POETRY.

From the Philadelphia Saturday Courier.

THE PRISONER'S SABBATH.

BY J. E DOW.

He sits in his dungeon damp, alone,
His garment a rag, and his chair a stone·
And a frosty ray from the upper air,
Through a narrow crevice, is playing there;
And all above him is chill and drear,
For Old King Winter has slain the year.

He sits in his shackles a blighted thing,
And his life's blood sleeps in its sluggish spring,
And his locks, turned white in his manhood wave
Like rustling grass over summer's grave:
And his eye that flashed like diamond stone,
Has quenched its fire in its tears alone.

And none have come with the Sabbath morn—
When day from the dark old night was born —
To cheer the soul in its living tomb,
Though changing nature has doffed her plume.
And the distant bell, like a seraph's song,
Is bearing the soul to its God along.

And now he sits on his dungeon stone,
And pictures of memory, one by one,
Obey the call of his powerful will,
And come in their glorious beauty still;
He hears the sound of his father's feet,
And his mother's laugh, as she hastes to greet

He sees the hill where his stripling stride
Had urged the sled for his downward ride.
He sees the stream where the skater's heel
Had hurled the sparks in his giddy wheel,
And he lists to the laugh of childhood's mirth
And joy at beholding the wintry earth.

He sees the church on the village green,
Where the humble worshippers were seen;
Where the young blood mantled the healthy cheek,
And eyes in eloquence learned to speak,
And the heart went up on the old man's prayer,
And left its sins and its sorrows there.

He sees the friends of his early days,
He sees the mill and the stream that plays,
He hears the sound of the woodland breeze
That wakes to music the summer trees,
And he hears the sound of the hunter's horn
As it dances away on the breath of morn.

And his glad wife comes with her laughing eye—
Ere death had told her that she must die—
And his cherub babes on his accents hang,
And he hears the song that the nurses sang,
And his heart burns bright 'mid the laughing ring,
And he leaps again for the hours they bring.

He starts—a clank of his heavy chain
Has brought him back from the past again;
And the tear in his eye to ice has turned,
And his heart is cold as a heart inurned,
And he laughs, for he knows by his icy breath,
That he has a comforter—even Death!

And the lonely one in his cell has prayed,
For he of his Maker is not afraid,
And a blessing he's asked for his enemy
Who chained what the living God made free:
And his heart has felt from the courts above
A thrill of pure and ecstatic love.

'Tis night, and the air is sparkling cold,
And the prisoner's form in its rays are rolled,
And he has couched on his fetters bare,
And sank to his dreamless slumbers there,
And his eye has closed to awake no more,
For his Sabbath's past; and his grief is o'er.

Why is that stranger left alone,
To droop and die on a bed of stone?
And why is he chained beneath the earth?
Has God denied him a freeman's birth?
Oh no! but his condemnation's sure,
For he is a felon whom God makes poor.*

*I. e.—in the eyes of the law.

WALDIE'S

SELECT CIRCULATING LIBRARY & MONTHLY JOURNAL OF POLITE LITERATURE—The proprietor of this popular and well known periodical has the gratification of replying to the many affectionate inquiries after its resumption, and announces to his kind friends and patrons—friends and patrons in the true meaning of the words—that he will resume the publication next January. Restored by a beneficient Providence once more to active life, he hopes again to be able to give that superintendence to the publication which was his pride and pleasure for seven years. He anticipates, with inexpressible satisfaction, the renewal of associations with thousands of families, with either of which an acquaintance is an honor. During his protracted indisposition, the intensity of suffering was greatly mitigated by the generous expression of sympathy and regard received from his kind-hearted patrons; and the gloom and tedium of a sick room were much lightened by the rays of genuine friendship emitted from every quarter. This egotism, he hopes, will be judged of mildly—he certainly has no wish to make a display—but the impulse of grateful acknowledgment for such disinterested kindness was irresponsible, and he could not announce the re-appearance of the work without yielding to it.

To these friends he addresses himself, solicitous for their continued support, and hopes to have the Library once more introduced among their families, see it honored again with a place on their centre tables, and become a welcome weekly visiter. He is at the same time very desirous to extend his acquaintance and form new friends.

