ry clearly and eloquently the difference between the legislative power of the American Senate as compared with the highest legislative powers of the world. He repeated that a comparison of the American Senate, intellectually considered, would be most favorable whether a comparison should be made in reference to ancient or modern times.

Mr. Clay then said it was his intention to have retired in November 1840, at the close of the memorable campaign which resulted in a change of administration.—Upon reflection he felt it to be his duty to take part in the labors of the Extra Session which it was soon made obvious would have to be called. He had done so, and in an humble way had done all in his power to restore the fallen fortunes of his country, by aiding in bringing forward such measures as were by the majority deemed necessary to produce so desirable a result. Without at this time laying blame for the present disastrous condition of things, he would say that had the lamented Harrison lived, the wishes of the Whigs in every particular would have been consummated.

The most effective and eloquent part of Mr. Clay's speech followed. It related to himself and his friend, and had far too much effect upon the sensitive nerves of your reporter to permit him to make any thing more than a reference to it.

He appealed to Heaven to bear him witness that in all his councils, in all his official acts, he had been governed by the most patriotic motives. None but the searcher of hearts and himself could know what these motives were. His public acts and opinions others could speak of as they thought, but of his motives, which had been so often calumniated, he claimed the privilege of speaking for himself. To his many friends who had stood by him and cheered him in all his duties from the moment he entered public life until the hour of retirement, he would be said, return thankfulness of a heart which appreciated such constancy of friendship—but all language was inadequate to express what he felt.

Mr. C. next referred to the noble and gallant State which had stood by him during his entire service. He went to Kentucky he said, forty one years ago an orphan poor and pennyless, without the favor of the great and with a limited education. That generous soil received him as a son, and with open arms. Towards her he could not speak as he felt, and the very attempt to give expression to his feelings almost choked his utterance. [Others were equally affected and many tears fell from the eyes of those present. It is impossible to repeat here what Mr. Clay said, and no idea could be formed of the effect produced.]

Mr. C. next spoke of the term "Dictator" which had been applied to him—Whether it was applied in honor or in odium he would not say. The epithet was of Roman origin, and applied to those who had assumed and exercised the most extraordinary power.—They had the power to execute and to destroy—to build up and tear down. How he deserved such an epithet he could not say, but if he was a dictator and had assumed the office at the commencement of the Extra Session, all would do him at least the justice to say, that he voluntarily resigned the office, after holding it for a much briefer period than any dictator before him.

Mr. Clay then in a few impressive words pronounced his formal farewell, expressing towards every Senator without reservation the kindest feelings and the best wishes. In conclusion he presented the credentials of his successor.

At the close of his remarks, Mr. Clay paid a high compliment to his successor, Mr. Crittenden, for his steadfast honor and integrity.

CENSURE OF MR. GIDDINGS.—It will be seen, says the Baltimore Patriot, by the report of the proceedings of the House of Representatives, that the resolution censuring Mr. Giddings for having presented certain resolutions in relation to the Creole affair, were passed by a decided vote. The resolutions proposed by Mr. Giddings, as well as those adopted censuring him, are given in full in our report, as are also the yeas and nays.—What will be the ultimate effect of this proceeding of the House, time will show. Our correspondent writes us that Mr. Giddings has resigned his seat, and will make an appeal to his constituents from the censure of the House. The vote on the adoption of the resolution does not partake of a party character. Whigs and Loco Focos being found both among the yeas as well as nays. Nor does it partake of a sectional character. Members from the slave-holding, as well as the non-slaveholding States, being divided on the subject.

FALSE RUMORS.—The Boston Post says:—A few large mercantile houses having stopped payment in Boston, rumors have gone forth of the insolvency of individuals and firms who could discharge all their liabilities twice over without inconvenience. It was reported a day or two since, that a firm doing a very large business in drugs, paints, &c. had failed, when in fact, we suppose, there is not a mercantile house in Boston that stands stronger or is more prompt in meeting its obligations.

SAFE INVESTMENT.
A FARM FOR SALE.

The subscriber intending to remove to the Western Shore, offers for sale the Farm he now lives on called "Long Point," situated on Third Haven Creek. It is one of the most eligible situations in Talbot county, and to a man who has money it might be made one of the most beautiful places in the State of Maryland. The land is nearly as good as it can be made, having been heavily manured for the last twelve years with Indian shell and marl, which is not doing with the work for a season but for posterity. The resources are inexhaustible—such as marl, Indian shell, marsh &c.

The farm is not large, but it is like the better part of God's creation (the fair sex,) small, but very valuable—something less than two hundred acres. As to health it cannot be surpassed. There are several wells and springs on it of the purest water, and some of the most choice FRUIT, selected from the nursery of the late John Willis, Esq., Collector of the Port of Oxford, a man well known to the public for his intelligence and probity.

The Steamboat Maryland and Easton Packets pass and repass within three or four hundred yards of the Farm twice a week during the year when the waters are navigable—Fish, oysters, and wild fowl, are abundant in their season. The great facility and proximity of farm both by land and water to the different cities, towns and villages, makes it a desirable place to any person wishing to live near salt water.

I deem it unnecessary to give any further description, for any person wishing to purchase can visit the land and judge for himself.

I have just put up in my Mills, a new patented machine for cleaning Wheat, (called Grimes' Smut Machine,) it is the the most perfect Wheat cleaner that I have ever seen. The most filthy and dirty Wheat when run through, comes out in a good condition for grinding. The color and quality of the flour very much improved. I can with confidence invite my customers, and all others to give me a trial. I have also just employed a good, industrious and accommodating Miller, who, I think, will give general satisfaction.

I constantly keep on hand flour of all sorts from the best white—down, also Meal, Bran, &c. I have also just returned from the City with a good assortment of

LAND FOR SALE.

I would sell a farm in Miles River Neck, beautifully situated on the water, containing 100 acres—the improvements are a one story framed house and kitchen, &c.

Either of these farms would be sold on fair terms. It is deemed unnecessary for me to describe particularly the susceptibility of these lands for improvement, as I presume no person would purchase, without examining for themselves, which they can do by applying to Mr. Dean, the tenant on the one in Miles River Neck and to Mr. James Denny, living on the one in the Bayside—for particulars as the terms, apply to

To Direct Tax Payers.

Those persons that have disregarded my former Notice are now informed that they will be called on personally but one time, in the event of their not paying when called on their property will be scheduled and sold without respect to persons; all persons are aware of my situation, and it is to be expected they will call at the office of Joseph Graham, Esq. where they will see me every Tuesday and settle with me until the collections are completed.
