civil discord; if it had proceeded from an improvident application of means in the first years of self government; if it were the act of a poor state struggling against the barrenness of nature—every friend of America would have been contented to wait for better times; but the fraud is committed in the profound peace of Pennsylvania, by the richest state in the Union, after the wise investment of the borrowed money in roads and canals, of which the repudiators are every day reaping the advantage. It is an act of bad faith which (all its circumstances considered) has no parallel, and no excuse.

Nor is it only the loss of property which your petitioner laments; he laments still more that immense power which the bad faith of America has given to aristocratical opinions, and to the enemies of free institution in the old world. It is in vain any longer to appeal to history, and to point out the wrongs which the many have received from the few. The Americans, who boast to have improved the institution of the old world, have at least equalled its crime. A great nation, after trampling under foot all earthly tyranny has been guilty of a fraud as enormous as ever disgraced the worst king of the most degraded nation of Europe.

It is most painful to your petitioner to see that American citizens excite, wherever they may go, the recollection that they belong to a dishonest people who pride themselves on having tricked and pillaged Europe; and this mark is fixed, by their faithless legislators on some of the best and most honorable men in the world whom, every Englishman has been eager to see and proud to receive.

It is a subject of serious concern to your petitioner that you are losing all that power which the friends of freedom rejoiced that you possessed, looking upon you as the ark of human happiness, and the most splendid picture of justice and of wisdom that the world had yet seen. Little did the friends of America expect it, and sad is the spectacle, to see you rejected by every state in Europe, as a nation with whom no contract can be made, because none will be kept, unstable in the elements of good faith, men who prefer any load of infamy, however great, to any pressure of taxation, however light.

Nor is it only this gigantic bankruptcy for so many degrees of longitude and latitude which the petitioner deplores, but he is alarmed also by that total want of shame with which these things have been done, the callous immortality with which Europe has been plundered, that deadness of the moral sense which seems to preclude all return to honesty, to perpetuate this new infamy, and to threaten its extension over every state of the Union.

To any man of real philanthropy, who receives pleasure from the improvements of the world, the repudiation of the public debts of America, and the shameless manner in which it has been talked of and done, is the most melancholy event which has happened during the existence of the present generation. Your petitioner sincerely prays that the great and good men still existing among you may by teaching to the United States the deep disgrace they have incurred in the whole world, restore them to moral health, to that high position they have lost, and which, for the happiness of mankind, it is so important they should ever maintain: for the United States are now working out the greatest of all political problems, and upon that confederacy the eyes of thinking men are intensely fixed, to see how far the mass of mankind can be trusted with the management of their own affairs, and the establishment of their own happiness.

From the Balt. Patriot of June, 9.

The following extracts are taken from letters by the last steamer received by merchants here, written by the oldest & most respectable houses in England and Holland, and dated in May:

A London house writes, after speaking of our stocks: 'It is painful to think of the total annihilation of American credit in Europe, after what it enjoyed some years ago but which it so recklessly abused.'

A Dutch house largely interested in our public and private stocks, on learning that our City Council had attached the shares they held in our private banks for taxes, writes with great indignation:—'We have been shocked by the intelligence that the city has attached several shares in the —— Bank for the non-payment of taxes for the year 1842. We considder it bare faced robbery to subject FOREIGN stockholders to a city tax, and cannot conceive how such an idea could have entered any honest man's head. It is next to taking the money out of their pockets, and we feel pursuaded your courts of law cannot but refuse to sanction such a proceeding.' 'A remonstrance should be made by our Minister at Washington.' 'In seeing similar instances, besides repudiation, &c. in some States, is it to be wondered at that all confidence in American securities is lost, and that people begin to loathe them? An abuse of power of the kind in question is the more degrading, as the means of redress by interminable law suits are not easily at hand. We never expected the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore would have lent their aid to a similar extortion.'

Another person writes: 'I beg to observe that the principle of subjecting foreign holders of stocks to any tax whatever thereon, is improper and wrong as the stock was acquired by the introduction of value from abroad, and that value being equally taxable, a double taxation follows, or may follow; besides, the foreign stock holder is liable, or may be liable to a similar tax at home, and consequently be obliged to pay twice, and there by to withdraw his capital, which contributes to the welfare, or to uphold the credit of the country where it is placed. That the extension of the tax to American Bank Stock is revolting and vexatory, in a juncture where most of the banks are insolvent, and involving their stockholders in grievous and unexampled losses. Such an exaction from foreigners, who were sufferers for large sums, I amongst the number, without deriving local benefits, as can only be enjoyed by American citizens, would fill the measure of American injustice. 'That is exhorbitant as is impolitic.'