From the arrangements made, dictated by experience, the Library, it is believed, will in every respect, be improved. The type will be more distinct, the monthly sheet continued, and a weekly cover beside The cover will be made so as to avoid the extra postage —The monthly Journal he hopes to make a sheet of abiding interest, so combining original and selected articles, of foreign and domestic literature, science and art, and from such resources of respectability, as to make it a work of authority and reference.

The regularity of its former publication, not a failure in seven years, will be taken as a guarantee for the future punctuality of the Library; but there is only one way to make that permanent, viz: by payment in advance. This is an indispensable pre-requisite from all at a distance. The losses by deviating from this rule formerly, are too heavy to be forgotton soon and a little reflection may satisfy any one of the reasonableness of the request. The reasons are too obvious indeed, to require much discussion. Five dollars are all that a subscriber risks, but the publisher risks thousands by crediting. The publisher is in the city and can be reached without trouble. A subscriber lives perhaps a thousand miles off; and how is he to be reached? It might cost six times the amount to collect the trifle. Payment in advance, then, as all may perceive is a reasonable request, and sad experience compels the proprietor to make it The few who paid in advance for [illegible] be supplied for 1841, unless otherwise ordered.

An early remittance of names is respectfully urged, so as to enable the proprietor to make proper calculations about the quantity to be printed, as he will print very few over the number absolutely subscribed for. To this he would call particular attention.

To his brethren of the press, throughout the country, the proprietor returns grateful thanks for former favors, and hopes the work will be again so conducted as to warrant a continuance of their friendly assistance. A few copies of the Port Folio are still on hand, a year [illegible] will be forwarded in payment for advertising as much of this announcement as they may think an equivalent; or two years will be sent for publishing the whole.

TERMS —The Library will be published weekly, on a double royal sheet, sixty-four pages quarto each, on new type, and printed in the best style of book work. Each number stitched with a neat cover.

2. Price Five Dollars a year if paid at or remitted to the office. Six Dollars if collected by an agent.

3 A Monthly Journal of Polite Literature consisting of original communications and selections from foreign and domestic periodicals, printed uniformly with the Library.—This will be a valuable addition to the original plan.

4. Subscriptions commence with January, and no subscriptions taken for less than a year.

☞ A few complete sets of the Library, and odd years to perfect subscribers' sets, on hand and for sale.

PRIVATE SEMINARY.

The subscriber, having resigned his situation in the Academy, at Easton, with an intention of retiring to his farm, and exchanging the arduous duties of his Public Profession, for the more congenial quiet of the country, takes this method of tendering his grateful acknowledgments to the citizens of Easton and its vicinity, for the very liberal patronage they have extended to him for the last twelve years. It was the intention of the subscriber, when he offered his resignation, to retire, at the close of the year, from his Professional duties Through the solicitations, however, of several of his patrons, he has consented to open a PRIVATE SEMINARY at his residence, where he will be prepared to accommodate a few boarders on very reasonable terms. To those who may prefer a private institution for the education of their sons, this Seminary, may, perhaps, offer some inducements. The course of instruction, will be the same as hitherto pursued at the Academy, and, from the long experience of the subscriber, in his Profession, he flatters himself, that, to such youths, as may be committed to his charge, every opportunity will be offered for acquiring a thorough ENGLISH EDUCATION, and qualifying themselves for all the ordinary avocations of life. His school will be opened, for the reception of pupils on Monday, the 4th of January of the ensuing year, but will be limited to a small number, consequently great attention can be paid to the MORAL and Literary department of every pupil.

The session will continue until the 15th of August, after which time the annual session will commence on the 1st of October, and continue until the 15th of August.

The course of instruction will be as follows, viz: Orthography, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, embracing Modern, Physical, Ancient, and Sacred, with the use of Maps and Globes; English Grammar, (including Orthography, Etymology, Syntax and Prosody, Geometry, Theoretical Mensuration in its various branches; Land Surveying, Navigation, History, Book Keeping, by single and double entry, Natural and Moral Philosophy, the Construction of Maps, &c.
