the aggrandizement of her native soil and as Washington was the father of his country, truly and emphatically, so is Henry Clay the father of a system which has added to her greatness and will continue to advance her to greater renown.

There was glory in having a Washington to preside over us—an Adams, a Jefferson, a Madison, and a Monroe shed lustre upon the Chief magistracy! and the fame of Henry Clay's genius for elevated statesmanlike views, his noble chivalrous sentiments, his glowing eloquence, his profound wisdom, known as he is for such pre-eminent qualities, to every intelligent American and to the great nations of Europe, peculiarly fit him to be the associate of names, the record of whose deeds fill every American bosom with patriotic thrills of exulting pride and joy!

This is the man, the Whig party seek to make President of the United States, a man upon whom his own party have no reproach to cast, which is more than can be truly said of either of the other candidates, and hence no small eulogy!

From the Baltimore Patriot.

Mr. Editor:—I have seen in the papers, a few days ago, favourable mention made of the Hon. James A. Pearce, of Kent County, as a suitable candidate to represent this State in the Senate of the United States. Now Sir, without any disparagement to the high order of talents, patriotism and ability of Mr. Pearce, I must ask the favor of you to place my worthy friend, Theodore R. Loockerman Esq. of Talbot County, upon the same footing for the consideration of the Legislature, as our next Senator. Mr. Loockerman is every way qualified as a scholar, a patriot and a gentleman to succeed (with all due deference to others) the high toned and dignified Robert Henry Goldsborough Esq. our former Senator in that body. Mr L has done much by his untiring exertions to sustain the true principles and honor of his County & the State, though good report and evil report; and no man is more amply qualified, and better calculated than he is, to sustain the high dignity and honor of old "MARYLAND"

At the request of the many friends of T. R. Loockerman, Esq. we copy the above—all we can say is, that old Talbot will respond heartily to what is there said of her distinguished son—Mr. Loockerman has always been identified with the Whig cause from its earliest origin. He was an Elector in 1828 and the great majority then obtained in the electoral district was mainly owing to his powerful efforts as a speaker, and untiring zeal and ardor in the cause. From that time to the recent county election he has been zealously engaged in the service of the Whig cause.

TRIAL FOR MURDER IN ELKTON, MD.—The trial of Palmer E. Ricketts for shooting Amos T. Forwood, is now going on at Elkton, Md. before Chief Judge Chambers and Associate Judge Eccleston on the bench.

The counsel engaged in the case are Joseph Wickes, Esq prosecuting attorney, and Henry Stump, Esq of Baltimore on the part of the State. For the defence, the Hon. John M. Clayton, of Delaware, James H. Jamar and John C. Groome, Esqrs. of Elkton. The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun (specially sent to report the progress of the trial) says, 'conjecture is quite at variance as to the probable duration of the trial, though I find the more general opinion to be, that it will not occupy more than three, and perhaps only two days."

PENNSYLVANIA ELECTION.—The Harrisburg Telegraph of Wednesday says:—That the official returns show that 13 Whigs and 11 Locofocos have been elected to Congress. The names of the members elected we gave yesterday—The Telegraph says:—The result is rendered still more glorious by the fact that seven of these thirteen districts were intended to be so Gerrymandered by the late Legislature as to secure the election of Locofocos. The Whigs have therefore carried at least seven districts supposed to be certain for the Locofocos, while they have lost one in Alleghany, by the division of the Whigs and Anti-masons. Had it not been for the division, the Whigs and Antimasons would have fourteen out of the 24 districts, giving them a majority of four!

In regard to the Legislature, the Telegraph says:

"The result of the election for Members of the Legislature, has been almost as gratifying as that for Congress. The Democrats, or Whigs and Atimasons, have elected forty two members, & probably 44, to the Locofocos 56—thus reducing the Locofoco majority of last year which was 32, down to 12—notwithstanding, our loss of several members by Gerrymandering, of 4 members in Alleghany, and of several others in Whig counties by divisions. If the Antimasons and Whigs had done as well in the election of Representatives, in their strong counties as usual, they would have had a decided majority in the popular branch of the Legislature. In the Senatorial districts we have done as well as we expected. We have lost one, an excellent man, in Bucks county, by two votes, which we should have carried; and elected one in the Lycoming district, tho we scarcely expected. The Legislature will stand on joint ballot, 22 Locofoco majority—a reduction of near one half their majority at the last session.

"Of the success of the Locofoco candidates for Canal Commissioners, by a reduced majority of from seven to ten thousand, there is no doubt. But even this majority might have been greatly diminished, or entirely overcome, had it not been for the divisions in Lancaster and Alleghany counties, and had there been any but Locofoco tickets in Tioga, Munroe, and some of the other counties. But taking the result as it is, the People have cause to rejoice that they can look ahead and see a sure prospect of redemption and regeneration from the evils and corruptions of misgovernment, in 1844."

