THE TRIUMPH!

——————Give me the cups,
And let the kettle to the trumpet speak—
The trumpet to the cannoneer without—
The cannons to the heavens, the heaven
[to earth!

Every wave of the Hudson wafts another and another note of victory. As far as we have heard, including two counties of Long Island, and proceeding west to Onondaga, NOT A SINGLE VAN BUREN MEMBER OF THE LEGISLATURE HAS BEEN ELECTED: and all the counties have been heard from to that extent, save those of Rockland and Putnam. The last of these has probably gone for the administration; and Rockland may have done the same. But it is of small consequence, either way. The state is 'redeemed, regenerated, and disenthralled," by majorities the most astounding.

It was believed at Albany last evening, not only that the Whigs had carried the state by an overwhelming majority, but that we have carried THE ENTIRE SENATORIAL ELECTION OF THE EIGHT DISTRICTS. Even Greene, Schoharie, Herkimer and Ulster, where we had no hope, have burst at once their chains and their slumbers and are once more entitled to be numbered WITH THE FREE! Our friend in Catskill call upon us for an apology, for what we said of them before the election.

"We claim," says the Messenger, "in the name of the Whigs of Greene, the amende honorable, at their hands; and at least one gun, and three cheers, for so unexpected, but we have no doubt, agreeable, disappointment." Gentleman Whigs you shall have it. And if you will get up a celebration of your victory at the Mountain House; we will come and make the apology in person. The Poughkeepsie Journal thorough going administration, thus preaches the funeral sermon of its party in that county.

"HUNG BE THE HEAVENS IN BLACK."

Shrouded in the habiliments of wo, and with a black flag floating at our mast head, kindly hoisted for us by a midnight locofoco, we proceed, as in duty bound, to furnish our readers with the result of the conflict, from which we have just emerged bruised, battered and beaten.

The joint forces of whigs and loco-focos have led us in a forlorn minority, with scarce a ray to light us on our cheerless path, and without a beacon to guide us to a haven of rest, where we can repose in quiet, undisturbed by the rejoicings of our merciless foes. We are down, and there is no help for us. The predictions we have so oft laid before our friends have been disregarded, and now they see them to be fearfully true. The contaminating touch of the loco focos, against which we have warned them, has worked out its poisonous results, and a festering sore the product of an unhallowed embrace with the destructives has rankled, until the whole has become diseased, unto death. But away with lamentations.—We must learn wisdom by experience, and profit by the lesson before us.

SPEECH OF

HON. OGDEN HOFFMAN,

DELIVERED AT THE GRAND WHIG MEETING FANEUIL HALL.

The Hon. Ogden Hoffman, of New York, on being announced by the Chair, rose and addressed the meeting as follows:

Mr. President and Fellow Citizens:—

I do not rise with the intention of making what may be properly called a speech. The duty which I have to discharge is but humble, and in an humble way I propose to fulfil it. Excited as I must feel at hearing, for the first time, my voice in Faneuil Hall, I have not physical strength to respond to the promptings of my heart. I have become hoarse, until my voice sounds unfamiliar to my ears in urging others on to victory, and in congratulating them on the noble deeds they done, and the imperishable renown they have secured. I am like a disabled soldier from the plain of victory. For the last four days, my energies have been exerted, my dearest substance wasted "in the tented field"—and little therefore do I know, little can I tell, "save what pertains to feats of broil and battle."

I come here, Sir, under the most flattering circumstances it has ever been my lot to experience! I come at the request and under the escort of a deputation from this ancient and honored "cradle of liberty"—sent to invite me, an humble, citizen of an enslaved and, till lately, unredeemed State, to meet in Faneuil Hall, the citizens of the patriotic and unconquerable city of Boston. I come like him of old, who, while the heroes of ancient Greece were at Marathon contending for their hearths and their liberties against an invader, by whom they were almost pressed to the earth, left the field of battle to bear to the Athenian matrons, the tidings that their fathers, husbands and sons had nobly resisted the foe, had fought, and gloriously triumphed. Sustained, buoyed up by the inspiring intelligence; he arrived at Athens, nerveless, exhausted, covered with dust and blood—gathered strength for a moment to utter his tidings; and expired at the market place, telling his tale of victory. I come before you under somewhat similar circumstances, and should I too expire after proclaiming what I have to announce, I should feel that my death were happy. I should die in a glorious cause, and my last breath would be expended in giving publicity to the noble deeds of regenerated freemen.

