POETRY.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

It comes, it comes with golden sheaf
In the time of the sere and yellow leaf,
And it flings the fruit from the bended tree,
And scatters it round in its reckless glee,
It plays on the brow of the maiden fair,
And parts, with its fingers, her raven hair.

It comes, it comes, and its minstrel's wing
O'er the glassy lake is quivering,
With music, soft as the mellow strain
Of zephyrs over the swelling main,
It gladdens the vales as it floats along,
And stream and mountain re-echo the song.

It comes, it comes like a fairy sprite
Arrayed in robes of gossamer white,
And the carpet of leaves on the ground is spread,
And the flowers yield 'neath its conquering tread,
For it strides along in its kingly way
Like shadows that flit at the close of day.

It comes, it comes, and the ripened grain
Is wreathing crowns for its golden reign,
And the bright eye sparkles with liquid light
Like the star enthroned on the brow of night,
And the teeming fields their offering bring
At the saiated shrine of the autumn king.

[From Barnett's Song of Solitude.]

There's music in a Mother's Voice.

There's music in a mother's voice,
More sweet than breezes sighing
There's kindness in a mother's glance.
Too pure for ever dying.

There's music in a mother's tear,
When farewell fondly taking,
That so the heart of pity moves,
Scarce keeps the heart from breaking.

And when a mother kneels to Heaven,
And for her child is praying,
O, who shall half the fervor tell
That burns in all she's saying!

A mother! how her tender arts
Can smooth the breast of sadness,
And through the gloom of life once more
Bid shine the sun of gladness.

A mother! when like evenings's star
Her course hath ceased before us,
From brighter worlds regards us still,
And watches friendly o'er us.
