ON AGRICULTURE.

Mr. Graham:—In your last issue of Saturday 19th inst. I find an able Agricultural paper copied from a very useful monthly—published in Albany under the auspices of that very scientific and practical man Judge Buel. The author, a Mr. Gordon of Tennessee endeavours to press home upon the consideration of his fellow countrymen, the high moral obligation resting upon every Agriculturalist to consider well his intellectual and physical relations with the world around him. He urges the producer of the necessaries of life to estimate himself and his profession properly:—and holds, that all occupations are immediately or remotely dependent upon the Tillers of the Earth—granting these premises (and they cannot be questioned) how important then does it become that this branch of science should be fostered, improved and elevated.

You cannot sir, point me to a single individual, however noble or ignoble, whose interests & well being are not intimately connected with the agricultural productions around him—when the farmer's garners are well stored, and groan under the accumulations of his honest industry and skilful management—then all sad forebodings of hard times, famine and Sheriff's visits are scattered to the winds. The effects of his success reach into the deepest and darkest avenues of time; and give light and life to all around—its cheering influences do not only touch his fellow men, but include the beasts of the field, for whose welfare we are bound by every high obligation to provide. What pleasurable sensations are produced upon a well regulated mind—where instead of contemplating shadowy remains of living things, staggering along through the chilling blasts, of winter—it can look out upon any animated object within its reach and behold it full of life, energy and health?

What business—what profession—what being can flourish and prosper, when agriculture languishes? 'Tis very certain—not one—since then, we are all so much interested in the successful prosecution of this branch of our domestic and national wealth—are we not bound by every high consideration to study its interests and minister unto its wants, so far as we can? Is there not now and has there not always been I would ask you sir, a silent apathy manifested towards this important interest by our people—our state and I may even add by our Government? The fact is unquestionable and cannot be controverted. Our people, usually alive to every thing touching their interests, is this essential to our well being have out heralded Herod. The public mind is kept in such a constant fever and tumult about the local and general policy of our county—that nothing of a higher consideration engages it, every man in our community no matter what his avocation, his wealth or his poverty, seems to regard the weight of government upon his shoulders—and himself an indispensable prop and support to his "Party."—He quits his awl and his ends—he stops his teams—he unyokes his oxen—he leaves his plough half buried in the unfinished furrow—he closes his work shop—he throws aside his books—he suspends all operations in fine, and goes forth to fall down prostrate and worship his Idol—that destructive, demoralising demon "Party"—he revels in her excesses; he gluts himself with her debauches;—he gloats his distempered mind with her filth and abominations; and returns to his fields, his mechanism, his profession or his family, a galled jade, unstrung, unhinged and wholly unfitted for high, noble, manly services.

He does all this; sir, and to what end? Does this peculiar and frantic anxiety result from an honest desire to serve our country;—to rescue and snatch her from impending ruin? Are we fearful of loosing our glorious Republic and our birth right? If these interrogatories be answered honestly, it will receive the negative flatly—Then why is all this? Sir, if we examine ourselves—scrutinize our motives and analyze the jit of our movements—'tis an unmeaning struggle to elevate this man or that man to high offices of trust and profit, to the neglect of those interests in which we are most deeply and vitally concerned.—I shall be excused in dealing thus bluntly with the spirit of the times—inasmuch as I lash without reserve my friends and myself. But, sir, my business is not with the Politician proper. He is an indispensable attachment to us for our well being and happiness—Let him to it then; but let us cleave unto those things which properly pertain to us. Let this be done for a space of twelve months and who can measure the probable results? if such a quiet and calm, as this interregnum would induce, could be brought with its hallowed influences to come over us—we should then be prepared to take a rational and philosophical view of our varied relations and dependencies in life—we should then be able justly to appreciate the untold merits of that interest in whose behalf I commenced this essay: and we should see clearly, that if we only obeyed the dictates and influences of that all controlling principle of human action—self interest—we should exert ourselves to the utmost, to foster, improve and elevate the Agriculture of our county, State and country. In politics we must ever have differences, but on this subject we can unite—no matter what isms prevail elsewhere—Clayism or Burenism) on this subject there should be no schism. I have ventured thus boldly to comment upon a subject, in whose welfare I feel a peculiar interest, and having thus in my imperfect way opened the subject—I shall endeavour in my next, if leisure serve me, to prosecute this matter in its varied connections—provided some member of our "Agricultural Board," where there are so many better qualified than myself should not summon courage enough to come out and speak in defence of that cause, at whose shrine he pays his regular and periodical devoirs.

I remain sir,

AGRAMATEUR.

EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, (MD.)

SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 26.

We understand the Whig members of our State Legislature have agreed to re-elect Mr. Merrick, to the Senate of the United States.

