the bounds of reason" we admit, and possibly a great reaction may take place the next season to the disadvantage of mulberry growers. Yet we think that those who have connected with the growth of the tree, the rearing of worms and the production of silk are on the high road to wealth, and will certainly do by this business what they could not, in so short a time, have done by any other, gained a fortune.—Salem Banner.

EASTON GAZETTE.
EASTON, MD.
Saturday Morning, May 25.

THE CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE.

It is desirable that as early a day as possible should be fixed upon by the Whigs of the district for the nomination of their Congressional candidate. Heretofore the meetings or conventions, have been held in Centreville, and it is proposed now to hold one in the same place? What say the Editors of the Easton Gazette and Kent Bugle?

We propose that the Whigs of Cecil, Kent, Caroline, Queen Ann's and Talbot counties proceed at once to hold county or District meetings, and that the Delegates appointed at said meetings meet in general convention in Centreville on the 3rd Tuesday in June, for the nomination of a candidate for Congress from this district.

We publish the above editorial notice from the Centreville Times of the 18th inst. in relation to a proper time and place for holding a convention of Delegates for Cecil, Kent, Queen Anns, and Talbot Counties, for nominating a Whig Candidate for Congress for the District composed of the above counties. To the place designated, Centreville, we have not the slightest objection, but as to the time although we are not very punctilious, we should prefer another. With deference to our brother of the Times, we should propose the 4th of July next as the time of holding this convention. This day we think particularly suited to the public doings of the Whigs, as the right line descendants of the Whigs of the Revolution. Added to this, our Harvest will probably be over before that time, and our farmers will have leisure to attend to the great concerns of the nation.

WHIGS STATE CONVENTION IN IN CONNECTICUT.

The Whigs of Connecticut in State Convention at Hartford on Wednesday last elected the following gentlemen to represent the Whigs of the State in the National Convention to be holden at Harrisburg, in December next:

CHARLES DAVEIS,
WILLIAM W. BOARDMAN,
CHARLES N. ROCKWELL,
CHARLES HANBLY,
JOSEPH S. GLADDING,
E. C. BACON,
EBENEZER JACKSON,
JOHN S. PETERS,

This is one member from each County, and a substitute has been chosen by the Convention should either of these gentlemen decline serving.

THE CHRONICLE.—The editor of the Baltimore Chronicle has sold an interest in that establishment to Mr. Nathan Parker, who will hereafter be united with Mr Poe, in the publication of the paper. The last mentioned gentleman will still have the chief superintendance of the editorial department of the paper for which his happy talents as a writer eminently qualify him.

THE CROPS.—The Hagerstown (Md.) Torch Light of Thursday morning says: "We learn that the growing wheat crop, in this section of country, has not presented a more promising appearance, for many years, than it does at present. The rye, generally speaking, does not look well and will not probably yield more than half a crop. The grass is short and pasture scarce. It is too early yet to form any opinion as to oats and corn. The weather is now pleasant and seasonable, and the ground in good growing order."

The Frederick (Md.) Citizen of Friday morning says:—"The season has been uncommonly propitious for the grain crops in this section, and if we may judge at this early stage, there is every probability of a plentiful harvest to crown the labors of the agriculturalists."

The Westminster (Md.) Carrolltonian of yesterday morning says:—"It is too soon to speak with much certainty about the growing crops of Grain. We can say, however, that at this season of the year, the Wheat has not presented a better appearance in our county, for a length of time; and unless the farmer is disappointed in his anticipated expectations; the product will be great. The Rye is only tolerable, and cannot be, under any circumstances, a very heavy crop. The season, thus far, for Corn and Oats, has been propitious."

The Martinsburg (Va) Gazette of Thursday, speaks of them in that part of Virginia: "In old Berkely, if present appearances be a guide, the agriculturalists will meet with an ample return, for their toil and labor. And the prospect of a fine crop must be gratifying to all classes, as the success of the farmer exerts so material an influence on the vocation of every one in this country."

FROM FLORIDA.

