EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, (MD.)

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 3, 1838

We have been highly gratified with the perusal of the speech of the Hon. Mr. Rives on his substitute for the Sub-Treasury Bill. We commend it to the careful and attentive consideration of those into whose hands it may fall, as an answer to Mr. Wright's much applauded speech. In this respect, it is a complete and entire overthrow of all the force arrayed by the latter gentleman in aid of his high toned and anti-republican doctrines. —In consequence of the delay of the Mail, we shall be deprived of the pleasure we anticipated of presenting to our readers in this day's paper, the speech of Mr. Clay which we promised—could we have foreseen this state of things, we would have published the speech of Mr. Rives.

With our unknown correspondent "Tobias," we heartily sympathize, as we would with any neighbour in distress whether friend or foe, if any of the latter we have.—He is truly between "hawk and buzzard," but as to this, there is nothing peculiar in his situation.—He is in the "state and condition" of many a poor fellow, who looks only to his own interest, regardless of principle of right or of truth—and although he seems not to know to what party he belongs, he is a genuine Van Burenite "dyed in t'. wool." He occupies so much "neutral ground" and so often, that when he dips on this or that side of the fence, he is unconscious of the changes he undergoes—a little like the Grub-worm, which at the right time turns butterfly, but unlike the latter insect which never turns grub-worm again. He is therefore a true, genuine, unsophisticated and unadulterated Van Burenite, soaked through and through with the particular principles of that party.—We are truly gratified to have so fair an opportunity of indulging our strong natural inclinations to do good to others, and hope the soothing consolation we happen to have it in our power to administer, will have the salutary effect intended, to heal our worthy correspondents ailment.

GREAT WHIG MEETING.

At a meeting of the Whig members of the General Assembly of Maryland, and other Whigs of the State then present, held in the Hall of the House of Delegates, February 19, 1838, pursuant to notice, the meeting was organized by the appointment of the following officers:

RICHARD THOMAS, President,
EDW. N. HAMBLETON, } Vice
WILLIAM H. TUCK, } Prests.
TEAGLE TOWNSEND, } Sec'ys.
AUGUSTUS R. SOLLERS, }

On motion, Messrs. Alexander, Lee, White, McDaniel, Jones, Kerr, and Hughes, were appointed a Committee to prepare resolutions for the consideration of the meeting. Whereupon the committee presented the following preamble and resolutions, which were adopted:

That the exalted patriotism of HENRY CLAY, his unwavering devotion to the principles of political liberty, and his profound knowledge of the interests of this people pre-eminently qualify him to discharge the duties of President of the U. States.

That in commen ling HENRY CLAY to the suffrages of the people of the United States, this meeting expresses the common sentiment, and obeys the common will of the Whigs of Maryland, to whom he is endeared by the purity of a life devoted to the public service, and the matchless eloquence with which he has at all times defended the Constitution of his country.

That we are united together in defence of the principles of constitutional order against, the present administration of the General Government which wields its power and patronage at the bidding of irresponsible advisers, in contempt of constitutional restraints, and in opposition to the best interests of this country, and we are, therefore ready to abandon the man of our choice in favor of any other person of tried capacity and patriotism, who may be more acceptable to the Whig party throughout the Union.

That for the purpose of securing a proper concert of action amongst all who are engaged in defence of our common liberty against unconstitutional domination, it is expedient that a convention be held at some suitable time and place, which shall consist of Delegates from the several States, and be empowered to nominate proper candidates to be supported by the Whig party, for the offices of President and Vice President of the United States. That in such Convention, each State ought to have a number of votes equal to the aggregate number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, but the Whigs in each State shall be at liberty to determine for themselves the number of their Delegates and the manner of electing them.

That our Whig Senators and Representatives in Congress, in concert with the Whig Senators and Representatives in Congress, from other States, be requested to appoint a suitable time and place for holding a National Convention for the purposes before stated.

That this meeting recommend the State Convention proposed to be held shall nominate two Delegates to the National Convention. One of whom shall be taken from the Eastern and the other from the Western Shore. That two delegates shall be taken from the fourth Congressional District and one Delegate shall be taken from each other Congressional District in this State. For the selection of those Delegates it is recommended that the Whig voters shall assemble in each Election District of the several Counties within ninety days next before the day to be appointed for holding the National Convention, to appoint one or more Delegate to represent such Election District in Congressional District meeting, and that the said Delegates meet in some suitable place in their respective Congressional Districts and there nominate a Delegate or Delegates to represent each Congressional District in the National Convention as before stated—and in case of a vacancy, then that the remaining Delegates shall be empowered to supply such vacancy.

