Grand Harrison Festival.

AT EASTON, TALBOT COUNTY, MARYLAND.

On Tuesday afternoon, the 14th inst. our town was in a state of agreeable commotion, in consequence of the expected arrival of the Steam Boat Maryland, with a large number of Whigs from the Monumental City—those who glory in having unfurled the standard of Harrison and Reform—and by the gradual entrance of numerous companies of "the bone and sinew" of the Eastern Shore, coming from the North and from the South and from the East of our Peninsular borders to attend the great Central Meeting.

The approach of the Maryland to Easton Point was no sooner known in town than carriages were despatched for those, who came passengers, but as the hour when the Maryland would arrive, was uncertain, and it had been given out that the main body of the patriotic phalanx from Baltimore would not reach the place of meeting till the next morning in the Carroll, of Carrollton the committee of reception were not prepared to assemble at the Point; but a procession having been formed by the passengers, they marched to the town and were aided by their Whig friends in procuring quarters and accommodations.

About sundown, companies of enthusiastic Whigs from the neighboring counties poured in, and after being individually greeted by and greeting their friends disposed themselves in the quarters provided in the town, and hilarity, good humour and anticipated triumph in the great canvass prevailed in every circle during the evening.

Before the morning's dawn the grounds appropriated to the convention were completely filled up with every convenience for the Grand Council and for the Festival; and a more substantial and more agreeable entertainment could not have been gotten up any where for so large a body of men with less difficulty and trouble. A dinner table was spread for 800 at a time, and all were satisfied. Cold Water from the "cool spring" of James Parrott, Esq. which was flowing immediately before the site of the dining place, supplied every man to his heart's content, and not one drop of ardent spirit made its appearance on the ground, either at table, or in tent or shed or Log Cabin. It was, in truth, an assemblage of honest-hearted citizens, who feel the responsibilities of their citizenship;—who had come together, NEARLY FIVE THOUSAND STRONG, to ask

"Is there no anchorage—no harbour nigh
To save from wreck the Good Ship Liberty?"

Worcester and Somerset were represented notwithstanding their distance, the engagements of their yeoman in the oat-harvest, and their recent great meeting on the 4th at Barren Creek. Dorchester was there, in full body and Whig spirit, and swelled the gathering of the People. Queen Ann 's was there with emblems of faith in the "Farmer of North Bend." The Kentish Men were there with all their wonted enthusiasm and erect confidence in the success of the great cause;—the Kentish Men, who, in October 1813 in county meeting assembled, declared, that they had found in Gen. William Henry Harrison, the patriot and the soldier, "whose courage, activity and zeal had proved TO THE WORLD-that all our General's were not Hulls." Hope brightened the countenances of a Spartan band from Cecil.

Caroline with her hundreds was there, bearing upon her banner well grounded fears of oppression and standing armies, and among her hardy sons might have been seen a firm, but resolute band from the "Lower District," "Oftimes beat but never conquered," being "a small branch of OLD TIP's committee" ready for their OWN VOTING in November next.

At about six o'clock in the morning, the Steam Boat Carroll, arrived with the great body of TIPPECANOES from the City of Baltimore and many distinguished members of Congress. Special delegations from the County of Calvert and the ancient City of Annapolis, whose citizens have a chartered right to "full and free votes and voices" also appeared to interchange patriotic greetings with their Eastern Shore brethren. Having been formed, with admirable precision, the procession under Gen. T. Tilghman, as Chief Marshal, with his aids and assistant Marshals from the different districts of the county, marched to the martial music of several excellent Bands from the green on "the Landing Road" to the grounds appropriated to the meeting.—The firing of cannon was the signal for the moving of the procession, and with their Emblems, Banners, and badges, the procession moved through the principal streets of the town.

As soon as the vast assembly was arranged and settled in the council field and as many provided with seats as possible the Convention was organized by an announcement from the committee of arrangements of the selection of a President, eight Vice Presidents and four Secretaries. They were as follows. The Hon. JAMES A. PEARCE, our late Whig Representative in Congress, President, and the following gentlemen, as Vice Presidents,

John C. Groome, of Cecil.
George Vickers of Kent,
John Brown, of Queen Ann's,
Thomas Burchenal, of Caroline.
Ed'd. N. Hambleton, of Talbot,
Dr. Wm. W. Williams of Somerset,
T. Townsend, of Worcester.

And the following gentlemen were also announced as secretaries.

James Parrott,
Zebdial W. Potter,
Thomas H. Ford,
William Rea. } Esq'rs.

Mr. Pearce, as the Presiding officer, opened the proceedings of the convention by a short speech characterized by much force of indignant eloquence and manly denunciation of the existing administration, and with a confident expression of his views and hopes of a triumphant issue of the canvass which the opposition are now waging against it.

