be relieved from the burden of taxation to an extent when it might be easily borne, to a point, indeed less than what prevails in any other States of the Union. And that whatever differences of opinion may exist as to the proper mode and manner of disposing of the State's interest it is now manifest that these works are esteemed valuable and that they may be used so as to cancel a large portion of the public debt, at any time the people may desire and the legislature carry out the wish by proper legislative enactments.

Resolved, That this meeting in thus setting forth its opinions in a manner and language too plain to be misunderstood upon a subject of such vital importance to the public welfare, so intimately blended with the fair fame of our beloved State, so inseparably connected with the commercial credit of Baltimore, in short so paramount in all respects to every other political consideration, being a question of public morals, upon the settlement of which may depend whatever confidence is justly due to Republican Institutions, make no attempt at dictation as to the course others may see proper to pursue, and yet we desire to mark emphatically, our own determination in the premises, from which there will be no shadow of turning, which is to express at all times as we do now, in the name of more than 7000 voters of the Democratic party of this city, their deep abhorrence of the odious doctrine of repudiation; their indignant and unequivocal denial that it is sanctioned by any principle of the Democratic faith, but on the contrary that it is at war with its cardinal principle of equal and exact justice to all; and that we will use every effort in opposition to this novel heresy, looking at last to the ballot box as the faithful defender of the virtue, intelligence, and patriotism of the people.

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting are due and are hereby offered to the able Editor of the Baltimore Republican and Argus, who well knowing the sentiments of our people upon this subject did as a faithful sentinel on the watch tower, and in the spirit of a true Democrat, rebuke the 'first dawning of an attempt, to enlist the Democratic party in hostility to the maintenance of the public credit

These resolutions having been unanimously adopted, and the remarks of the Speaker received with great unanimity and decided approbation, the meeting adjourned.

THE RICHMOND ENQUIRER has been anxiously employed of late in earnest attempts to sooth the growing discontents which are continually breaking out in the heterogeneous ranks of its party. It has exposulated, warned, exhorted and entreated. It tells the Democracy, and it repeats over and over again, that they must present an undivided front or it is all over with them—that their distractions and divisions unless reconciled will ensure the ascendancy of the Whigs & of that man H CLAY" with the whole catalogue of Whig measures; & to set an example of self denial the Enquirer itself has opened its columns to articles in commendation of Mr. CALHOUN. This act of heroism for the good of the cause ought not to be without its due effect—for who in the whole party can remain untouched by such an instance of sacrifice—sacrifice of predilections, prejudices, opinions, consistency!

To illustrate the true nature and extent of this sacrifice on the altar of democracy it may be proper to show how much the Enquirer must agree to forget, how much it must unsay, how much of its own hostility it must assuage, before extending the hand of cordial political fellowship to the Nullifier, of the South. The following extract from that journal of March 22nd, 1833, will show something of this:

From the Richmond Enquirer of March 22nd, 1833.

"We retort upon the Telegraph the falsehood which it has charged upon us. Its Editor knows, as well as we do, that John C Calhoun was an advocate of the tariff system in 1816—that he went out of the war, an ultra stickler for the powers of the Federal Government—that he supported the Bank—a general system of Internal Improvements—and the protective system as the permanent policy of the Government. The loyal Telegraph knows, and his political master knows, that in spite of his late equivocating speech, he was the advocate of the bill of 1816—that there is not one word about raising revenue in the speech of 1816; and that he insisted that manufactures should be established by protection beyond the reach of contingency; and that he strenuously supported the oppressive & odious system of minimums.

"We know further, and we have no doubt this miserable sycophant of Mr Calhoun knows the same, that as far down as 1821, he was in favour of building up manufactures by the scaffolding of the Federal Government. Finding, however, that his ultra doctrines were becoming odious to the South, and that his ambition could never be gratified by this course, he was compelled to yield to the force of Southern sentiment—cooled towards his Federal doctrines—gradually came over to the cause of State Rights;—but like all new proselytes, hurried into excess, and plunged into the other extreme of nullification. And now his powerful mind is devoted to the task of denying his old opinions, and of supporting his new ones—never right—but always on extremes. A politician from 1815 down to 1833, utterly unsafe and not to be trusted."

Now let any one consider the force & bearing of these expressions, so heartily uttered that there can be no doubt of the sincerity which prompted them at the time; and then let the estimate be made of the amount of meekness, self denying forbearance and patriotic fervour necessary to induce the swallowing of such bitter words, and to inspire cordiality towards the individual whose political heresies called them forth. If this can be done for the sake of democratic unity, what further impossibilities need be despaired of? How can Mr. Calhoun himself refuse, if the good of the party shall require it, to support with all his energies the Northern man with Southern principles whom he once compared to a fox or a weasel, and whom he may still regard as resembling those interesting animals? In short it must follow, if the example of the Enquirer is to have force, that no incongruity of opinions, no diversity of principles, no personal or political repugnances, should be allowed to prevent the harmonious combination of democratic elements, however discordant in themselves, into one mass for the special purpose of restoring to the country the blessings of that democratic rule of which the Republic was deprived when Mr. Van Buren suffered his memorable defeat.—American.

A Long SHORT CAKE.—Bread stuffs form an important item in the rapid growing commerce of this city. To illustrate the extent of this branch of our trade, we have made a small calculation, which will be found to be entirely correct.

