POETRY.

[For the Easton Gazette.]

It is a truth we can't disguise,
The present age is passing wise;
Why in another generation,
We shall become a wondrous nation.
Statesmen, are planning wise reforms,
Espy, is lecturing on storms;
Miller, on whom some fools depend,
Predicts next year the world will end.
But lo! the wonder of the age,
Appears to be a Mesmer sage!

With brow of Oriental cast,
One to this town has come at last,
And set two little scribes to writing;
Perhaps it yet may end in fighting.

First comes renown'd PI BETA PHI,
Professor of Astrology;
From antique books full fifty score,
Parading out his varied lore;
With sounding names to swell the sight,
And put the Mesmer sage to flight;
Sir Kelim Digby's not forgot,
Nor the immortal Walter Scott;
Nor the illustrious Genoese,
Who sail'd the wide Atlantic seas,
Nor Signor Gerbi, famous seer,
With twenty other names as queer.
All this was kindly meant indeed,
For we required a friend in need,
To keep our people from believing
The tricks that were some Lays deceiving.
As if Bestia's atmosphere,
Encompass'd all this region here;
And we required a Legal sage,
To check us in our Mesmer rage.

And next the champion of the cause,
A Doctor of Hygeia's laws;
Galin with all his books thrown by,
To solve a magnet's mystery.
Oppress'd by the absorbing theme,
He seems in his magnetic dream
To see that El dorado shore,
Which Mesmer sigh'd to see before.
O'er the bright spirit of his vision,
Clairvoyance paints a scene Elysian;
The tales of Araby the blest,
Reveal the wonders of the East;
Aladdin's far-famed lamp could bear,
Its owner through the azure air;
Erect to the bewilder'd sight,
A fairy palace in a night;
Sun-mon bright Genii to his aid.
With gems and crowns to deck his head.
But what are these to that bright land,
Clairvoyance waits you with its wand?
There fountains pure are ever springing,
While birds of Paradise are singing,
And flowers still shed their sweet perfume
From wreaths of Amarantine bloom;
The wonders of the past unroll'd
The secrets of the future told.
It is a vision fair and bright,
But oh it lasts but for a night!
When reason has resum'd her throne,
*Palace and Perry both are gone.

But lo! the Barrister again!
In loftier and more tuneful strain,
Cites Buonaparte and a whole train,
From the great Judge Sir Matthew Hale
To him whom Goldsmith dub'd the schule
To prove that the poor human mind,
Is sadly credulously blind.

Most learn'd, most wise PI BETA PHI,
Science will twine a wreath for thee;
A marble bust thy name shall bear,
And distant lands its fame shall bear.
Franklin who tam'd the ethereal pow'r,
Which flashes forth when tempests low'r,
While yet in its incipient stage,
In vain essayed to check this rage:
But you have giv'n the stunning blow,
And laid this magnet-Hydra low.
Coke, Littleton is not your field,
Nor law the weapon you should wield;
Your mind requires a wider range,
And revels in the cycles change;
The hidden things of every age
Darkly reveal'd on history's page
The mystic lore from Chaldee brought,
The arts in ancient Egypt taught;
The Sybil's leaf with Circean spell,
The coming future to foretell;
Witchcraft and Demonology,
Physics and entomology;
On these your goose-quill sheds a light,
To strike imposture with affright;
Don Quixote like tilt at each 'mill'
Fools and Empirics will rave still,
And you may yet be all the rage,
For vanquishing a Mesmer sage;
Clairvoyants then will dare no more,
To visit this enlighten'd shore.

*Alluding to the enchanted palace of Alladin which vanished in a single night.

ANOTHER EVIDENCE OF THE WONDERFUL CURES PERFORMED BY DR SWAYNE'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF WILD CHERRY.

Dr. Swayne—Dear Sir—When I was at Pittsburg last August, I purchased of your Agent Six Bottles of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry. I had for many years been troubled with a Cough, often very violent, with other indications of Consumption, or disease of the Lungs, of a very serious nature. I had very little faith in medicine, as it was thought my disease was hopeless and beyond its reach.—I had applied to several Physicians for relief, and also used some highly puffed medicines which I had seen in the newspapers but hearing that you had much experience in the practice of medicine, and had treated many cases of Consumption, I concluded to try yours; and from that time I am happy to say, I found relief.—I write this in hopes you will publish it, so that if any human being has suffered as I have done, they may know where to find a medicine the virtues of which may be relied on.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES OSBURN.

PROPOSALS

For publishing in the city of Baltimore, a cheap weekly paper, to be devoted to the advocacy of Whig principles, to be called the

AMERICAN WHIG.

BELIEVING that the interests of the Whig Party in Maryland and the adjacent States, require that there should be published in the City of Baltimore, a cheap and efficient weekly journal, to be devoted to the maintenance of those principles, and the advocacy of those great measures, which form the Landmarks of the party, it is proposed to issue a paper with the above title, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made It will be continued until after the close of the Presidential election in 1844.

