odist and Catholic Churches held and attended by crowds of all professions; and we may add the Diocesan Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Maryland; all worshipping in their own temples, occupying the same position in the eye of the law, and none to make them afraid. These sights are so common that they are hardly observed, and few reflect that in this country alone of all the earth they are allowed to exist.

To THEODORE R. LOOCKERMAN, Esq.

Dear Sir:

It becomes our duty to apprise you that at a Convention of Whig Delegates, from the several counties of this district, convened at Centreville this day, you were unanimously chosen the candidate for Elector of President and Vice President of the United States.—At the same time we communicate to you the confidence thus expressed by the Convention in your ability and zeal in the patriotic cause in which the Whigs of Maryland are now engaged and which we believe to be identified with the prosperity of our common country, allow us to add individually our high respect for you personally.

JNO. C. RUTH, Chairman.
WM. HEMSLEY, Secretary.

CENTREVILLE, JUNE 3rd, 1840.

EASTON, JUNE 10, 1840.

Dear Sir:

My professional engagements preparatory to our adjourned Court, which sat on yesterday, have caused the delay which has occurred in replying to your favor of the 3d inst. received some days since, by the hands of John Stevens, Esq. By yours of that date, I am informed that at the Convention of Whig Delegates from the several counties of this district, to nominate an Electoral Candidate of President and Vice President of the United States, held on that day at Centreville, I was unanimously nominated, as the candidate for Elector for this Congressional District.

Having heretofore served my fellow-citizens in this character, although in a much more limited sphere of operation, the District System at that time prevailing, I am not altogether ignorant of the toil to which this position before the people is peculiarly exposed. And notwithstanding I am highly flattered by this evidence of the confidence of my fellow-citizens of the Convention, I should shrink from the duty assigned me were I not deeply sensible of the importance of the crisis to which our country has arrived—And while I am sincere in the wish that another had been selected, I cannot feel at liberty to decline this nomination as much inconvenience to the party might be the consequence. My humble services therefore, shall be yielded as far as practicable, to the advancement of the cause of patriotism and national honour in which we have embarked.

Be pleased to communicate to the Convention my profound acknowledgments for the honour they have conferred upon me, and accept for yourself, my sincere thanks for the very grateful terms in which you have announced its determination.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
T. R. LOOCKERMAN.

JOHN C. RUTH, Esq., Chairman of the Whig Convention, held on the 3d inst. at Centreville.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL BISHOP OF MARYLAND.—The Baltimore American says: We are authorized to state that a reply has been received by the Committee of the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Maryland, from the Rev. Dr. WHITTINGHAM, accepting his appointment to the office of Bishop of this diocese.

We learn that Bishop Soule has been unanimously appointed by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, a delegate to attend the conference of the Wesleyan connexion in England, in 1842.

A HARRISON TURN OUT AT DENTON.

Whatever the Harrison boys of Caroline do, they do nicely and cleverly, any one would have thought so who witnessed their proceedings on Tuesday last.

About 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a large number of the citizens of the county having formed in order, marched into Denton with music, and banners, and flags flying, giving spirit and animation to all about them. They were greeted on all sides with cheers from the gentlemen, and smiles and witching looks from the ladies.

The procession consisted of a considerable number of gentlemen on foot, as well as a number in vehicles of different kinds, two very handsome Log Cabins one of which was built by the citizens of the upper, and the other by the citizens of the middle District, led the van. The Cabins were drawn by grey horses, and had various inscriptions upon their doors, and fronts. One had a grey fox skin nailed on the out side of it and a hicory broom projected out of the chimney. The other had several agricultural implements hanging on the side of it, as well as some few implements of cookery, and a dozen or two of good red or white herrings hung near the door.

There were seen from ten to a dozen flags and banners with appropriate mottoes, borne by those in the procession—One of the banners had on it—No Reduction of wages—another had—The People are coming—another had, Harrison and Tyler, all handsomely painted.

After proceeding through the town, the procession halted near the Court House, and was addressed Z. W. Potter, Esq. one of the Delegates from the county, to the late General Assembly of Maryland, and a marshal of the day. Mr. Potter was exceedingly animated in his remarks and in warm and indignant tones, repelled the various slanders against the farmer and soldier of North Bend, which have been going the rounds of the Loco Foco press. He spoke about an hour and a half, during which time the cheers of a gratified assembly bespoke their excited feelings. Mr. Potter was followed by other gentlemen, and at about 5 o'clock the speaking terminated.

Take it altogether, it was one of the most enlivening occasions of our life, and gave rise to the most joyous emotions, having in prospect, the redemption of our beloved country from the hands of its oppressors and spoilers.

It was impossible not to see in this little instance, the gallant spirit which animates the Whigs of Caroline. She pledges herself to her sister counties on the altar of honour, to be up and adoing in the good and holy cause of Reform and whigism—she will not tire; she will not abate her zeal, or her efforts, in the glorious struggle, but will go on till the spoilers shall be driven from the Capitol, and her country be once more governed by good and honest rulers.—[Times.

THE GREAT CELEBRATION

ON THE TIPPECANOE BATTLE GROUND,

Fifteen Solid Acres of Men.

Correspondence of the Balt. Patriot.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 1, 1840.