During the last week in May there was sent from Buffalo via the canal, sixty one thousand & ninety seven barrels of flour, & sixty eight thousand six hundred and fifty six bushels of wheat. Allowing each bushel of the latter to make forty five pounds of flour and each barrel of the former to contain one hundred and nine ty six pounds, the total of pounds was fifteen millions sixty four thousand five hundred and thirty two! During the same period there was sent from this city along with this immense quantity of flour, thirteen hundred and forty eight thousand two hundred and thirteen pounds of butter and lard. There was also sent over two and a quarter millions of pounds of pearlash and other ashes. Now, if the good people on the road will furnish proper 'wetting' and the place to bake it in, we will put two pounds of good flour in each foot of cake, and lard, butter and saleratus enough to match, and treat them a continuous Short Cake fourteen hundred twenty six thousand miles and one hundred and eight rods long.

One end of this cake might be placed in the capital of Missouri, and the other would not only reach to Boston, but it would 'stick out' over the Atlantic some two hundred miles.—Of this all the people of the United States might eat and be filled without a miracle, besides giving the fish of the great deep a "glorious nibble."

As an addenda to the above, it will be seen that the last 24 hours there have arrived in port, over 25 000 barrels of flour, and 33,000 bushels of wheat and other articles in proportion.

COUNTRY NEWSPAPERS.—The Cleaveland Herald says—"The citizens of a county are too apt to fail in giving a proper support to local papers. It should be the pride, as it is the interest of every citizen of a county to take some paper published in it. The weekly visitations of a good paper are like the regular apperance of an old friend—the whole family will give it a welcome, and hold a converse with its intelligent pages. We say a good newspaper, and the way to build up a good local newspaper, is to give it generally a good liberal support. A publisher can no more cater for his readers, than he can from an empty larder fill his own empty stomach: The times are hard it is true, but there is no good excuse for that man who neglects to take a paper, and to pay for it too. Most publishers have families, (printers are too sensible to live bachelors) and the products of the farm, and the mechanic's shop seldom fail to come in play to keep the press in motion Sending east for your newspapers instead of encouraging your own, is like sending abroad for your manufactures that the artizans in your midst stand ready to furnish. The foreign paper costs the cash and the cash only, and when obtained, very often lacks the real interest and vitality of the sheet issued in your neighborhood—The very advertisements and the weekly record of marriages and deaths possess an interest in the home paper, worth to a family, more than the price the sheet costs, and the contrast in families where they are not, is ever the subject of remark by intelligent and observing travellers. The Yankees know too well, the value of newspapers as mediums of intelligence and useful knowledge, to require sermonizing on the subject of 'types and shadows.' Still, a jog, in regard to interest and duty touching the press of their respective counties, may not be out of place. It is a good motto to "Encourage your own."

NEW COUNTERFEIT.—A counterfeit 2 dollar note on the Union Bank of Maryland, was offered at the Merchants Bank this morning. It is dated May 5, 1840, letter A, signed S. Day, Cashier, and N Bishop President, Vignette on each end, and of light dim appearance, is easily distinguished from the genuine note, as the names of the persons signing it as officers are not those of the Union Bank of Maryland, neither is the note in any respect like the genuine two dollar notes.

HAIL STORM IN SCHUYLKILL COUNTY.

The Pottsville Emporium states that a hail storm passed through Upper Mahantongo township, Schuylkill Co. on the 5th inst. Houses and barns were unroofed; and in some instances completely thrown down; the rye, wheat and corn, &c. in many places entirely cut off and destroyed; and, as if to add to the general destruction, the streams rose to a height almost unprecedented. Some of the hail was of the size of hen's eggs, and after the storm, the earth in some places was covered with it to the depth of several inches.

The Georgia Nomination.—Accounts, from Milledgeville state that the Loco Foco Convention passed the resolutions recommending John C. Calhoun as their first choice for the office of President of the United States—not, however, without meeting with strong opposition from some of the members friendly to Mr. Van Buren.

John H. Stark, Butts county, was nominated as the Loco Foco candidate to fill the vacancy in Congress occasioned by the withdrawal of Mark A. Cooper, who was nominated for the post of Governor.

EXPERIENCE OF THE AGE.

The latest experience of the age in the way of medical discoveries is to be found in STAINBURN'S VEGETABLE EXTRACT PILLS formed of 27 extractions from the vegetable kingdom to preserve and restore health. In all vegetable preparations heretofore, the RAW material has been used when the EXTRACT has been neglected. STANBURN'S PILLS ARE MADE OF EXTRATS ONLY, from the most useful plants, roots and barks that nature seems to have designed for the cure of disease. They operate upon the bowels, cleans the system, and purify the blood, without occasioning any pain or any sensation of sickness whatever, so frequently the accompaniment of impure and badly prepared medicine. Persons going to Sea or to the Southern States will find this medicine peculiarly adapted to preserve their health and fortify their constitutions against the dangerous attacks which change of climate or of season affix to the body.

Guard against disarrangement of the stomach and bowels. Remember this advice, use STAINBURN'S VEGETABLE EXTRACT PILLS in time and you are safe.

Price 25 cents per box. Office 338 Broadway, next door below the Tabernacle.

Said Pills are sold in Easton by the agent, E. M. DAWSON & BROTHER, and by agents published in another part of our paper.

Wool Carding.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the Citizens of Caroline and Talbot Counties, that he has fitted up in his Mill a Carding Machine in good order for Wool Carding, which is now in successful operation. He will attend to the machine himself, and all persons patronizing him may rely upon their work being done to order, and with punctuality and despatch. Wool left at the Store of Mr John W Chezum in Easton, will be taken ther from, carded and returned in rolls as soon as possible. His price for carding once through is 6 cents, twice through, 8¼ per lb. All bundles should be labeled with the owner's name and directions.

Owing to the numerous small accounts the above business creates, and the difficulty of collecting that part which is not paid at the time the work is done, the subscriber is compelled to require payment in all cases on the delivery of the rolls.
