ity of obtaining credit, the edge of husbandry mostly becomes dulled in the latter; he presently gets embarrassed; one creditor pursues him with the severity of the law, another follows; and pressed by sheriffs, constables, debts, interests, fees and charges, his credit, like a wounded porpoise by its more fortunate fellow creatures, is completely run down, and he finds no refuge but in a jail. Bankrupt or insolvent laws afford, in most instances, but a partial relief; a relief which is rendered still more partial by the greater liberality which is shown to those who fail in payment for the largest sums.

In fine, viewing the question on all sides, we should say, that imprisonment for debt is no remedy for insolvency; and that he who credits, without first ascertaining the ability of the party credited to pay, deserves no more aid from the law than he does in the case of any other gross folly for which the law affords no remedy. •••

In the Patriot of Tuesday afternoon is the following:

STEAMSHIP PRESIDENT.—We have information which leads us to hope that the steamship President is safe, having gone into Madeira. A letter has been received by Mr Howell, of Cumberland, Md., whose father was on board the President, from a relation of his who resides at Southampton, England, stating the fact of the arrival of the steamship at Madeira, and detailing how the news reached him.

Mrs. Power, the wife of Mr. Tyrone Power, the actor, who was a passenger, had agents stationed at points were information of the steamship would likely be received, and from one of those agents she received, by express, a letter, on the 19th ult., in which it was stated that a vessel had just arrived there from Madeira, which reported that as she was leaving the latter port the President was going in, and spoke her.

This letter was received by Mrs Power on the 19th ult. and being read by the relation of Mr. Howell, who was present at the moment it was received, he immediately sat down and wrote the letter refered to above. He despatched it by the post, and it reached the steamship Britannia in time to be brought on by that vessel, which left England on the 20th ult.

These facts seem to justify a belief that the steamship is safe.

VIRGINIA REDEEMED.—The April election of this Spring for members of Congress and of the State Legislature, is the fourth general election in which the Whigs have succeeded in Virginia.—But, as the Richmond Whig remarks, this is the first time that they have carried the Senate—a body which, by the preponderence of loco focoism therein, was all that time, out of the reach of the broom of reform. Notwithstanding all former successes of the Whig party in the House of Delegates it was still in the power of the Senate to "checkmate" that body—in the representatives of the people. Owing to this fact, says the Richmond Whig, "the ascendancy of the Reform party in the State and in the House, has been wholly unavailing as it respected legislation. Heretofore, the Whigs could carry through no measure, however much demanded by the wishes of the People and the general good of the State, without the consent of the Federal "checkmaters." There is an end now to this baneful check. And next to the thorough purgation of the Whig party of all spurious and faithless members this is the most gratifying result of the late elections.—With a party composed of good men and true, we have undisputed ascendancy in both branches of the Legislature; and, as soon as the Assembly meets, the Executive, can be restored to Whig hands."—Pat.

A Political Sign.—A "democratic" meeting has been held in Philadelphia, at which resolutions have been adopted in favor of Commodore Charles Stewart, for the next Presidency. In reference to this meeting and its proceedings, the Pennsylvanian (loco) says: "We will publish them to-morrow. A club, we learn, has been formed, called the "Old Ironsides Club for the City and County of Philadelphia," and among its numbers are many of our most substantial and true Democrats."

Annapolis, May 10th 1841.

I have learned that the Governor has appointed Thomas Wright, 3d. Esq., of Queen Ann's county, to be Secretary of State, vice James Murray, Esq., resigned.—[Sun.

CANAL APPROPRIATION.—A postscript in the Cumberland Civilian of Saturday last says—We have just learned from one of the officers of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, that the stockholders have accepted of the law appropriating $2,000,000 for the completion of the Canal to Cumberland. And, we are also informed, that the Mining Companies will likewise, beyond doubt, agree to comply with the provisions of said law. Contractors, we are authorized in saying, may look out—that proposals for contracts will soon be offered.

"The Nation's Grief" is the title of Bishop Doane's Funeral Address delivered at the request of the Common Council of Burlington, just issued from the press. It thus opens.

It is a dark December day. A deep snow clothes the ground. A sharp and cutting sleet drives with the wind. Against the blinding storm, and through the deepening drifts, a youthful soldier with his knapsack on his back, pursues his steadfast way. A stripling of nineteen, of slender frame, and feeble health, he is an Ensign in the army of America, with Washington's commission; and he marches with this small detachment, on his first service. It was a patriotic and Christian duty. There are those before me who remember well, what in my young days, was yet a nursery word, at which the mother pressed her infant to her bosom, and children gathered closer to the fire—St. Clair's defeat. It was to that battle field, to inter the bones of six hundred slain, that our young Ensign hastened with his troop. And though it was a patriot and a Christian duty, how much more sternly than the fiercest onset of the heady fight must that still forest field, the lowering sky, the howling wind, those gallant men butchered by savage hands, and all the recollections and forebodings of that most disastrous day, have tried the spirit of a youthful soldier, on his first campaign!