For the first time Sir, I stand in the cradle of liberty—the city of Boston. For the first time I behold that hill whose name the blood of Warren has rendered immortal. For the first time my humble voice is heard in that hall which has often rung with the eloquence of Hancock, Warren, Otis, and that fearless asserter of the rights of the people, the elder Adams. For the first time I tread in the land of Hancock, whose very name should be a rebuke to the minions of power who have dared to abuse and vilify the merchants. In the presence almost of that princely merchant,—(Mr. H. here turned to the picture of Hancock, which was suspended over the back of the Chairman.)—in contemplating whose character we find that the study and practice of Grecian and Roman virtues, are not incompatible with the chivalrous feelings and elevated pursuits of the class to which he belonged! That Hancock, who, with Adams, was proscribed and excluded from the act of amnesty: who sustained the liberties and adhered to the destinies of the country through good report and through evil report; who was the soul of the Revolution, and who became the first signer of the first instrument the world has ever known!

But I will not trespass on your time and patience except to announce to you that NEW YORK HAS DONE HER DUTY! How could it be otherwise! There was Massachusetts always standing firm; unequalled in patriotism, unsurpased in wisdom! —There she stood unfurling her virgin banner, without stain and without spot, inciting us to emulate her noble example! She cheered us on—she told us the value of the Constitution—she invited us to partake with her a common contest and a common victory—she engraved on the heart of every freeman the noble sentiment of one of her noblest sons, "One constitution—one country—one destiny!" There was Vermont, by the side of Massachusetts. There too was Maine! Degenerate Maine had at last woke from her long sleep of degredation and slavery at the sound of the oppressor's voice, and with one bound had leapt into the life and beauty of freedom! Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, held out their hands to welcome us! They told us what the freemen of the west had done! They beckoned us to tread with them the path of freedom and glory! How could we stay? We could not—we did not. We come—and the Empire State has now taken her stand in the foremost rank of liberty, ready to do and die in the cause of the country!

WE HAVE BEATEN THEM—in their own State their power has been crushed! The power of the people has reached them!—The decree of destruction has gone forth, and by the flashes of lightning gleaming from every quarter of the horizon, may they read the hand writing on the wall! New York has left them and marched to her sister States. Receive her, fellow citizens, as you have received her humble representative.—She has sinned long, but she must be forgiven!—She is a mighty and noble State, and can stand by the side of Massachusetts. The same banner must stream over her which now spreads its ample folds over you—the banner of the Constitution and the laws! And whether that hallowed flag shall droop in defeat, or whether it shall float in triumph, New York will still be found side by side with Massachusetts! She will do her duty—I pledge myself for it—she will do her duty and her whole duty!

One word more fellow citizens, in acknowledgment of the kindness you have shown to me. In the name of the city I represent I thank you! In behalf the Whigs of that city—as glorious and gallant a band as ever breathed the air of Heaven. I return you my most sincere thanks! —From my own heart I most heartily thank you—and I will evince the sincerity of these professions by proving, in the only way now left me, my gratitude for your kind attention, by taking my seat and trespassing no longer on your patience.'

This Address was constantly interrupted by peals of applause: and when Mr. Hoffman sat down, the old walls rang with a shout louder and longer than has for years awakened their echoes.

WHIG MEETING AT THE EXCHANGE.

The meeting last evening at the Exchange, which filled to overflowing the large area of that building, was called to order by Charles F. Mayer, Esq. who after some introductory remarks, moved that JOHN McKIM, Jun'r. Esq. be appointed President, and John Hillen, Jacob Rogers, Alexander Fridge, L. Tiernan, Peter Leary, N. F. Williams, Hugh Birckhead, George Brown, S. C. Larkin, C. W. Karthaus Thomas Kelso, and W. H. Conkling, Esqs. Vice Presidents, and E. L. Finley, Joshua Jones, and J. A. Robb, Esqs. Secretaries.

