POETRY.

LITERARY TRIFLES.

From the United States Gazette.

In the Saturday Courier of to-day, our brother Morris of the Inquirer, appears with the following real epigram. We are so pleased with it, that although not given to the merry mood, it has thawed us out, and we have perpetrated a sort of reply, which, if it will serve no other purpose, will perform the supererogatory work of a foil to set off our neighbor's pleasant piece:

NATURE AND ART.

AN EPIGRAM.

When Eve, the first of woman-kind,
As Queen of Eden roved,
Her thoughts were free as mountain wind,
And all who saw her loved.
The Eagle screamed a lofty note,
The Lion tossed his mane,
And e'en the Linnet's little throat,
Essay'd a flatt'ring strain
The eye—the lip—the souls-fraught face,
These won the first of men,
Each movement gave to life a grace,
To deck the mother of our race—
There were no bustles then.

[OUR ANSWER.]

CIVILIZATION AND ART:

AN EPIGRAM.

When Eve through early Eden moved,
And tuned her maiden voice,
It was not strange that Adam loved;
He'd only Hobson's choice.
But when ten girls are found at home,
With chance for scarce two men,
Not idle grace, nor Linnet's hum,
Will catch the beau; to make him come
Each girl must "bustle then."

Very fair, neighbour, very fair indeed, Perhaps we will be permitted to attempt a rejoinder.

THE CHOICE.

Respectfully dedicated to the Editor of the U. S. Gazette.

A painted cheek—a padded form,
A corset-moulded waist,
Without the magic mind to charm—
Do these befit thy taste?
Give me what the Creator gave,
A shape by nature graced,
A spirit pure to brighten all,
A warm heart, and a chaste.

SATURDAY EVENING.—It is past! Another week has gone to the sepulchre of lost years and carried with it a record of our last deeds We cannot recall it. Time once lost is gone forever—and man without perceiving his velocity is hastening to a final dissolution, We scarcely embark upon the ocean of time, before the current turns from the course we are pursuing and finally lands us on the unknown shore of eternity. It is important at the close of days, weeks, months and years to call ourselves to an account for our past conduct, and let conscience pass the sentence. Have we stepped aside from the path of rectitude, and wandered in the mazy labyrinth of vice—or have we profited by the lessons of experience, and followed the inward monitor whose unerring counsels never deceive us? Have we lived in vain by living only for ourselves? Are our neighbors sick—and have we done any thing for their relief? Has the poor beggar approached our dwelling and have we administered to his pressing necessities? Have we been mindful of the source from whence all our blessings flow; and has not the evening breeze wafted to the throne of mercy one orison of thankfulness—one prayer of supplication? Have we smothered at the holy aspirations of our souls, with sin and iniquity and confined our thoughts entirely to this momentary state of being? If we have been guilty of these misdeeds, tekel should be written with the pencil of Heaven upon our foreheads. It is the eve of the Sabbath the grandeur of the day has faded—every thing is sinking into the deep silence of midnight;—it fills the mind with holy contemplation—there is something peculiarly solemn—men return from their labors and prepare for rest—the cessation of cares betoken something peaceful—the approaching solemnities seem to calm the soul—the mind is led with feelings of pure devotion to the author of our being, while the still small voice within us whispers our immortality

MAN.

No man considered simply as man, can be a just object of contempt. He that was not too mean a creature for God to make and preserve, is not mean enough for us to despise. Man, considered as a being endowed with reason and intellect by the inspiration of the Almighty, and designed for immortality, is to be regarded with real esteem—with a sort of veneration. Considered as a religious being, conformed to the character, and sharing in the peculiar favor of his Creator, he is to be honored, as one of the excellent of the earth. Viewed in circumstances of adversity, in sickness poverty, bodily infirmity, or mental weakness, he is entitled to our compassion.

The distinctions, which take place among men and are the ground of one's boasted superiority to another, are but trifling in comparison with the grand points in which they are alike. They are all creatures formed by the same hand, from the same materials, for the same purposes: all dependant, accountable, mortal. A few days ago, we had but an existance; in a few days more, we shall be forgotten; these bodies will lie undistinguished in the common mass of senseless matter and the mind will take its flight to an unknown world, to exist in a new manner, and vested of every circumstance of worldly distinction.—Washingtonian.

No Quackery.

The public can form some idea of the virtue of the above Candy, by the Certificate below, being one of many received from different persons, of its merits.

Quaker Neck, Kent county, November 23d, 1842.

MR. HENRY J. STRANBERG:

Dear Sir,—My wife has been labouring under a very severe Pulmonary disease and Cough, for some time, and I have tried all the Cough Medicines I could hear of and approved ineffectual. In looking over the paper I saw your advertisement of a Compound Medicated Hoarhound Candy. I was induced to give it a trial; the first stick gave great relief, and we have continued to use it with entire success, and Mrs. Crouch is fast recovering. I thought it was due to you to express my gratitude for your discovery.

Your's respectfully,

ANOTHER EVIDENCE OF THE WONDERFUL CURES PERFORMED BY DR. SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY.

Dr. Swayne:—Dear Sir:—When I was at Pittsburg last August, I purchased of your Agent Six Bottles of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. I had for many years been troubled with a Cough, often very violent, with other indications of Consumption, or disease of the Lungs, of a very serious nature. I had very little faith in medicine, as it was thought my disease was hopeless and beyond its reach.—I had applied to several Physicians for relief, and also used some highly puffed medicines which I had seen in the newspapers, but hearing that you had much experience in the practice of medicine, and had treated many cases of Consumption, I concluded to try yours; and from that time I am happy to say, I found relief.—I write this in hopes you will publish it, so that if any human being has suffered as I have done, they may know where to find a medicine the virtues of which may be relied on.

Yours respectfully,

JAMES OSBURN.