We have nothing new from Annapolis, Baltimore or Washington.—Our papers and letters from those places are a week old, on account of the failure of the Western Mail. As these are the days of Reform, why dont Amos reform a few of our mail contractors?—we are cursed with a set of them that would disgrace any country.

We have received the first No. of the 'SILK MANUAL & FARMER'S MAGAZINE' published in Baltimore by E. Yeates Reese.—We have no hesiation in recommending it to farmers and others.

We copy the following commendatory notice of our Democratic Governor's Inaugural address from the Philadelphia National Gazette.

Mr. Grason, the new Governor of Maryland, was inaugurated in the Capital at Annapolis on Monday last, with the usual ceremonies. He delivered a brief address to the assembly and citizens, which is a well meaning but feeble effort. On one point, the Governor, who, as we believe, abjured Federalism to swear allegiance to Jackson, departs from the theory of his heroic model. It is acknowledged on all hands that Jackson selected his officers on partizan grounds. Governor Grason says:

While the governor appointed annually by the Legislature, and was associated with an executive council, the errors of his administration, whether real or imaginary, were often ascribed to his constitutional advisers, and sometimes to that branch of the government upon which he was dependant for office. Being now elected by the people, and alone responsible for his official acts, he must expect to bear all the public censure and personal treatment, which may be incurred in the discharge of his duties. He therefore owes it to his own character, to the dignity of his office, and to the people who have honored him with their confidence, to depend in some degree upon his own judgment, in all his official proceedings, and to select, to office, such men, as he believes to be capable of serving the public, even if others, of inferior qualifications should have stronger claims upon his friend-ship, or present a greater number of recommendations.'

GOVERNOR VEAZEY.

In noticing the retirement of Gov. Veazey from office, after having served the constitutional term, the Frederick Herald of this morning remarks:—We need not say, that he carries into retirement with him, the gratitude of every good Whig, for the firmness that he displayed in the course of his administration during the traitorous rebellion of the nineteen, and that their best wishes attend him for his future prosperity and happiness.

RE-ELECTION OF DANIEL WEBSTER.

—In the Senate of Massachusetts, on Thursday, the Hon. Daniel Webster was re elected to represent that commonwealth in the Senate of the United States, for the term of six years from the 4th of March next.

Our correspondent from Harrisburg, says the National Gazette, writes as follows, respecting the proscriptions of the Governor:—"Mr. Porter is reforming the offices here as fast as they fall into his hands—he shows no mercy—all the incumbents from the Secretary to the sweepers of Chambers are turned adrift. James M. Porter, of Easton, the brother of the Governor, and a late convert to democracy, is master of ceremonies.—He distributes executive favors upon whom he will, and witholds them from all who do not come up to his notions of propriety.'

From the Baltimore Chronicle of Saturday last.

INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE.—We received yesterday the following letter from our Washington Correspondent. It gives us the result on the motion to appoint by ballot the Committee to investigate the defalcations of Mr. Swartwout—which was carried, yeas 113, nays 105—228 members present. The House then proceeded to ballot for the Committee, and the following gentlemen were chosen:

James Harlan, (Whig) of Kentucky.
Henry A. Wise, (Whig) of Virginia.
Edward Curtis, (Whig) of New York.
Willaim C. Dawson, (Whig) of Georgia.
Franklin H. Elmore, (Nul.) of S. Carolina.
Francis O. J. Smith, (Con.) of Maine.
Samuel Cushman, (L. F.) of New Hampshire.
George W. Hopkins, (Con.) of Virginia.
Edward B. Hubley, (L. F.) of Pennsylvania.

The Committee consists of four Whigs, two Conservatives, two Loco Focos, and one Nullifier.

On the first ballot Mr. Harlan received 125 votes, Mr. Curtis, 123, Mr. Wise 120, Mr. Dawson 119, Mr. Smith 117, Mr. Elmore 112 and were elected.—The opponents of investigation now gave up the contest, and on the second ballot there were but 125 votes given. Mr. Cushman received 99 votes, Mr. Hopkins 98 and Mr. Hubley 94. 'Never' writes a gentleman at Washington, 'did a party look more chop fallen than the Loco Focos after this result was announced.'

SELECT COMMITTEE ON DEFALCATIONS.

We learn that the Select Committee appointed by the House of Representatives to investigate the defalcations of the late Collector of the port of New York, and other officers, held a meeting on Monday, and elected Mr. Harlan, of Kentucky, Chairman, and Philip R. Fendall, Esq. of this city, Clerk.

We have also understood that the Committee have determined to commence their investigations in the city of New York, and will leave Washington City on Tuesday evening for that city.