It was a chill November night, when a small army of Americans encamped themselves upon a point of land, between the Wabash and a tributary stream.—They were the gentlemen and yeomen of the country, who had enrolled themselves under the territorial Governor, to defend their homes against the inroads of the hostile Indian tribes, and to chastise their insolence. A long and tedious march, through a most dreary wilderness, brings them at last where their wily foes await them; and, on their proposition for a conference and treaty, hostilities are intermitted for a day. Slowly and cheerlessly the night wears off, within that guarded camp with clouds and rain. But weary men will sleep, whatever may betide them; and now, for hours, no sound, has stirred the stillness of the scene, save the lone sentry's guarded step. But what is that, which through 'the misty moon beams' struggling light,' is seen not heard, as it glides through the prairie grass? Is it a snake that winds his stealthy way? No, but a subtler Indian: and in one instant he is dead! Another; and the savage yell starts every sleeper from his cold damp couch, and death begins his work. And was this sleeping camp deceived, surprised, betrayed? Was their Commander faithless to his trust? No; every man had slept where he must fight, his clothes on, and his gun loaded. And he, while yet the night was young, sat by his tent fire, till the hour should come to rouse his weary comrades. In a moment, he was mounted. Where the fight was hottest, there was he. A ball with no commission for his life, flies thro' his hair. In vain his officers remonstrate with him for his fearless hazard of himself. He thinks of brave St. Clair, and the gallant victims of that fatal field. He thinks of wasted towns, and blazing homes, and mothers slaughtered with their infants. And the morning dawns not till the victory is won!

Along the banks of the Ohio, spreads a smiling farm. A plain and modest mansion rises from a sloping lawn. Its owner, having filled with credit to himself and honor to his country, almost every station but the first—fought its battles, governed its territories, served it in both houses of Congress, and represented it abroad—wears out, in frugal industry, his green old age, a plain Ohio farmer; his house the very home of hospitality, his name, the refuge and solace of the poor, the stranger, and the orphan; his style, the noblest that is known to nature's heraldry, a patriot and a patriarch.

It is a gusty day in March. Before the morning dawns the Federal City is alive with men. It seems now full to overflowing: and yet every hour brings hundreds, thousands more. A cavalcade is formed. Bells ring, and cannons roar. Fair women, and brave men, throng every window of that noble Avenue. Not a state of the whole twenty-six that is not represented in that long drawn line. It is the nation's Jubilee. All classes, all conditions, both sexes, every age, partake the general joy. A grave, plain man arrayed in modest black, that rides, uncovered, on the steed, more conscious than himself of the occasion, is the magnet that attracts all eyes, and touches every heart. He reaches the Capitol. He ascends the steps. He stands majestic in his meekness and simplicity before the immeasurable multitude who have brought with them the homage of the nation. The highest officer of Justice administers to him the most magnificent oath that ever rises up to heaven. And the youthful ensign, the gallant general, the laborious farmer, is President of the United States.

'One little month' has passed. It is a fitful April day. Again, the Federal city is astir. Cannons are heard: but these are minute guns. The bells peal out: but 'tis the funeral knell. The streets are thronged: but every face is sad, and every voice is still. Once more, a long procession passes down that noble Avenue; but yew and cypress take the place of nodding plumes and muffled drums beat time to aching hearts. Again, that grave, plain man is there; no more erect and tall the pillar of the State: but in his grave clothes, stretched upon the funeral Car. He enters not the gate, as when we last beheld him, to that glorious Capitol: but turns aside, to the still spot, where sleep the honored dead: and 'earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust,' concludes the story and the scene. Never had a man a funeral so sublime.—Never, for a Chieftain fallen, did a whole nation so pour out its heart. Was it not beautiful—and just as it was beautiful—that he, who, on that sleety day, began his public life, with pious rites for St. Clair's butchered host, should find himself such sepulchre?

PROSPECTUS.

THE EASTON GAZETTE.

A. GRAHAM Editor and Proprietor.
E. R HOOPER, Assistant Editor.

The Proprietor of the Gazette having engaged the assistance of E. Richardson Hooper, Esq., of Cambridge, Md., and recently Editor of the 'Chronicle' of that place, in the management of the editorial department of the paper, proposes to increase the circulation of the Gazette in the Counties of Dorchester, Somerset and Worcester, with the view of promoting the interest of the Whig party in the approaching Gubernatorial canvass. That canvass will doubtless be warmly contested, and the advantages to be gained from having a paper reflecting the sentiments of the Whigs freely circulated among the people, are too obvious to need enforcement from me. The opposition party will undoubtedly make every exertion to increase the circulation of papers friendly to their cause, and should be met by a corresponding effort on the part of the Whigs.

The Gazette is printed every Saturday Morning, on fine imperial paper, with plain type, and, in addition to politics, is devoted to agriculture, literature, and general news. The facilities for obtaining the latest and most interesting items of information are unequalled by any Journal on the Shore.

The papers will be sent to Mr. Hooper's office, in Cambridge, every Saturday morning for distribution.