This gentleman and his friends re-invested their dividends in our stocks, but disgusted with this tax, they revoke herewith any order given before for the purchase of American stocks of any nature whatsoever, and you are desired to acknowledge this revocation in your answer to this letter; and instead of laying out our dividends, as you have till now in American stocks, you will now remit us our dividends.'

MR. WEBSTER AND THE WHIGS.

The Boston Advertiser alludes to the public course of Mr. Webster, and says:

'We repeat, that while the Whigs of Massachusetts are anxious for a continuance of the mutual confidence and good will which has for a long time subsisted between them and Mr. Webster, it is necessary to the revival of that confidence, which has been in some measure shaken in the minds of many of them, that they should know, what are his present opinions and intentions in relation to the approaching elections. Does he intend to co operate with the Whig party in the support of the nomination which they shall make for Governor and Lieutenant Governor of this Commonwealth? Does he intend to unite with them in sending delegates to a National Convention for the nomination of Whig candidates for President and Vice President of the United States and pledging themselves to support the nomination which shall be made by such Convention? Will he give any explanation of the views which have been expressed by him in his Baltimore speech, and on other occasions, which will serve to remove the painful doubts which have been excited in the minds of many persons, of his disposition to continue to support the principles of affording protection to domestic industry, which he has so strongly maintained hitherto?

These are home questions and from a quarter of the highest respectability.

THE COUNCILS AND THE LOCOFOCOS.

We heard, on Friday morning, loud crowing among some of the cronies of the Locofoco flock, at the vote of the City Councils, relative to the visit of Mr. Tyler; and it was boasted that capital could and would be made out of it at the next election.—These things sound very well in the street, but they do not appear so well in a respectable newspaper. Hence we were a little astonished to notice, in Saturday's Pennsylvanian, a violent attack upon the City Councils, for their not agreeing to wait on the President, and limiting their expressions of feeling to the granting of the Hall of Independence.

If a few Whigs, holding opinions with the minority of the Common Council had scolded, we should have thought less of it, because the Whigs have always been ready to go quite as far in their expression of regard for office, as would be sanctioned by the most devout respecter of official station, or the most successful metaphysical distinction between the office and the man. But the Locofocos should be quiet. A regard to the past if they have any such regards, should keep them still.

When Mr. Van Buren saw fit to make a public entry into Philadelphia, in the course of his Presidency, the Whig Councils of Philadelphia agreed to wait upon him, and they went in a body, the Mayor of the city, Isaac Roach, Esq. presenting their salutations.

When General Jackson came with "pomp and circumstance," the Whig Councils of Philadelphia paid the same respects.

But when John Quincy Adams, one of the purest men of the earth and one of the best Presidents we ever had, came to this city, the Democratic Councils, the representatives of that party which is now so very anxious to have honors bestowed, took no more notice of John Quincy Adams's arrival in this city than they would of the coming in of a country sheriff. No waiting upon him—no Hall offered to him. And when that great and good man was quietly wending his way to Massachusetts, the Democratic paper of this city inserted an advertisement offering a large reward for the absconding President.'

After this, we advise our Democratic brethren to bottle up their wrath, and make no ridiculous parade about their high regard for the office of the Chief Magistrate of the Union.

There was a difference of opinion among the members of Council as to what would be best to be done in the matter, but there was no difference with regard to the claims of the man. And it may be easier to reconcile a high respect for a good office, with a proper rebuke for a bad officer, than to justify formal expressions of regard for the place to one who does not honor that situation.

At any rate, let the Locofocos keep quiet.—U. S. Gaz.

Important Decision relative to Book Accounts.—It was decided at the late sitting of the Superior Court of Stewart county, Georgia, by his honor Judge Sturgis, that, the rule of law allowing the introduction of books of accounts as evidence in courts of justice, applied only to the books of merchants, and that physicians, induced lawyers, mechanics farmers, &c., &c., must prove each and every item of service rendered or article sold and delivered, by some disinterested witness.

MR. CLAY.—Nothing is more natural than that those in misfortune should desire company. There is somthing so soothing in sympathy that it is ardently longed for by the unfortunate. The Loco Foco party is at present, in a most distressed and distracted condition. The friends of the rival candidates for the Presidency, are whacking away at each other without mercy; and the character and conduct of Mr Van Buren have been broken upon the rack, by some of those who were, heretofore, loudest in his support. Wincing under these painful feelings, the Loco Foco press is endeavoring to create the impression that the Whig party wish to get rid of Mr. Clay as their candidate. Such an effort is worse than vain—it is nonsensical and absurd; for every body must, by this time, know that the avowed preference for Mr. Clay, is almost universal. The practical motto of the Whigs is—one harmonious action—one set of principles—one party—ONE CANDIDATE.—Hagerstown (Md) Torch Light.