A preamble and resolutions were then offered by Mr. MAYER, who referred to the late News from New York in glowing terms. This gentleman was succeeded by E. L. FINLEY and W. H. COLLINS, Esqs. Z. C. LEE, Esq. offered resolutions supplemantary to those presented by Mr. Mayer, and spoke for some time in an animated style. He was succeeded by GEORGE R. RICHARDSON, Esq. who was received with great enthusiasm by the meeting.

As the preamble and resolutions, (which were adopted with the most perfect unanimity,) would occupy more space than could be allotted, to them at so late an hour, we will only remark that they provide for the appointment of a Committee of sixty, who, together with the officers of the meeting, shall proceed to New York, to join in the rejoicings to take place there on the 22nd instant.

In closing his remarks Mr. RICHARDSON offered a resolution, which was unanmously adopted, that the signal successes of the Whig party in New York and other States be celebrated at a time to be fixed, and that all be invited to join in the festivity of the occasion.

A Committee of five citizens from each ward was appointed to carry the last resolution into effect.

The meeting then adjourned.

[Balt. American, Nov. 16.

THE EFFECT OF THE GREAT VICTORY.

We are anxious to hear the shouts of joy sent up by our brethren o' the West at the result of the election in New York. Every paper we receive from there discourages the idea that the Whigs could succeed. As late as Tuesday last the Columbus (O.) Register, a staunch Whig paper, thus spoke:

"To show the utter madness of anticipating a Whig majority in the State of New York, we have but to state, that last year the strength of parties in the Senate was, Whigs 5—Van Buren 27; House, Whigs 31—Van Buren 91;—Van Buren majority on joint ballot 82!"

Indeed all our friends were without hope, unless it be the editor of the Louisville Journal, who always expects success and fights in a way to secure it. On the other hand the Van Burenites were cheering their despoading troops with the certainty of success, and preparing to hear the "earthquake voice of victory." They WILL hear it.—[Chronicle.

The editor of the Richmond Enquirer, after publishing the news from New York, declared three several times, that he 'will not despair of the republic!' He is wise, the result of the election proves that the "republic is not in a situation to be" despaired of.—[Ib.

Our readers will recollect the salute promised by the editor of the Louisville Journal. He thus speaks in his last paper:

The editor of the Louisville Journal has promised, if we will carry New York, to charter a thunder-cloud to let off its artillery in honor of the glorious event. Let him get his thunder-cloud ready.—[Syracuse (N. Y.) Gaz.

'Tis all ready, Sir. We have got it chained to the peak of one of the Silver Creek knobs across the river. It occasionally gets impatient and roars like a mad bull fastened to a post, but we shall keep it safe until we hear from New York, and then perchance let it loose and bid it send forth such thunders as the affrighted Van Burenites will mistake for "the peals of the last trumpet."—[Louis. Jour.

MASSACHUSETTS STILL HERSELF!—The returns come in from old Massachusetts with overwhelming Whig majorities. In Boston, where our majority last year was 1878 Mr. Everett, the Whig candidate for Governor, has now a majority of 3273—making a Whig gain in the city of only 1395! Every county in the State has more than probable been carried by the Whigs. In the Senate there will not be one Van Burenite and but very few in the House! The route has been overwhelming!—[Chronicle.

MISSISSIPPI ELECTION.

The Cincinnati Post of November 8, says—"Notwithstanding the decision of the House of Representatives, giving a seat in that body to Messrs. Claiborne and Gholson, for the entire term of the 25th Congress, instead of the extra session, for which ONLY they were elected—an election took place in that State yesterday and the day before, in which, among others, were to be elected, two members of Congress, to take their seats on the first Monday of December coming: and, from all accounts, there is a strong probability that Messrs. Prentiss and Word the Whig candidates have been elected. If so, the State will come in direct contact with the House of Representatives, and ultimately with the Administration. We shall see.