The Committee are composed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. Harlan, Curtis, Wise, Dawson, Smith, Hopkins, Owens, Foster and Wagener.—[Nat. Intel.

To the Editor of the Easton Gazette.

Annapolis, Saturday night, 10 o'clock.
January 19, 1839.

My Dear Sir:

As said the sailor, here we are choc'k, block and belay. All is bustle and confusion, and so it has been, since the commencement of the session of the Legislature. The little City, is literally crowded with expectants and applicants for office; every Steamboat and stage that arrives, adds to the number. Yesterday the Maryland, brought her usual supply from Baltimore, and to day, the catalogue has been increased from the Eastern Shore. Among the latter, is a young man from your town, said, to have dealings with the Devil, whom it is supposed, will be kindly regarded by the powers that be, on account of his associations. The Governor, is in a quandary, or to use the more forcible expression of Captain Frack, he is in a category. To please and accommodate all, is utterly impossible; there being on an average, at least fifty applicants, to every office within his gift. I pity him, truly pity him! He complains not of ill health, but begins to look as lank and lean, as those thin-visaged expectants, who daily, nay, hourly favor him with their visits and confidance. If things keep on at this pace his excellency, will soon have to pray to be delivered from his friends, or they from excess of kindness, will bury the first Governor of Maryland elected by the people, in a premature grave. I do not speak figuratively but literally. Could you see the different varieties, genus and species, of animals unkennelled for the chase, if ever you offered a fervent petition to Heaven, you would offer one, for the life and liberty of our democratic Governor.

Some few days ago, I made my debut at the palace, and was duly received by the presiding officer, who was encircled by his friends and satteliites. All things went on joyously, until at the wine table, party tactics and policy, were introduced, when it was suggested, that perchance some were present, who had not been dyed in the wool. This, simple and unimportant as it seemed to me, threw a momentary shade over our conviviality. The government men, threw themselves back upon their reserved rights, and for a while, would not converse with any one, who wore not the impress of the beast upon his forehead. So very cautious were they, that a senior, refused to converse with an unmarked subaltern, until his excellency, kindly vouched for the rectitude of his principles. At this stage of affairs, I took leave of the host, and bowed myself out of the room. Sic transit gloria mundi.

The elite of the administration party, it is said, are to meet at the Governor's to night, for the purpose of arranging the list of nominations, that he, may present them to the Senate on Monday for confirmation; and that if not confirmed, they will be pocketed until the recess of the Legislature, when there will be none to gainsay his pleasure. Whether this be false or true I am not able to say, one thing however, is certain that since supper, few of the dyed in the wool, have been seen at Swan's.

I wish you to call at Mr. L——'s. Store, and tell him to send me one bolt of fine black cloth, upon which I think I can make a handsome speculation. Good cloth is unusually high and very scarce here, in consequence of the increased and increasing demand for it. Several administration men, who left home with new coats, have had to renew their supply already, having had their elbows tuged out and off, by their friends, who wished to say, a word or two to them in private about offices. So you see my dear sir, that the Governor, is not the only man of the party, who has been beset assailed and knocked into a category.

Soon after Monday as convenient, I shall write more at length, until which,

I remain my dear sir,
Your ob't. servant,
R. F.

From the Delaware Van Buren Gazette.
January 15.

We learn from Dover that Sussex is already wide awake in favor of the course pursued by the Reform delegation from that county, and letters and persons are pouring in from all quarters, advising the Reformers to vote for any Van Buren Senator. If our citizens possessed a portion of that firmness, determination and regard for their rights so abundantly displayed by the people of the Key Stone state on a recent occasion, and were to repair to the seat of government with the same alacrity to protect those rights, the whig members would, we suspect, be disposed to pursue a different course, and to hesitate before they attempt the perpetration of so great an outrage against all law and order, as is most evidently their design. [What next.]

FORTUNES. DEATH.—The correspondent of a New York paper says, in speaking of Florida, that it is the finest place in the world to make a fortune.—He says persons in the retail dry goods and grocery business have amassed there in two years, from 60,000 to 100,000 dollars above all expences: but as a sort of a draw-back, he mentions that the funeral bell is nearly as common there as the dinner bell.

OBITUARY.

Departed this life, at Wye Mills, on Thursday morning the 17th inst. after a long and severe suffering Mrs. Hester Ann, consort of Thomas Hopkins jr. in the 21st year of her age.

Mrs Hopkins was a fair example of christian resignation, patience, and fortitude—Although young, she was sensible that her days were but few; & however too soon, her departure, for her friends, not too soon for herself.

