltimore to ply between this place and the landing opposite here, on the Maryland side, commenced running this afternoon. A general invitation was given to the citizens to cross and return in her gratis—she had crossed & was about returning with a considerable number of persons on board, when the boiler collapsed—killing three persons, two women and one man, besides severely scalding several others. In the hurry and confusion incident thereto, the full particulars could not be learnt, nor the names of the persons injured.

Office of the Charleston Courier, July 9, 5 P. M.

Extensive Conflagration.—About a quarter past 3 o'clock yesterday morning, our citizens were aroused from their slumbers, to witness a destructive conflagration. It originated in a kitchen on the premises of Mrs. Clark, south side of Queen street, consumed the dwellings of that lady, & extended both eastwardly, & westwardly. The buildings to the east being of brick, the flames did not advance far in that direction, altho' the wind was westerly, but those to the west, being chiefly of wood, every building & out building were swept to the corner of King street, & down King street to the Quaker Meeting house inclusive, which was blown up. A long continued drought, with the thermometer ranging from 92 to 97, gave a power to the flames, which it was difficult to master. So great was the peril, that the goods were removed from Mr. Newhall's Dry Goods Store, at the N. E. corner of Queen street, and Mr. P. S. Chase's Shoe Store, adjoining in King street. More was accomplished by blowing up houses, than by the engines, as well from the combustible character of the buildings, as a scarcity of water. Five buildings and one out-building were blown up, and the operation was very creditably performed in every instance.

Such a fire well warranted the blowing up of houses in advance of the flames, and we feel well assured that had the shop at the corner of King and Queen streets been blown up, while the fire was yet two houses from it, the three brick buildings in King street, and the Quaker meeting house, which has so long lifted its modest little head among us, would have been saved. A little resolute assumption of responsibility, on such occasions, would be the wisest and truest economy. It is said that a negro belonging to Mr. Wm. Bell, got his arm injured on the occasion. We have heard of no other accident. Whether the fire was accidental or designed, is unknown.—Eight houses were destroyed by the fire.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The intelligence from England, is important. The American houses which are reported to have stopped are Thomas Wilson & Co, and Wiggins & Co. The account of their failure was received at Liverpool on the 2d June, the day before the sailing of the Oxford. The agent of the Wilsons in New York doubts the report of their failure, as he has received no such advices. Other accounts would seem to place their failure beyond doubt and state that their engagements were much reduced—and that the debts remaining against Wilson & Co. were £800,000, and against Wiggins £400,000. The determination of the Bank of England to render them no further assistance it is supposed was considerably influenced by the opinion which had come to be a good deal entertained, that the American merchants who had suspended payment, would appropriate all their means to their domestic creditors, and leave their foreign debts unpaid. This report no doubt had its origin from certain articles in the Globe in which that print seemed to advise such a course.

The next accounts from England will be looked to with deep interest. The lastest advices from this country in England at the time the Oxford sailed, were carried out by the Roscoe, which sailed from New York on the morning of Tuesday, May 9, the day before the suspension of specie payments by the Banks. The Roscoe carried out the news of the failure of the Dry Dock Bank, and the accounts of the general run on all the banks.

The accounts from the manufacturing districts are unfavorable We give extracts below from several papers:

Manchester.—Never since Manchester became the emporium of the cotton manufacture was trade in such a state It is useless to particularize any description of goods as being materially depressed, every thing shares the common ruin. The printers are nearly idle, and most of the mills are working short time. In the midst of all this, money is plentiful in the hands of bankers. The handloom weavers receiving lower wages than they did in the dullest of times. The only present prospect of improvement is from the belief that things cannot well be worse.—Manchester paper.

Distress.—We regret to state that the prospects of trade are daily assuming deeper gloom. The number of unemployed is daily on the increase, and now amounts to 1,570—This number would be very greatly increased but for the restrictions which the committee are constrained to impose. The total number suffering severe privations exceeds 15,000.—The soup kitchen has been in the active operations since Monday, producing daily from 650 to 700 quarts of soup served with a small quantity of bread to about 360 families.

It gives us pleasure to observe, in these dull times, that shipbuilding is carried on with great spirit. A new yard has just been taken from the city, where a vessel of 90 tons register is laid down, making eight vessels building at present in this quarter, each varying from 90 to nearly 300 tons.—Perthshire Advertiser.

Commercial Affairs.—We are sorry to learn that the pressure upon manufactories and commerce has at last reached our country.—Within a short time several extensive failures in the 'How of Fife,' along the Leven, as well as in towns upon the coast; have taken place. We suspect that the crisis of the disease is not over, and it will become every one so engaged to walk warily for some considerable time to come.—Fifeshire Journal.

☞NOTICE.—The Rev'd. H. N. Mason will perform divine service in the Protestant Episcopal Church in Easton, on to-morrow at 11 o'clock, A. M.

WOOD & TIMBER LAND WANTED.

The subscriber has occasion to ascertain if it be practicable to obtain some thousand acres of

on the navigable waters of the Chesapeake bay. Persons having such to dispose of, will please address me, stating the number of acres, how much of it in wood and whether any timber and the description of both the nearest and the most distant point of either, from sloop navigation—the probable number cords of wood within a given distance from the landing; the proportion of the land cleared and ploughable, with a general description of the soil and the improvements—though these are of less importance, as wood and timber, especially the former, are the chief objects—also state with precision how little money will be demanded in hand and how long a time for the balance to be paid in instalments and again, for what price per annum Negro men may be hired in the neighborhood, and what are the current prices paid for cutting per cord, pine and oak.

Answers to this cannot be too particular on all points, and the writers may be assured that while it will be best to state at once the lowest price per acre—no use will be made of the information to the detriment of the party should it not end in a sale.

Proposals will be received for the smallest tracts, provided there be wood enough convenient to navigation, to make it an object, it may be well when there is cleared land and improvements, to state what the land has rented or would rent for.