On motion, Resolved that the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the officers, and published in the Whig papers of the State.

Resolved, That thanks of this meeting be tendered to the officers for the manner in which they have respectfully discharged their duties.

RICHARD THOMAS, President.

WILLIAM H. TUCK. } Pres'ts.

Mr. CLAY.—It will be recollected that the members of the Legislature of Rhode Island recently nominated Mr. CLAY as a candidate for the Presidency, the following is his answer to the letter apprising him of the nomination.

WASHINGTON, FEB. 15th, 1838.

DEAR SIR: I duly received your letter of the 10th inst. transmitting a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Whig Legislative Convention in Rhode Island, and in relation to the nomination of a candidate for the Presidency.

The support which I received for that office when my name was before the public in '32, from that patriotic State, displayed its firm adherence to principle, under the most discouraging circumstances, and filled me with sentiments of the most profound gratitude. This new testimony of the attachment and confidence of Rhode Island towards me, adds to my obligations, and will be cherished in grateful recollection whatever future results may be.

Having prescribed to myself a course of non interference in respect to the designation of a candidate for the next Presidency, on the part of the Whigs, it will not be expected that I should give or withhold any consent with respect to the use of my name, until the proper period arrives.

I congratulate you upon the prospect of a change in the policy of the government The people of the United States have so generally manifested a dissatisfaction with the past course of the administration that our rulers must change it or be themselves changed. We have now much reason to hope that the vast government project of a Treasury Bank will be defeated in one, if not both Houses of Congress. This fortunate result of that dangerous measure may be ascribed alto.ether to the intelligence and manifestation of the wishes of the people of the United States.

Cordially reciprocating your friendly wishes for my health and happiness.

I am faithfully your friend and obedient servant,

HENRY CLAY.

JOSEPH CHILDS, Esq.

THE DINNER.

The dinner given on Saturday last at the Eutaw House, in honor of a number of gentlemen from New York, who happened to be passing through this city, was an affair which will long be remembered by those who partook of it as one of the most splendid, animated and perfectly delightful public entertainments, which has ever taken place in this country.

The regular toasts having been concluded, John McKim, Jr. Esq. rose and gave

HENRY CLAY, of Kentucky—

The announcement of this name was received at all quarters of the table. with an enthusiasm which nothing could excite, but a character, services and worth, such as his. The following letter from Mr. Clay was then read by Charles H. Pitts, Esq.

WASHINGTON, 23d Feb. 1838.

Gentlemen—I regret extremely that the state of my health and the nature of my engagements here, extensive, varied, and oppressive as they really are, will not allow me to accept the invitation with which I am honored to the Public Dinner intended to be given to-morrow. in Baltimore, to a number of our Whig Brethren of New York. My Heart will be in the midst of you, although I shall be personally absent.

I am, with great respect,
Your obedient servant,
H. CLAY.

Messrs. Dr. Ashton, Alexander and other gentlemen of the Committee.

The feelings of the company having at length settled again into calmness, John P. Kennedy, Esq. arose, and after a brief but exceedingly eloquent address, gave.

DANIEL OF THE NORTH:—The faithful guardian of the alter of Liberty,

"fixed and stately as a firm built column,
Where all may press with joy & confidence."

This tribute to the illustrious defender of the constitution, called forth an expression of enthusiastic feeling. only equalled by that manifested in behalf of his great Senatorial Compeer. The following letter from Mr. Webster was then read.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22, 1838.

My dear Sir—I regret to say, that my engagements will not allow me the pleasure of being at the Dinner, proposed to be given at Baltimore on Saturday, to your New York friends.

My great regard, for the inviters and the invited, would make it most agreeable to me to accept your invitation, if it were in my power.

I pray you to tender my acknowledgments to the gentlemen whose names are associated with yours and to believe me,

With much personal regard,
Your friend and ob't serv't,
DANIEL WEBSTER.

Dr. Alexander.

The Hon. C. W. Hanson next rose, and, after a very eloquent speech, gave a toast in honor of Gen. WM. H. HARRISON, of Ohio, which was received with the same unbounded enthusiasm that greeted the names of Mr. Clay and Mr. Webster. The sense of this large and respectable assemblage, in regard to the merits of these candidates for the favour of the great Whig party, speaks volumes for the certainty of union, harmony, and concert.

The Cincinnati Gazette throws out this hint:

Just by way of wonderments, suppose the New York Conservatives should, in March next, nominate Henry Clay for President, and Senator Tallmadge for Vice President! Where would the Van-ocracy be. "And echo answers, where?"