OHIO ERECT!

That same 'Old Coon'

From the Columbus State Jour. of Oct. 20

THE RESULT—THE LEGISLATURE SAFE!

We are enabled to say with certainty that the Whigs will have a majority of two on joint ballot in the next General Assembly. Trumbull county sends one Whig and one Loco; Huron and Erie sends Mr. Atherton, a good Whig, so that we have in the House 39 members. The whole may now be thus summed up:

SENATE:	Whigs.	Locos.	Ind.
Old Members,	7	11
Elected this year.	9	9
	16	20
HOUSE.	39	30	3
	55	50	3

Whig majority on joint ballot, independent of three "Independent Locos," two.

GEORGIA ELECTION RETURNS.—The Milledgeville Recorder of the 17th gives returns from all the counties in the State, except Ware; they are not however, made up from official returns received at the Executive Department; some are official while others are reported. That paper makes the footing up as follows:

For Governor.

George W. Crawford (Whig)	38,502
Mark A. Cooper (Loco Foco)	35,061
Majority for Crawford	3,441

Whigs	For Congress.	Locos
Stephens	38,411	Johnson 31,709

TENNESSEE—TWO WHIG U. S. SENATORS CHOSEN.

The following letter from the editor of the Nashville Whig, will be highly gratifying to the Whig party throughout the nation:

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal:

Whig Office, Nashville, Oct. 17 eight

Gentlemen: As I had the pleasure of advising you of the popular triumph of the Whigs of Tennessee in August, suffer me to communicate the scarcely less pleasing intelligence that they have this day reaped the first and most important fruits of that great victory.

The Hon. Ephraim H Foster, of Davidson, and Spencer Jarnagin, Esq. of M'Minn, were this afternoon elected, in convention of the two houses, by the unanimous vote of the Whig majority, Senators to the Congress of the U. States—the first to reassume the seat from which he was driven by the proscriptive course of the Locofoco Legislature of 1839; the last to take the seat occupied by the lamented White whose successor he was on the Harrison electoral ticket in 1840.

Hon. Henry Clay defended Cassius M. Clay, who our readers will remember was charged with assaulting with attempt to kill Mr. Brown, a post office [illegible] the Southern district. The [illegible] on at Lexington (Ky.) on the [illegible] A correspondent of the N[illegible] Tribune writes:

He commenced his address to the jury by saying that more than fourteen years had elapsed since he last appeared before the bar of this Court as an advocate in a criminal prosecution. He then defended a young man who was indicted for the crime of murder, and who was acquitted. What a change, said he has come over the customs and practices of our country since that period.—Wherefore I, though not over young in years, stand before you this day somewhat in the condition of a novice in pleading, and I ask at your hands the same forbearance and the same kindness which you extend to a youthful aspirant after fame and reputation. But time and space forbid me to follow him through as I could wish. Sometimes he poured out the most indignant and bitter sarcasm on the despicable chicanery of Tyler and his minions, who, far from the fields of their official duties, were espousing the quarrels & urging on the interests of particular favorites; and he then led the understanding captive by the arguments he gathered from the testimony to prove that his client was innocent of the crime charged in the indictment.—He spoke about an hour and a half, and was heard throughout with breathless interest, save when admiration and delight were too highly excited to be controlled by the restraints of a court of justice, and manifested themselves in enthusiastic notes of applause. Mr. Robinson then concluded his argument for the prosecution, and the jury retired. They needed no long space of time to mature their decision, but soon returned into Court with a verdict of not guilty. So endeth Capt. Tyler's unlucky experiment upon the gallant sons of Kentucky.

A CONSPIRACY AT WARSAW.

A London letter writer remarks that "the state of Poland, however apparently helpless and hopeless, has of late called forth an additional feeling of sympathy. Her nationality appears to slumber only—for a well organized conspiracy has been discovered at Warsaw, consisting of 8,000 persons, whose object was to effect a revolution. About 300 have been arrested. May God preserve them!"

The circumstances under which the workmen at the Navy Yard in Washington and elsewhere were discharged last week, are explained in the following letter from the Secretary of the Navy:

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21, 1843.

DEAR SIR:—I notice a call for a meeting in Baltimore for Monday evening, 'to express their views in relation to the dismissal, by John Tyler, of the Whig Mechanics who were employed in the public service at Washington, because they dared to exercise the right of freemen on Monday last, in the city of Baltimore their place of residence, by voteing their sentiments.'

The order for the discharge of the workmen engaged upon the 'increase and repair,' of the Navy, not only at the Washington Yard, but for the discharge of all those employed in the like service in all the Navy Yards of the U. States, was given by me, without instructions from the President and in fact without his knowledge. It was rendered necessary in consequence of having exhausted the appropriation made by the last Congress; for this branch of the public service. I neither knew the politics, the residence, nor even the persons of those upon whom the order was to operate. I did not know, nor had I ever heard, that any of them had voted in Baltimore.