ATKINSON'S

EVENING POST

AND

PHILADELPHIA SATURDAY NEWS

A WEEKLY Family paper, devoted to Literature, Science, Arts, Foreign & Domestic Intelligence, &c. &c. published in Philadelphia, at Two Dollars per annum, payable in advance

The subscriber having recently purchased the proprietorship of the PHILADELPHIA SATURDAY NEWS, a weekly journal of wide circulation, and high literary character, proposes hereforth to issue that paper in connection with his own long established and well known periodical, the EVENING POST. By the junction of these two journals, the list of subscribers to the united publication will be among the greatest in the United States. To preserve and extend this ample circulation, the subscriber is determined to make every effort which his means will allow. Among the early improvements which he proposes to introduce, will be a finer quality of paper and other mechanical changes, which will tend to make the Evening Post and News one of the most elegant weekly papers which the country furnishes.

Upon the literary department of the Evening Post and News the subscriber intends to bestow particular attention. The editorial management of the paper is committed to a gentleman of high reputed qualifications and character, and negociations are now in progress by which the aid of the best talent in the country will be secured. With these accessions to his present able list of contributors, the subscriber does not hesitate to predict that in point of literary merit the Evening Post and News will speedily take rank among the first of our periodicals.

To his own patrons, many of whom have received the Evening Post since its commencement, the subscriber offers his assurances that the same attention to the inculcation of sound morals, blended with profitable amusement and useful instruction, which in years past has secured their approbation, shall still be directed to similar results; and to the patrons of the Saturday News, he offers assurances that the spirit, variety and abundance, both of original & selected literature, shall in no degree be diminished under his control. From the latter, therefore, he confidently expects a continuance of the favors so liberally bestowed on his predecessors, which it shall be his earnest study to merit.

TERMS,

Single number of the paper for 1 year, $2
Three copies 1 year, $5

Agents who favor us with $10 in current notes will be entitled to an extra volume of the Post, and a volume of the Casket for a past year.

Particular Notice to those persons who wish to take the Post & News

All payments must positively be made in advance, in as good current money as can be procured. Postage must invariably be paid on all communications addressed to the Publisher—unpaid letters are not taken from the post office, but are allowed to be returned to the General Post office department at Washington.

JOURNAL

OF THE

American Silk Society

AND

RURAL ECONOMIST.

At a Convention which met at Baltimore on the 11th of December last, composed of a great number of gentlemen from various parts of the Union, distinguished for their public services, patriotism & practical intelligence, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted after full discussion, in the course of which a great mass of facts and valuable information was elicited.

Resolved, That it is the deliberate opinion of this Convention that Silk may be grown in all the United States, not only for domestic purposes, but as a valuable article of commercial export—thereby giving an active employment to American labour, and retaining millions of dollars in our country, that are annually sent out of it for the purchase of silken goods.

Resolved, That a National Silk Journal ought to be established under the auspices of the Executive Committee, and all the funds over and above the support of said paper ought to be devoted to the advancement of the silk cause in the United States.

Under the latter resolution the subscriber has been solicited to assume the editorial superintendence of the Journal to be published by the Society, and now, with not the least abatement of that fondness (not to say passion,) for rural life, and all its pursuits, which prompted him eighteen years since to issue the first number of the old American Farmer, he is but too happy to salute once more his old friends and correspondents, promising to deserve new ones by the most assiduous endeavours, (not incompatible with strict attention to his official duties,) to accelerate the growth and progress of what he is convinced is destined to become a great branch of national industry, bringing into active exercise much of the now unproductive laboring power of the country, giving comfort to the widow and the orphan, by offering them suitable and remunerating employment, and making, in the aggregate, a large addition to the wealth and prosperity of our beloved Union.

Though SILK and every thing connected with its production and all improvements in machinery for its preparation and manufacture, will constitute the chief design and aim of the Journal, for the sake of the agreeable and useful variety, a considerable portion of its pages will be dedicated to the justly popular and kindred subjects of agriculture, horticulture, and rural and domestic economy—Hence, the adjunctive title 'RURAL ECONOMIST.'

J. S SKINNER.

The Journal of the American Silk Society will be published monthly, in pamphlet form each number will contain thirty-two pages, printed on new type and handsome paper, with a printed coloured cover.

All persons friendly to the objects of the Journal will please collect at once and transmit the names and subscription money of those who may feel disposed to patronize it.

TERMS.

Two Dollars a year, or six copies for Ten Dollars, always to be paid before the work is sent All subscriptions to begin with the first number of the year, and in no case will the work be sent to any subscriber longer than it shall have been paid for.

All communications to be addressed, post paid, to GIDEON B. SMITH, Corresponding Secretary of the Society.

All Editors of papers who may desire to see Silk added to the list of American Staples; and who will have the kindness to give this prospectus a few insertions, will be entitled to a copy of the Journal.