Our latest accounts from Florida, we are sorry to say, are any thing but consoling to the patriot or the philanthropist. In the Pennsylvania Gazette of the 11th inst. we find the following paragraph:

'THE SEMINOLE WAR.—No hopes seem to be any longer entertained that the embassy of General Macomb to the Seminoles will end in any thing beneficial. Lieut. Reynolds, who passed through this place last week on his way from Tampa Bay, brings intelligence that the chief on whose good offices General Macomb chiefly relied, has not only refused to treat, but has betaken himself and all his people to the woods. The truth is, they consider the whites to have been badly whipped, and it is nearly time that we should take the same view of the matter. The language they now use is, 'Let us alone and we will not molest you—remain at your post or your homes, and we will not attack you—but if you make war on us, we will fight as long as our ammunition lasts, and when this is gone we will take to the bow and arrow.'

From another quarter of Florida the last mail brought us the following distressing intelligence:—

From the Apalachicola Gazette.

MORE INDIAN MURDERS.—We received by the mail boat Commerce, this evening, the following information:

A party of 15 or 20 Indians, recognized to be Creeks, simultaneously attacked the settlements of Roberts, at Stefanulgee, and John and Nathan Smith's, Rico's Bluff. They burnt Roberts' house, killed a little boy, and wounded Roberts himself, who, with his wife a man named Aldrich, and four children, escaped.

At Smith's settlement, it is supposed that Nathan Smith's three children, a Mrs. Richards and her five children, and a man named White, were murdered. N. Smith, with his wife, another woman and two men, escaped. John Lamb was severely wounded; he recognised the Indians to be Creeks. Sixteen of the fugitives, men, women, and children, came down on the mail boat, and are completely destitute. Several of the Indians were seen on the banks of the river as the boat came through the narrows seven miles above Fort Gadsden.

A proposition of a most singular character has been made to the President, and referred to the Secretary of War, and by him submitted to Gen. Macomb. An individual from the North proposes the employment of NEWFOUNDLAND DOGS, which he states he will furnish at six dollars per head; or he will contract to terminate the war within a specified time, upon certain conditions. The General has not yet decided upon this novel proposition, though he has it under consideration.—[Potomac Advocate.

GOV. GRASON has commuted the sentences of six criminals lately found guilty of assault and battery in its most aggravated form, and sentenced by the court of Anne Arundel county, to be punished according to their respective deserts. We have waited to see upon what pretence our come-by-chance Governor thus undertook to interfere with the course of justice. No apology has yet appeared for this wholesale exercise of a prerogative, which was never intended for common use, and in regard to the exercise of which, this self same functionary professed such extreme delicacy.—Is it a propitiary sacrifice to the true grit of Baltimore? What will be the benefit of laws if their penalties are thus rendered null and void? With such an example of clemency before them: ruffians may beat and main and murder with impunity. The fellows whose sentences are commuted were well convinced of their own guilt. They all fled and were taken in Washington county, by the energetic police of Baltimore, and carried through this place in irons. They might have saved themselves the trouble and expense of running off, had they known what kindness awaited them at the hands of Gov. Grason.—[Frederick Examiner.

☞Queen Ann's county court has been in session for 11 days the judges, the lawyers, the jurors, bailiffs and all, somewhat jaded of course.

On Wednesday last, the case of Negro Sherry Wilson, charged with the offence of reading improper books to slaves was tried, Sherry was found guilty of the offence—a sentence to 10 years imprisonment in the Penitentiary awaits him—he is about 55 years of age.—[Centreville Times of Saturday last.

RANDOM SHOT, No 9.

Ah! let her crime—a little spot
Be lost amidst her blaze of charms.
PINDAR.

In a former number, my readers were presented with a faint sketch of the portrait of envy. However well, or ill drawn it may have been, it was impossible to give them any other than a homely picture of so unsightly an original. As disgusting indeed, as is any representation of this depraved feeling of human nature when contemplated without our being sensible of its abode in our own hearts, I fear there are few, if any, who are wholly exempt from its pollution. Instead of resuming the subject, and attempting to carry it out more into detail, I shall occupy the residue of the space allotted to this number with the following letter, just received from one of the fair sex; and without comment shall permit it to explain itself.