The great ship Pennsylvania will soon leave the Delaware for Norfolk. A correspondent of the Philadelphia U. S. Gazette who has just visited her, says—

Her dimensions have been heretofore described. Suffice it to say at this time, that her hull it 3000 tons, anchors 12,000 lbs. main yard 111 feet long, distance from head of mainmast to skysail truck 269 feet and can mount 140 guns. With all this it is believed that she will be a very fast sailer, and is one of the finest ships now afloat in any navy.

From the Philadelphia Gazette.

LOUIS PHILIPPE.

We are enabled, through a friend's politeness, to print the following epistle from the King of the French. Much conjectural and erroneous information has been circulating in this country, in reference to this distinguished monarch, and in particular as regards his occupation while in exile in the United States, about forty years since.

The ensuing letter written by himself in answer to some enquiries on this head, puts the question at rest. In short, if he ever taught school in Jersey or elsewhere when among us, he would not have omitted the fact in answer to a letter written expressly with the view of obtaining information.

As a writer LOUIS PHILIPPE, though a Frenchman appears sufficiently familiar with the ideas of the English language, to maintain a correspondence in accordance with the taste of an Anglo-American. His language is full and perspicuous throughout, and directly to the point. He appears to be no stranger to the 'Religious Society of Friends,' and in his observations in reference to this subject, has avoided the vulgar and offensive term by which it is sometimes designated.

It is scarcely necessary to add that the King of France has shown himself in all the relations of life, worthy of his exalted station. The letter, promptly written and forwarded in answer to the enquiries of an humble American citizen, is a proof of that amenity of manners, and amiable condescension, which have always characterized this worthy man.

(Copy)

St. CLOUD, 26th August, 1837.

Sir—I have received your kind letter of the 16th of June last, and I readily comply with your request to answer in my own hand your obliging enquiries.

During my residence in the United States, I never went by any other name, than my own name of Orleans. I have known Mr. PETER GUERRIER in Philadelphia, and later in the Havana; but since that time in 1799, I have never heard of him—and I am totally ignorant of what may have been his fate.

I cannot believe that he ever attempted to pass himself for me; but of this I am certain, that I never assumed his name, nor ever attempted to pass myself off for him.

I believe I never went to Haddonfield, but I am positive that I never lodged or boarded there at your father's house or any other. It is now so long, about forty years since I was in Philadelphia, that my recollections are become confused; but I believe I dined there once in company with a member of the Society of Friends, whose name was Redman, at the house of another member of the same society, whose name was I believe JOHN ELLIOTT, and to whom I had been introduced by Mr. GUERRIER.

I regret, Sir, to be unable to give you more complete information in answer to your enquiries and I must add, that I highly value the favorable opinion entertained of me in the United States, and I thank you for having expressed it in a manner so gratifying to my feelings.

I remain, dear Sir,
Your sincere friend,
Signed,
LOUIS PHILIPPE.

JOHN EVANS REDMAN, Esq.
Philadelphia.

The origical of the above, which was sent to us for examination is in a fine, flowing hand, remarkably free in its compass, and plain to read. The signature is handsome and bold, with certain flourishes at the close, which indicate the monarch and the Frenchman. The seal is surmounted by the crown with the initials, 'L. P.' in the old English black letter.

TIMBER LAND,

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber will sell at private sale, that valuable Tract of LAND, called 'Batchelor's Forrest," the property of the heirs of the Rev. Lott Warfield, deceased, of Talbot county.—The above mentioned tract contains more or less, and is situated in Dorchester County, Md., 2 miles from Chickone Creek, & four miles from Vienna. It is mostly heavily timbered with oak suitable for ship building, and to an individual desirous of purchasing it would be a most profitable investment. It is estimated that the sale of the refuse wood, for fire wood, would most amply repay the purchase money with a handsome interest. The soil is a light loam, well adapted to the growth of corn and other agricultural products, and after the timber is taken off might be converted into a valuable farm.
