POETRY.

From the Baltimore Patriot.

"WHAT OF THE NIGHT?"

In the night of Thursday, before General HARRISON's death, he repeated the following verses from Isaish, to one of his relations at his side, remarking that it had made an impression on his mind which he had never been able to efface:

*Isaiah 21 chap. 11 & 12 vs.

He calleth to me out of Seir, Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?

The watchman said, the morning cometh, and also the night: if ye will inquire, inquire ye—return—come. [Madisonian

Out of Seir he calleth me—hear ye the word,
Waking dreams of the past, which my spirit hath heard?
"Watchman, what visions break forth on thy sight?
Watchman," it calls to me, "what of the night?"

Now it steals o'er my moments' what meaneth that sound,
In my solitude calling strange echoes around?
"Day sinks—the gray evening fast loses its light!
Watchman, old watchman, say, what of the night?"

"The night comes apace; but its darkness and gloom
Have no fright for my vision—no phantom of doom:
The eye which hath quailed not in tempest and fight,
Which gazed on the day, shall look calm to the night!

"The night moveth on; but a morning shall spread
Its orient flush o'er the realms of the dead—
Inquire thou, inquire thou, for thou hast the right—
The daylight is passing—I FEAR NOT THE NIGHT!"

MOUNT DILLON.

*Without particular reference to the Scriptural context, or the legitimate signification or arrangement of the passage itself, the reader will perceive that we have appropriated the expression to the circumstances under which it was presented—to that solemn presentiment of the future which it was designed to inspire—to that mystic construction which wrapped in strange thoughts the mind of the distinguished man to whom it came, in language of awful monition, but a few days before the chair of office was exchanged for the empty shroud!
