NEW SONG.

TUNE—Bruce's Address.

Sons of Freedom, now's the day,
Drive all intrigue far away.
Prostrate "Van" and his Sub-Treasury,
For we must be free;

Tell the proud usurpers all
That "Matty Van" the 1st. must fall,
He never was the people's call
Then let him turn and flee.

Now's the day, and now's the hour,
See his legions how they lower,
Give the death blow to his power,
Let it not be seen,

Rally round old Tippecanoe,
Let the trembling cabinet see,
That freemen's sons will still be free
In spite of what has been.

WOLOWOO.

Easton, Aug. 29th, 1840.

TIPPECANOE SONG.

TUNE—"The Sea"

The Ship, the Ship, the Ship of State!
She's tempest toss'd and torn of late:
Without a mark without a guide,
On mountain billows see her ride.
The raging storm is gathering fast,
And ruin rides upon the blast.
It lowers o'er the windward sea,
While breakers threaten on her lee.
With an unskilful pilot at her helm,
Driving her on some desert realm,
And at his side a dastard few
Make up his awkward, block-head crew.

She sinks, oh see! the good ship sinks,
With started streaks and open chinks.
Her masts are tott'ring in the gale,
With broken cordage, tatter'd sail.
Poor Captain Martin sees his fate,
And calls on Benton as his mate.
There's Amos writing his log book,
And Jim Buchanan the galley cook;
Old Felix Grundy throws the lead
To sound the people's ocean bed;
But the sea's too deep for Grundy's line,
And he'll be swallow'd in its brine.

Again! She's safe, the ship's at rest!
For Tip is coming from the West.
He'll take the helm in his command,
And clear the decks of the ruffian band.
He'll mend her timbers save her freight,
And launch anew the Ship of State:
With skies serene and gentle gales,
He'll spread aloft her snow-white sails;
Then o'er the unruffl'd sea she'll glide,
Not lash'd and beaten by the tide,
Or ancher'd near some friendly shore
Cries of distress we'll hear no more.

DENTISTRY.

GEORGE W. HUMPHREYS,
OF VIRGINIA,
DENTAL SURGEON,

Invites the attention of the public to one of the most valuable improvements ever introduced to their notice, being an extremely simple mode of extracting Teeth, by which the patient is saved the greater part of the pain usually attendant on the ordinary method of extracting, whilst its safety is so remarkable that no injury can be inflicted on the jaw bone or gums. The advertiser assures the public that he can extract teeth by this system, no matter if they be of the largest size or decayed fangs, with the application of one third the power ordinarily employed in such operations, and he invites the citizens of Easton and the surrounding country, to call and examine his proof in favor of what is here asserted.

He also offers his services to the public; as being, in most cases, able to save entirely such decayed and aching teeth, as they now fear must be extracted. His success in soothing and finally saving many valuable teeth in an extensive practice in some of the principal Northern and Southern cities, has been so decided, that he invites the public to call, confident that he can, under his skill as a Dentist, be useful to them.

He will also Cleanse, Plug, and Insert Teeth upon springs or fangs, on the most approved plan, and cure inflammation and soreness of the gums, giving them a healthy action which will improve the breath and taste.

For testimonials and prices for operating, see bills which he will furnish.

☞ Having procured comfortable rooms at Mrs. Donovan's, he may be consulted at all hours of the day.

He refers to Dr. T. Thomas and Dr. Solomon M. Jenkins.

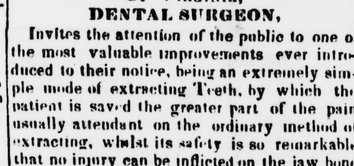

☞ He will remain in Easton only a few days.