---

The Boston Atlas of Friday, says—'An illustration of the beauties of the sub-treasury system may be found in a little circumstance, which took place yesterday. A draft for an amount under $400 from the Postmaster at Washington drawn on the Post Office here was protested for non-payment. Hurrah for the new experiment! Who will say it is not working to admiration?'

---

We learn from the New York Journal of Commerce that the Bank of the United States is now issuing, in the West, bills of Exchange on England for ten pounds sterling, drawn on Mr. Jaudon. The Journal says—"They form a very convenient currency for the remittance of small sums which the Irish and other foreigners are constantly sending home to their friends: and the business, though small in the details, must in the aggregate be a very good one for the Bank. A number of poor Irish people who have been most villainously cheated of their filial contributions, would be glad if Mr. Biddle had adopted this plan a year earlier."

---

The fact stated in the following paragraph from the Peoria (Ill.) Register of the 10th inst. will give the Loco-focos at Washington, a spasm.

From the Peoria Register.

Old United States Bank paper in the far west.

Mr. Editor: We were called on this morning by a neighboring friend, who wished to exchange specie for United States Bank paper. We made the exchange with him to the amount of two hundred and fifty dollars at par. This was done on our part as matter of accommodation, as we would rather prefer the paper to the specie.

MR. GRAHAM:—

Finding myself no longer able to bear up against my manifold grievances, I have determined to apply to you for sympathy and advice.

Politics is the rock on which I have split—I have been kicked like a shuttlecock from party to party, until my name has become a by word among the people: even my own child—who, precocious like other lads of the day, can comprehend at a glance a subject which sadly puzzles my brains—begins to look upon me with contempt.

You must know sir that I am not much of a scholar, but my next door neighbours are as intelligent, well informed men as the country can produce—I have perfect faith in their integrity—and have always looked up to them for information as to congress doings and such matters. But alas for me, my friends never can agree upon any thing—Mr. Fair comes in and tells me how blest we are in having such a man as Van Buren for president—that Clay, Webster or Harrison would have ruined the country by establishing another National Bank—That the independent Treasury is the wisest system ever devised, to place the people's funds in safty and establish a sound metallic currency &c. He explains every thing and it all seems so fair, that I am a good Vanite until Mr. Great comes in, who in little or no time overturns all Mr. Fair's arguments, and I am ready to pronounce the very administration, which a little while ago I had thought a blessing, a curse to the country. He tells me that the Sub-Treasury, is truly a 'bill of abominations' that the people's money will be taken out of circulation, locked up in iron chests and vaults, in order to keep it safe from the people, for the special use of the President and his officers. That nothing, can set us straight but a National Bank &c. &c.

If my friends happen to meet at my house. I change my politics every three minutes, just as they answer each other—neither ever give up a single point, but on the contrary each seem, if possible, more firmly persuaded, from the very arguments advanced, that his own principles are correct.—Is it any wonder that I dont know which is right?

It is bad enough at all times not to know one's own mind, but as an election approaches, my situation is frightful—I am torn limb from limb—flattered and reviled in a breath—one moment complimented on my good sense, the next called a cursed old fool, by the same persons.

Now, Sir, I have stated my troubles, can you point out any way in which I can ascertain the right side, or tell me what course to persue in order to live in peace on neutral ground.

Yours in affliction,
TOBIAS TURNCOAT.

LETTER XI.

HERMIT OF THE FALLS.

A young Englishman, named Francis Abbott, of respectable connexions, either through misfortune, or a morbid state of mind, which made him desire seclusion, took up his residence on Goat Island, and in the neighborhood of the Falls, for two years; and became so infatuated with the scenery, and fascinated with the solitude, that no inducement could divert his thoughts, or draw him from the spot whence he acquired the name of the "Hermit of the Falls." On the 10th of June, 1831, he was seen to bathe twice, and was observed by the ferryman to enter the water a third time about 2 P. M.; his clothes remaining some hours where he had deposited them, and alarm was made, but he was not found till the 21st many miles below the falls.

"When his cottage was examined, his dog was found guarding the door, and was with difficulty removed: his cat occupied his bed; his guitar, violin, flutes, music books, and portfolio, were scattered around in confusion; but not a single paper of any kind was found (although he was known to compose much) to throw the least light on this extraordinary character. He was a person of highly cultivated mind and manners, a master of languages, deeply read in the arts and sciences, and performed on various musical instruments with great taste; his drawings were also very spirited He had travelled over Europe and many parts of the East, and possessed great colloquial powers when inclined to be sociable; but at times he would desire not to be spoken to, and communicated his wishes on a slate; sometimes for three or four months, together he would go unshaved, with no covering on his head, and his body enveloped in a blanket; shunning all, and seeking the deepest solitude. His age was not more than twenty eight, his person well made, and his features handsome." The Superintendent of General Porter's paper factory, pointed out the place, over a high part of the Falls, where, on a projected beam, he would hang by his feet, with his head downwards for fifteen minutes at a time. A dizzy height which few venture to approach.