Presuming that some account of the great Convention of the 29th ult. on the Tippecanoe Battle Ground, may be interesting to you, I hasten to give you a faint sketch, such as I have obtained from several intelligent delegates now here on their return home.

For several days previous to the 29th, every avenue leading towards the Battle Ground, was filled with wagons, loaded with delegates, horsemen, and foot passengers, wending their way to this proud spot for our American arms—and when all were assembled, such a multitude has never been beheld in the interior of the United States—the number cannot with any approximation to certainty be ascertained—it is variously guessed at from 40,000 to 50,000, all agree that there were FIFTEEN ACRES OF MEN, besides from 3,000 to 6,000 females, and the encampment might not inappropriately, be compared to Darius' vast encampment preparatory to his descent up on Greece; and this vast concourse of citizens spontaneously assembled at a season of the year when the agriculturist has much to do at home, when all classes are ground down, as it were, to powder, by an iron administration! But such an universal enthusiasm pervades this section of country, in favor of Gen. Harrison, that nothing could restrain the people from seizing this occasion to do him honor.

Over this immense meeting Jonathan M'Carty, formerly a member of Congress from this State, was chosen President, and six other citizens, Vice Presidents—these presided over the fifteen acres, each county having its separate organization.

Some considerable number was in attendance from other States, but probably four-fifths of the whole, were real Hoosiers, all "good Harrison men and true," with the exception of a very few Locos who came to "spy out the nakedness of the land." Verily, they might report, that "the giants, the sons of Anak dwelt there;" but I should not be surprised if they should report the whole a failure—it would only be of a piece with their reports of your great Baltimore Convention.

I might say much of the Log Cabins, the camp equipage and banners, but I will leave this for other hands, with the exception of one banner, I think from Wayne county, exhibiting a down fall scene. A little gentleman, probably Mr. Van Buren, appears on the canvass, several persons are seen near him, who have let go a cider barrel, and the little gentleman is running at the top of his speed and bellowing, "stop that barrel!"

Gen. Harrison was invited by a committee, specially appointed for that purpose, to be present at the Battle Ground, but declined as it is understood, on the ground, that it might be improper, considering his position before the people, to give his attendance at this Convention. I need not make any remarks on the contrast that will be at once apparent between the nice sense of honor and propriety shown by Gen. Harrison in this matter, and that of Mr Van Buren in his grand tour through New York, &c.

A scene of considerable interest took place on Friday, the first day of the Convention—a number of old soldiers of Gen Harrison, presented to Mr. Brooks, of the New York Express, a flag that was borne by the distinguished Spencer, in the battle of Tippecanoe. It was presented with a few appropriate remarks by the venerable Judge Polk, and on its reception, Mr. Brooks made an exceedingly happy allusion to its mutilation, being a good emblem of the torn and distracted state of the country.

This Convention has been looked forward to with much interest by the citizens of this State, and no doubt, others have looked to it as an index to the opinion here entertained of Gen. Harrison. I trust the expectations by all have been fully realized, and that Indiana may by this, her decisive testimony, prove that she believes not the foul calumnies that have been heaped on her beloved Harrison.

Maryland Senatorial Election.—Under the new constitution, the seats of seven State Senators will be vacated the ensuing fall. The counties in which these vacancies occur are Worcester, Queen Ann's, Cecil, Baltimore, Washington, Alleghany and Baltimore city; in which elections must be held for Senators, in October next. The political complexion of the retiring Senators, are five Van Buren, and two Whig members; but from present indications, that complexion will be reversed and five Whigs, two Van Burenites will be returned.

For the Easton Gazette.

Mr. Graham:—

I noticed some few weeks since in your paper an article stating that the writer was a Whig and advising the Whig Commissioners, forming a majority of the Board, to act more and preach less—now Sir my object is nothing but good citizenship, and I would entreat all good citizens, be they Whig or any thing you please, to act at once upon the Point Road.—If you will take a few steps to the head of the Road between our old friend J. Ozman's and Mr. Wheeler's Stores you may view one of the prettiest pieces of Road in the county, I venture to assert—then if you please take it from the Point up and the beauty is unsurpassed by any road in the State, if it was put in order—and this can be done with little expense, by making a straight ditch on each side. Some young spirited farmers, owning property on the road, have already commenced the work and all would, I have no doubt, follow if the thing could be properly understood through the right source, the Commissioners who have the road under their charge. If the Commissioners do not feel themselves able to do the work, let them propose to persons individually to ditch the road opposite their own property handsomely and to correspond.—I feel assured that it would be done and that when able they would settle the bill whatever way in their judgment, may prove satisfactory. If this plan should fail, then give it to some individual in whom you can place confidence, as a working man, one who would act immediately and it should be one holding property alongside and I venture to assert it will be done. Suggest the propriety of each individual to have a small bridge across his way to each of his Lots, this is needed only on the right hand side and there is as many as half dozen at this time, letting the water pass from one end to the other.—Now sir, what will be the cost, not more than $2 each—the out side 2 3-4 W. Pine about 18 inches wide and 14 feet long and four sleepers, which can be had at any wood pile, and one or two pound spike nails. I would earnestly entreat the Commissioners to take it in hand at once, upon examination they will find it only wants ditching to make as fine a road as is to be found in the county for farmership, if nothing else.—Look at the crops, corn, wheat, clover, potatoes, every thing that will gladen the heart you see cultivated in first rate order on each side.
