I have noticed in New York that men who had formerly no pretensions to good looks have become very handsome by wearing of moustache and imperial, and I have seen handsome men disfigured by adopting the same fashion, The effect of a moustache and full beard is to make the face more masculine, graver and coarser, and this is of coarse an improvement to one whose features are over delicate, or whose expression is too frivolous. On a dapper man it is quite out of place, and he should wear a clipped whisker if any beard at all. The beard, I think gives a middle aged look, and makes a man of twenty look older, and a man of forty younger. The ladies like a beard, naturally thinking faces effeminate which are as smooth as their own, and not objecting to the distinction which Nature has made between the sexes.—When the beard is but partially worn, some artistical knowledge should be called in, as a short face may be made longer and a broad face narrower, a gay face graver, and an undecided chin but in domino. But of all abominations in this way, I think the goat's beard, growing under the chin only, is the most brutal and disgusting, though just now in New York, rather the prevailing fashion. The mistake in taste is very common of continuing to wear a high shirt collar and cravat with a beard on the cheek and throat—the beauty of a curling beard depending very much on its freedom and natural adaption to the mould of the face. There are more people than Beatrice of course who are willing to let a man's beard be 'of the color that God pleases;' but there are others who have aversions to red beards and yellow, and there is great trade in cirages and gums for the improvement of color and texture. Most of the beards you meet in Broadway glitter in the sun like steel filings. Altogether I think the fashion of wearing the beard is a desirable one and I particularly wish it would prevail among old men. A bearded Senate would make a wiser and more reverend show in Congress, and any thing which conceals the decrepitude of age & moves respect, (as beards certainly do both) is most desirable.

IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD REQUIRES ATTENTION.—When the blood becomes impure it is a certain sign that the intestinal regions of the stomach do not perform their natural functions.—Stainburn's Vegetable Extract Pills, formed from the soundest vegetable matters extracted by a scientific process, will remove all complaints of the stomach, and the blood will soon run through its proper channels, pure and healthy as ever. These pills in their operations are free from the pain which accompanies most others. The reason is obvious, the extract constitutes the very essence of the remedy stripped from all grossness, and therefore acts upon the system in the mildest possible manner. To all those troubled with excess of bile, dyspepsia, head ache, &c. which can be easily removed with a little attention, these pills will effectually relieve, and the body resume a healthy organization.

Price 25 cents per box. Office 338 Broadway N. Y. next door below the Tabernacle.

Said Pills are sold in Easton by the agent, E. M. Dawson & Brother, and by agents published in another part of our paper.

University of Maryland.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

THE annual course of lectures in the Medical Department of the University of Maryland will commence on the last Monday of October next, and be continued till the first day of March following.

The course of instruction will consist, as usual, of lectures on the Theory and Practice of Medicine, on Obstetrics and Medical Jurisprudence, on Chemistry and Pharmacy, on Surgery on Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and on Special and General Anatomy.

The well know advantages of the University of Maryland, its spacious halls, its unrivalled apparatus, the abundant and cheap materials for the pursuit of practical Anatomy afforded by the city of Baltimore, and the ample resources of the valuable Museum belonging to the College, leave nothing to be desired by those who attach themselves to it as students of the various departments of medical science.

The lessons of the Professors of Surgery of the Practice of Physic, and of Therapeutics will be illustrated by daily clinical instruction in the wards of the Baltimore Infirmary—This institution, which is connected with the College and in its immediate vicinity, presents at all times a number and variety of cases amply sufficient to afford to Students an acquaintance with the practical application of the principles of Medicine and Surgery. Constant opportunities occur during the session of witnessing its important surgical operations.

The Professors of the several branches, thus provided with all the necessary and desirable means of aiding students of medicine in the acquisition of a thorough professional education will make every exertion to promote the interest of their pupils, and to prepare them properly for the arduous and momentous duties of the medical profession

The Mathematical course will include the mixed mathematics, and pupils will be prepared for admission to any class in the Colleges or Universities of the United States; for entering upon commercial pursuits or engaging directly in the studies preparatory to either of the learned professions.

An ample philosophical and chemical apparatus has been procured at no inconsiderable cost to the Trustees, and this institution, liberally endowed as it is, merits the patronage of parents and guardians in this and the neighboring counties.