"It is now ascertained that he was the son of the late John Abbott, of Plymouth, England, a member of the Society of Friends. His guitar which beguiled so many of his solitary hours, and soothed him in his sorrows, is still preserved as a curiosity, and may be seen at Mr. Hooker's shop in the village of Niagara Falls."

The number of visiters at the Falls has of late years been probably fifteen thousand or upwards annually. Visiters are found at the Hotels from Hamburgh, Madras, Ceylon, Sidney in New South Wales, British, Spanish, and Hayteen merchants: Gentlemen of various professions from almost every part of the world. It was ascertained that there were three Foreign Consuls, a Swiss Colonel, two of Bonaparte's Legion of Honor; likewise Exiled Monarchs, foreign ambassadors, whigs, tories, radicals, royalists, naval and military officers, governors, judges, lawyers, senators, doctors, parsons, &c. Also a considerable proportion of female worthies, assemble here to view these indescribable works of God.

Two miles below the Falls on the New York side, is a Mineral Spring, said to contain sulphuric and muriatic acids, lime and magnesia, the flavour of the water I found disagreeable, but it is highly recommended in scrofulous, rheumatic and cutaneous complaints. The river immediately below the Falls, is compressed into a narrow channel about four hundred yards wide, and two hundred and fifty feet deep. Its color is deep green, and sometimes blue, unlike in color any waters I ever saw, probably occasioned by the reflection from the sky and ponderous rocks. This channel is between perpendicular banks, varying from one hundred and seventy feet to three hundred and seventy. It is comparatively smooth two miles to the mineral spring, and then runs to Lewistown five miles with amazing velocity. "Whether the bed of the river here was once a natural ravine or was formed by an earthquake, or worn away by the continued and violent action of the water falling upon the rocks;—thus carrying the Falls back to Queenston to their present situation, it is an impossibility to determine. We find from the description of the Falls nearly two hundred years ago, they have changed their shape considerably and that they have somewhat retrograded, but still exhibit the same wonderful phenomena.

I walked leisurely down the verge of the rocks viewing this amazing river to the whirlpool, one mile below the mineral spring. This walk in some places is rather dangerous to a careless person, for one false step would precipitate him into the awful gulf below; likewise numerous snakes are found on the edge of the rocks and some distance back from the river. One passed near my feet and remained by a small rock, I struck him with my umbrella but he appeared to dispute the ground and having such a poor weapon to encounter his snakeship, I left him triumphant on the field of battle. The rattlesnake here has a different color to any I had previously viewed.—It is said that this tremendous WHIRLPOOL resembles very much, in its appearance, and gyrations the celebrated Maelstrom on the coast of Norway. Steele remarks, "Logs and trees are whirled round in its outer circles, while in the centre they are drawn down perpendicularly with great force, are soon shot out again at the distance of many rods, and occasionally thrust into the channel to pass down the river. The river here makes nearly a right angle, which occasions the whirlpool, is narrow than at any other place—not more than thirty rods in width,—and the current runs with such amazing velocity as to rise up in the middle ten feet above the sides. This has been ascertained by actual measurement."

'Resistless, roaring, dreadful, down it comes.—
There gathering triple force rapid and deep.—
It boils, and wheels, and foams, and thunders through.'

An alarming circumstance which occured at this Whirlpool, may be found in my next communication.

THE HARRISONIAN.

It is proposed to publish in the course of the ensuing Spring, either in this city or New York, a NEW WEEKLY PAPER, on an imperial sheet, by the above title, at the price of $2 per annum, payable in advance.

The object of this publication is to bring forward the claims of WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON to the next Presidency, subject to the sanction of the People. As the State of New York was sufficiently patriotic to hold two conventions for the purpose of giving him its support at the recent Presidential Election, and as it was universally admitted that his claims were second to none others at that time, there is no good reason why he should now be driven from the field, by the headstrong measures, or the secret intrigues of self constituted leaders, when a cordial union in his favour will insure us a glorious victory over our political oppressors.

☞ Editors of papers please publish this notice. Corresponding Committees appointed at the Harrison State Convention, will please act in behalf of the Proprietors, to whom all letters may be addressed, on the subject. Prospectuses will be forwarded in a few days.