The Hon. J. J. Crittenden, of Kentucky, was then introduced to the People by his friend, the Hon. John Leeds Kerr one of our Electoral Candidates for the State at large, and addressing himself to their reason, good sense and patriotism, continued for some time to portray the false professions and inconsistencies of which the Executive and his followers have been guilty, and the destructive and fatal consequences to the People of which their course must be productive. A more appropriate, temperate, ye trident and eloquent speech, could not have been addressed to such an audience. All were evidently delighted with the orator, for all were enchained by his happy manner, noble frankness and power of speech. Even gentlemen of the strictest of the sect of the Locofocos, who were present,—aye, intelligent men, though misguided by the fanaticism of party, could not withhold the meed of their applause and respect for so able an advocate of the People's Cause.

When upon the topic of Gen. Harrison's character and services to his country, and the gross misrepresentations of them, his eye displayed the honest feelings of his heart and the indignant denial and reproof which fell from his lips, made a deep impression upon every man's bosom. He spake as an eye witness and an ear witness, for by a question unexpectedly put to him by one of the meeting, he was compelled to say, that he was fighting under Gen. Harrison at the Battle of the Thames, and that HE saw him and could avouch for his cool, deliberate and soldier like conduct.

The Hon. T. B. King, of Georgia was next introduced. Mr. King, being a southern man, and it is said, one of the largest slave holders in his own State, was surely a good witness of the confidence, which SOUTHERN men may repose in the soundness of Gen. Harrison's principles in regard to the subject of Abolitionism which has been made a topic of calumnious animadversion against him. Mr. King at considerable length and with great force and power gave his views upon this subject and sustained to the satisfaction of every reflecting and unbiassed man the correct principles of the opposition party.

Richard J. Bowie, Esq. of Montgomery, one of the Electoral candidates of Maryland, addressed the assembly to their great pleasure and satisfaction.

The Hon. Daniel Jenifer, one of our distinguished representatives in Congress then came forth and exposed the bold and unpatriotic course of the administration party in Congress, and the disgraceful and barefaced inconsistencies the twisting and turning of men, once in good repute amongst their own constituents and with the world, but lost, as he represented, to all sense of duty even of what they owed to themselves. We cannot pretend to give a representation of Mr. Jenifer's speech. It was a bold, fearless denunciation of all things in the government, as administered by the prominent Chiefs of Faction and Misrule. In short he kept up such a rapid fire upon the evil doers and particularly upon the new fangled palace guards, giving his proofs, as he went along and pledging his solemn endorsement for their authenticity and truth, that we could hardly keep up with him, though listening as every one did, with pleased surprise and gratification to hear this bold Champion of the Faith.

Reverdy Johnson, Esq. of Baltimore, next presented himself to the convention and gave at large his views of the course and conduct of the Executive and Administration, and of the necessity for the most energetic efforts on the part of the people, to effect a change.

The Hon. Mr. Graves, of Kentucky, a member of the House of Representatives in Congress, now came forward, and with simple and unaffected language soon gained the ear of the whole assembly. Mr. Graves, with the force of truth and reason, appealed to the good sense and patriotism of those who listened to him gradually winning confidence and fixing profound attention to his speech, in so much that when he express his design to close his remarks, he was compelled to proceed by the universal plaudit and request of the people before him. He, too, could speak of Gen. Harrison from personal and intimate knowledge for he, too, with his patriotic Kentucky neighbors, had gone out in defence of his country under the command of Harrison, and could bear testimony of his courage and noble daring. But, it was when Mr. Graves was speaking of the cruel effects of the Administration measures to destroy all confidence and credit in the country the feelings of his audience were aroused to a painful pitch of sensibility to the threatening ruin. He was prevented from closing his remarks by several distinct and earnest calls to GO ON and at the close he received a most unfeigned evidence of confidence and respect.

John P. Kennedy, Esq., a Whig Electoral Candidate, presented himself and made a deliberative, able, and forcible speech in support of the cause of opposition and not a little destructive of his Loco-foco friends.

We had then the pleasure of listening to an eloquent and forcible speech from Jas. M. Coale, Esq. of Frederick county, one of our Candidates for the Electorship, which was listened to with deep attention by the meeting.

Several other Gentlemen would have addressed the convention but the evening was far spent and the engagements of the Whig members of Congress from Washington compelled them that night to depart in the Steam Boat, and the business of our "Tippecanoe" brethren from Baltimore and of our own Farmers and Mechanics of the Eastern Shore indicated a close of the Convention.

