The Burlington Silk Worm FRAME.

This simple yet complete apparatus for feeding Silk Worms, invented and patented by Mr. Edmund Morris of Burlington, N. J. has been found, after repeated trial, to accomplish the following important objects:—

1. It secures the most thorough ventilation to all parts of the frame on which the worms are feeding, below as well as above, and obliges them, of necessity, to clean themselves of their excrement and other rubbish

2. That part of all former modes of feeding which requires waiting for the worms to mount upon fresh foliage in order to clean them, is entirely dispensed with: and though cleaning is never necessary, yet should the worms require changing, it is done almost instantly, a thousand at a time, and without the worms being conscious of the change.

3. The whole apparatus is as portable as a quilting frame; and all the parts which require handling during the feeding season are as portable as an umbrella, without being liable to breakage.

4. Ventilation and cleanliness are so perfectly accomplished, that disease seems to be out of the question, unless originating in the egg.

5. The age (from the spinning) of any number of cocoons from one thousand up to a million, is identified to a day, and they are gathered with six times the facility of the cradle system, at the same time coming out perfectly clean, and with but little floss.

6. By using branches, cut down with a grass hook or scythe, it saves more than one half the usual expense of gathering foliage and feeding it out to the worms, and more of them are accomodated in the same space

7. It is cheaper and more durable than the cradles. All the purchaser is required to do after receiving his frames, is to put in a few nails to support his uprights, every thing else, including the spinning apparatus, is complete to his hand

The vast superiority of this over all other fixtures for feeding silk worms, is such, as to be apparent even to persons not acquainted with the rearing of them: while intelligent gentlemen practically conversant with the business, have pronounced, without a single exception, that it fully accomplishes all that has been said above. It has been tried repeatedly and found successful in practice, and is now (September) in full operation at the Burlington Cocoonery, on a large scale, where persons interested in the silk business are invited to examine into its merits. It reports the hurdle system entirely and is original in its parts. A Frame sufficient to feed 12,000 worms, may be seen at the United States Silk Agency, No. 2 Franklin Place, the undersigned proprietor of which, has been appointed agent for the sale of frames and rights to whom, or to the patentee at Burlington application may be made. An engraved view, with a full description, will be sent on application, post paid. Gentlemen about to erect cocooneries will find it highly important to examine the capabilities of this Frame, previous to erecting any other fixtures.