As the Conductor desires to observe all frankness in his course, he deems it necessary to say, that it will support the election of HENRY CLAY, to the Presidency and that of the individual who may be selected by the Convention which is to assemble in the City of Baltimore in May, 1844, as the Whig candidate for the Vice Presidency. It will advocate the continuance of the Tariff policy: the chartering of a Bank of the United States, or such other financial plan, as may be best calculated to restore the Currency and Exchanges of the Country to a sound and healthful condition it will go for a restriction of the Veto power, that odious feature of our Constitution which places it within the power of the Executive to defeat the will of a majority of the sovereign people as expressed through their representatives; and to restrict the eligibility of the President to one term: all measures calculated to introduce wholesome Reforms and Retrenchments, correct abuses, expose Corruptions, and punish Delinquents in the administration of the government, shall be zealously sustained by it; nor will it less zealously resist upon the distribution of the proceeds of the Public Lands—In a word, it will be our object to render it an exponent of Whig principles and measures.

In avowing our partiality and predilections for HENRY CLAY, we are influenced by the united opinion we entertain of the high deservings of that matchless Statesman, distinguished Orator, and single hearted Patriot.—In him, we behold one, whose whole public life has been marked by devotion to Country, unin fluenced by selfish considerations; by enlarged and lofty patriotism, and consummate wisdom in the projection and advocacy of measures—and whose ripe experience in the affairs of State & eminent public services, peculiarly qualify him for the station. Thus appreciating his distinguished political qualifications and attainments and admiring his upright, ingenuous and chivalric bearing in private life, it shall be our study to place his merits fairly before the American people—sincerely believing as we do that he is the man best fitted to rescue our country from the state of depression so honor and misery to which she has been reduced by designing or ignorant men who have controled her powers for the last twelve years—whose course of policy has reduced our once happy and prosperous land, though still blessed by a bountiful Providence with abundant yieldings from the earth, to bankruptcy beggary, and almost total ruin.

The result of the coming contest for the Presidency, we consider as fraught with consequences of the highest magnitude, either for weal or woe, which have ever occurred since the formation of our government, confronting as it will the utter hopelessness of our present and future condition, on the one hand, or as during us of the rays of returning prosperity and happiness on the other. The principles of which are to be contested by the two great parties which divide the country, will be boldly emblazoned on their respective shields—by the one. Free trade and the Sub treasury will be the war cry—by the other, a Protective Tariff and a Nat'l not Institution after the regulation of the Currency—It is to be a death struggle—and the principles of the victor will be those which to all probability, will either bless or curse the country for many years to come—If under the lead of our gallant Chief the noble HARRY OF THE WEST,—he with whose person Whig principles are impersonated, we should fail in the coming contest in a fair and open fight, (as we do not trust we shall have, and know we will if Carolina's favorite son is the champion opposed to him,) then will we deem that the voice of the people (to which we have so earnestly contended, and we must abide the consequences—But of this result we have no fear, if the Whigs are true to themselves and to their country—they have the strength; the moral and physical powers with them, to rescue the government from misrule, without they gain permit that lethargy to seize them which has so frequently foiled us when victory was just within our grasp. But we have an abiding faith that such will not be the case in the coming conflict—that they will be found each at his post, eager for the fight, nerved with that indomitable spirit which prompted their revolutionary sires to pledge to each other all that men holds dear, to rescue their beloved country from that oppression and misrule under which they suffered—It is our intention to excite and arouse this noble spirit, convinced as we are that this alone is necessary to secure a triumph equal to that achieved in 1840, under the lamented HARRISON.

In furthering those objects and purposes which have induced us to engage in this enterprise, we will mingle courtesy with fearlessness & as we believe that a cause like that of the whigs, which we consider the cause of the country, possesses too many of the elements of true greatness in its measures and principles, to need the aid of frailty and vituperation, we will sedulously avoid, as unworthy of that cause, and of our own character, the use of personalities, except when rendered necessary in self-defence.

Though the "American Whig" will be essentially a political journal, we will give such a character to its readings, as to make it interesting alike to the farmer the mechanic the merchant, the professional man, and to the scholar in fine, such an one, as a parent may introduce into his family circle, with the assurance that the tone of their morals will be elevated by its perusal.

☞The Editorial Department will be in charge of a gentlemen of acknowledge abilities, who has had the conduct of some of the ablest political journals in this State; and who has ever been the unflinching advocate of those principles for which the Whig party is now contending.

TERMS:

☞The "AMERICAN WHIG" will be published every Saturday on a medium sheet with a good type, on the following terms:

1 copy, for 12 months,	$1 50
4 do. do.	5 00
10 do. do	10 00
1 copy for 18 months, or until the Presidential election in Nov. 1844,	$2 00
6 do. do.	10 00
10 do. do.	15 00

☞The aid of our Whig friends is solicited in obtaining subscribers—The plan and price is adopted in order to reach every class of the community, & to suit the present times.

—The low price of the paper renders it out of the question of its being sent except when paid for in advance.

☞The publication office will be at the printing establishment of

SAMUEL SANDS.
Corner of Baltimore and North Streets Baltimore.

To whom all communications (post paid) must be addressed. ☞Postmasters are privileged to frank letters enclosing money for publications.