Thos. A. Spence, Esq. of Worcester, and Dr. Jacob A. Preston, of Harford, Electoral Candidates were present, but declined speaking.—The Hon. J. L. Kerr, an Electoral Candidate for the State at large, though intending to address the convention at an early stage of its proceedings, purposely withheld himself to give way for the invited guests; and so also did our friend and neighbor, Theodore R. Loockerman Esq. the candidate for our District.

Great regret was expressed for the absence of Gov. Howard and William T. Wootton, Esq., two others of our electoral candidates.

The introduction of several Harrison songs served to enliven the meeting, and we trust, our friends throughout the Shore will see, that music and song hereafter should find a regular place in the ceremonies of every Tippecanoe gathering. It may well be asked what brings these great gatherings of the People together, if it be not a settled conviction on their part, that all is not right?—It is no every day concern that could induce people to take a trial at this sultry season away from their pleasant homes in such vast numbers, as were congregegated here on the 15th. The fact of their so doing should convince every thinking man in our community, that some assassin blow is aimed at the heart of Freedom.

"For Lo! the people's self inflicted curse
Waves with one hand the sword—while t'other grasps the purse!"

On Thursday evening at 8 o'clock a large assemblage of Whigs, intermingled with some portion of our Van Buren neighbors of Easton, met at the Convention ground and listened with the great est attention to an able speech from David Hoffman, Esq. one of the Electoral candidates for the State at large, who, from the lateness of the hour declined addressing the Convention the evening before. Mr. Hoffman's subject was the origin, state and condition of the parties in the country and he directed severe reproof against the principles and practices of the present, Loco foco, pretended Democratic party, which is kept together alone by the ties of selfish ambition and the desire of office. The first part of the address was profound and philosophical and often eloquent, and it received much applause; but the rapid progress of the night admonished him to shorten his argument of many topics, he evidently intended to introduce and the last scene of our Whig Counsels on this interesting occasion, closed in peace.

Extract of a letter to the Editor, dated
Baltimore, July 12, 1840.

"Last evening the Hon. James Garland, of Virginia addressed a large concourse of citizens at Monument square. His speech which was some two hours length, was able and eloquent in a remarkable degree. I do not remember ever to have heard, before any primary assembly of the people, a display of arguments more powerful in themselves, or more felicitously handled. His appeals were fervid, and often intensely thrilling, but addressed to the reason and not to the passions of his auditors. He was sometimes, when commenting on the acts and policy of the Government, most keenly sarcastic, but without the slightest tinge of personality. In short he seemed to combine in himself, the old fashioned Virginia patriot, with the thorough bred Virginia gentleman. I never witnessed a more attentive or more interested meeting. The only approach to disburbance that I saw, was on the part of a hard featured loco foco who stood near me, and who occasionally interrupted the surrounding quiet, by muttering and grumbling in a tone which seemed only to say: "I don't want to be convinced—I didn't come here to be convinced—and curse me if I'll be convinced."—At length Mr. Garland was called upon by one of his friends for a few remarks upon the silly charge that Gen. Harrison voted in favor of SELLING WHITE MEN, &c. with which request he complied, and shewed satisfactorily that the delinquents proposed to be sold, were not DEBTORS but CRIMINALS—men who in Maryland or Virginia, would be condemned to hard labor in the PENITENTIARY—and that the motives of General Harrison, were those of mercy, not of enmity to the poor man—ay, even the POOR CRIMINAL. The hard featured loco foco, however, stuck firmly to his text, "I won't be convinced,"—and became more audible in growling out, what ain't so—I saw the contrary in the Republican—I don't care how it is—I'm for Van Buren!—till a sturdy mechanic standing near him, becoming impatient of the interruption, said to him: "I presume, friend you won't admit that that skull of yours is so thick as not to allow of your perceiving that the law you make such a noise about Gen. Harrison's voting for, was to operate against, not honest citizens, but THIEVES and other FELONS, and that such wretches alone could be expected to complain of it. Now hark ye! if YOU are a THIEF, A RECEIVER OF STOLEN GOODS, or are in any manner a FRIEND OR ABETTOR OF THIEVES, you may talk as you like about Gen. Harrison's having wished to make your honorable fraternity pay the damage and expense they put the honest portion of the community to,—but mind, for I see your jaws are again preparing to wag—mind! if you love thieves—or call THIEVES the PEOPLE, stick to them and their interests, if you like,—but no more of your attempts to disturb orderly citizens who came here to listen, or I'll * * * * * * * * !" The hard featured Loco made a show of standing his ground, but uttered not another syllable, and a short time after, sneaked away, to report his success, probably to those who had sent him there for the express purpose of raising a row,—if he could."

A CARD.

We tender our grateful acknowledgements to the Whigs of Talbot County, for their liberal contributions, and particularly to the Ladies, who endured all the labor of preparing refreshments, so various, ample and abundant.