May 11th, 1839.

SIR:—Be assured that I have looked on with other feelings than those of indifference at the occasional Random Shot, you have been firing from your literary recluse. As I had imagined myself free from all danger of being found along their range; with perfect confidence of safety I had diverted myself by observing the effect of the successive shot, upon the indiscriminate groups at which they were discharged. The great majority seemed to regard them with entire unconcern; and by no movement that I could perceive did they appear even to hear the report of your piece. Now and then, I thought I noticed an individual or two who by a sudden violence of gesture gave evidence of being hurt. Not a wound was mortal; nor was any serious injury whatever inflicted. And I remarked, those who were made sore in the least, healed themselves almost immediately, by an ointment, called self-conceit, which they keep constantly about their persons. Those who paid any other attention to the explosions, in imitation of my example merely amused themselves by watching the effect they might produce upon the rest.

As I was saying, I had been very quietly observing these things, without suspecting myself to be in any peril, when the chapter on envy all at once led me to fear I had been yielding to this execrable emotion. A certain friend of mine whom I highly respect, and love very dearly, comes perhaps the nearest to perfection of any one within the circle of my acquaintance. She is a professor of the christian religion, and openly avows her sentiments by communion at the Lord's Table. Her piety, in every respect, is of a high order. Her manners are grave without being gloomy; and she is cheerful without being light. Her information is extensive; and her taste is matured by the choicest literature. Her person is comely, and her features are beautiful. She seems a personification of dignity whether she sits or stands: when she moves a meek and winning gracefulness attends every step. In society, she talks clearly and pleasantly when it becomes her to speak; or, listens with patient and kind attention to the conversation of others. There is but one thing, sir, pertaining to her manners, that has ever displeased me. Whenever censure is passed upon an absent person, she at once becomes silent and looks austere. And if she is pressed to give her opinion she not only resolutely refuses, but with much plainness of speech, chides the offender whom she charges with being 'guilty of a heinous offence.' I know not how many pleasant parties have been thus unexpectedly broken up. Will you be good enough to inform me, sir, why it is, (I have been afraid lately, it was envy of her superiority) why it is, that this single eccentricity, which, after all, can scarcely be termed a fault, should cause not a few of my acquaintances to accuse her of stiffness and pride?

SAILOR'S DREAD OF FRIDAY.—Columbus sailed from Spain on Friday discovered land on Friday, and re-entered the port of Palos on Friday. These curious coincidences should have sufficed, one might think, to dispel the superstitious dread still so prevalent of commencing a voyage on that ominous day."

To our certain knowledge, the keel of Old Ironsides, was laid on Friday; she was launched on Friday; went to sea on Friday; fought her first battle on Friday; and discovered she had lost Gen. Jackson's figure head on Friday.

STEAM MEN-OF-WAR.—The success of the Gorgon, just returned from a six months' cruise on the coast of Spain, has been so pre-eminent that the Lords of the Admiralty have given orders for five more pair of engines on the same principle to be fitted into five new frigates. One of these (the Cyclops) will be 1,300 tons burden, with engines of 320 horse power. She will carry 26 guns, and be the largest man-of war steamer in the world.—[London Atlas.

Ranaway from the subscriber, living in Talbot county, on Saturday the 18th inst. a negro man named

PHILL WILLSON,

Aged about 21 years, of a black complexion and about five feet ten inches high, he had a variety of clothes, among which was an old black cloth coat and some new summer clothes of cotton Oznaburg—no flesh marks recollected he speaks quick when spoken to and appears frightened but in a short time becomes rather sulky.—This negro was hired to me, for the present year, by Mr White Barwick, Guardian to John P. Anthony, of Caroline county. It is supposed that Phill was persuaded off by a free negro woman, named Sina, the wife of a negro named Warner, of this county, she having been apparently intimate with him for some time past and being now absent from her home. A reward of $100 will be paid by Mr Barwick, if taken out of the state, or $50 if taken in the state and secured in Denton or Easton Jail.