One of the New Orleans papers of the 24th May, (the Tropic) has the annexed paragraph: If the rumor referred to has foundation, it will doubtless be made to appear in due season.

ASTOUNDING RUMOR.—For a week past it has been whispered about this city that a draft drawn by the Mexican government in favor of Sam. Houston, President of Texas, for twenty five thousand dollars, has been paid at the counter of one of the most prominent commercial houses in New Orleans!

We learn further, that by the steamship New York, which sailed on Monday evening for Galveston, information of such a character was transmitted to Texas as will leave scarcely the shadow of a doubt upon the minds of the people there, of the truth of the rumor which was only whispered here. The next news from Texas will be most anxiously expected, and may be thought with intense interest.

FLORIDA.—Under the Armed Occupation Act of Congress, there have been upwards of six hundred and thirty permits issued to settlers, from the Land offices at Newnansville and St. Augustine. A gentleman recently ascended the five Oclawaha from its mouth to Silver Springs, in a four oared boat. He reports having met with but few difficulties in his way, and states that four feet water can be obtained, even in the unparalleled low stage of the river. The only obstructions he met with were logs, which may be easily removed at little expense, but few of them being embedded in the channel.

The Silver Spring is described as a noble basin, capable of floating on its broad bosom a small fleet of steamboats with 180 feet depth of water, and a solid shore; yet so limpid are its waters that the smallest object may be seen at this immense depth as distinctly as though it were within three feet of the surface.

TYLERISM.

The Alexandria Gazette says:—The Custom House, of this place, was, we understand, thoroughly remodelled, on Saturday last, by the removal of all the subordinate officers appointed under the Harrison administration.

MORE TYLERISM.—We hear that Mr Taggard the Surveyor of this port has been Tylerised, and that Big Moore has been appointed in his place.—N. York American.

ORDINATION.—On Sunday morning last, in Christ Church, the Rev. Mr. Brevett, of Hagerstown, was admitted to the Holy Order of the Priesthood, by the Right Rev. Bishop Whittingham, having been presented for that purpose by the Rev. Mr. Jones, of Kent County. At the same time and place George A. Leakin was ordained a Deacon of the Protestant Episcopal Church, on the presentation of the Rev. H V D. Johns. The Right Rev. Bishop's discourse was from 1st Corinthians, 21 ch 24 verse.—Amer.

AN ARMY OF LOCUSTS.

A Livingston, N. J. correspondent of the Newark Advertiser, notices the appearance of an army of locusts. He describes the shell as of a cream color, except the eyes and two dark spots on the back part of the head. The letter "V" is fully marked on their wings.

The Arkansas Locofocos held a State Convention at Columbia on the 1st inst All the prominent Locos in the State were present. Col. Johnson was nominated for the Pesidency, and Col. A.H. Sevier, Wm Fulton and Edward Cross, appointed Delegates in the Locofoco National Convention. The month of May, 1844, (Mr Calhoun's time) was designated as the time for the meeting of the Convention.

The Frederick Examiner says:—

The Levy Court of this County, which adjourned last Saturday, declined to take any action on the subject of the income tax law. The reason of this was the law required the assessors to be appointed on or before the first of May, which day had passed by.

A man named Robinson was arrested a few days since in Payson precint, Illinois, on a charge of passing counterfeit money. In searching him they found upon his person letters from six wives, all living, which he had married in different parts of the country. He had a wife with him at the time of his apprehension.

STAINBURN'S PILLS.

We cannot say too much in favour of this well balanced and excellent medicine. It is composed entirely of extracts made from vegetable ingredients, by the aid of ingenious and scientific machinery and combined in such a manner as cannot fail to produce a most pure and valuable medicine. No house should be without a box of these pills, as nothing can be more proper or necessary than a dose of good medicine to cleanse and purify the stomach in all cases of sudden attacks of cold or sickness, and we venture to say that if those pills were used in time they would, in nine cases out of ten, be the means of preventing a long fit of illness. They are sold by the proprietors, 338 Broadway, next door to the Tabernacle.

Said Pills are sold in Easton by the agent, E. M. DAWSON & BROTHER, and by agents published in another part of our paper.

MURDER

On the night of Tuesday last, the 13th instant, Mr JOSEPH KEMP, for more than twenty years a watchman to the Bank at Easton. His fidelity in this station, and general integrity of character, had gained for him the respect and esteem of the community. His closing days especially were spent in that preparation for death which becometh the christian: and his remains were deposited in the burial ground of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in the full membership & communion of which he departed this life.