The workmen discharged at the Washington Yard perfectly well understood the cause of this order; and at a very large meeting of this respectable body of citizens held on Friday evening, they unanimously passed a series of resolutions, a copy of which I send you for publication, which breathe a very different spirit from that which is shewn in the call of the Baltimore meeting.

It gave me infinite pain to be obliged to discharge from employment so many industrious and worthy citizens, at this season, when winter is so near at hand; but I had no alternative: The money which Congress had thought sufficient to be expended for this purpose had been all used, and here the law required me to stop.

I trust this explanation, which I desire you will have the kindness to cause to be published, will satisfy the gentlemen who have called the Baltimore meeting, that they have moved under a misapprehension of the fact in the case.

I am very respectfully

Your ob't serv't

DAVID HENSHAW.

[The preamble and first of the resolutions adopted at the meeting of the working men of the Washington Navy Yard, alluded to in the foregoing letter, are as follow:]

"Whereas, an order has just emanated from the Navy Department, requiring the immediate discharge of several hundred workingmen from this Navy Yard Therefore, be it resolved unanimously that from what we have been informed, we discover in said order the finger of necessity; the appropriations for the increase and repairs of the Navy having been exhausted. We therefore, attach no blame whatever to His Excellency, the President, or to the Hon. Secretary of the Navy.

THE PORTLAND POST OFFICE—POSTE HASTE.—A few days ago, Mr. Lyman, present P. M. of Portland, was turned out, and Mr. Mitchell, an old P. M. there, was turned in. A few days after that, Mr. Mitchell himself was turned out and Mr. Lyman was then again turned in. This rapid rotation in office there [illegible] some people, but it now seems that Mr. Mitchell hopes to be turned in again. After Mr. Lyman got his second commission, Mr. Mitchell flew post haste to Washington; but as soon as Mr. Lyman knew that, he flew as quick as possible after him. Both these gentlemen are now there and wondering what on earth, or under the earth, Capt. Tyler will do next. No man knoweth which way the wind bloweth.—New York Express.

EX-PRESIDENT BOYER.—The Paris correspondent of the National Intelligencer, under date of Sept. 29, says—

Ex-President Boyer & family arrived here by the railroad from Rouen on Monday. They travelled in so plain a way that the Journals cannot reconcile it with the accounts of his immense wealth. A Rouen editor, who visited the party, reports him a dark mulatto, a man of sensible conversation and good breeding apparently about 65 or 68 years of age, under a double affliction, the loss of power and country and the recent death of his wife.—His mother with him, is a negress, very tall, above eighty years of age, dressed in an odd fashion, wearing a great felt hat—the wife of the Colonel, his nephew and aid, who is a bright mulattress, possesses rare beauty and has four children. This morning, in passing the hotel near the Church of the Madeline, in which they are lodged on the first floor, I saw the aged dame and an equally black nurse with one of the children in her arms, at a window

RETURN OF THE REV. R. W. SIBTHORP TO THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND—Ryde, Isle of Wight, Oct. 2.—Yesterday, the Rev. R Waldo Sibthorp, received the Holy Communion at the Parish Church at St. Helen's near this town.—We presume this is a virtual return to the bosom of the Anglican Church.—London Stanadrd, Oct. 3d.

Mike Walsh has run away and left his bail in the lurch. It will not be very pleasant for them to pay about four thousand dollars for sustaining such a penitentiary rascal. We learn that bench warrants are issued for him; and if captured, his sentance will be six months upon each offence, making about two years' residence on Blackwell's Island hugging out stone. Wilkes will receive sentence for one year, for publishing obscene papers, and at the next sitting of the grand jury, if he should not be sent up before, he will be indicted for writing and publishing several gross libels in the 'Subterranean.' We shall get rid of these rascals by degrees.—New York Plebeian.

DEATH OF ONE OF THE TUTORS IN YALE COLLEGE.—The New Haven papers announce the death of John Breed Dwight, a Tutor in Yale College, from wounds inflicted upon him by one of the younger members of the College, immediately after the commencement of the present term. We give the account in the words of the New Haven Herald:—

Some young rowdies of the advancing classes were paying their respects to the Freshmen in a course of introduction prohibited by the rules of the Institution, which Tutor Dwight, with others, attempted to suppress. In the performance of this duty, he seized a young man named Lewis Fassit, of Philadelphia, and was in the act of drawing him to the light to recognise him, when Fassit drew a knife or dirk, of some kind, and gave him three successive stabs near the groin and almost penetrating the femoral artery, which would have been instantly fatal.—A fever ensued which soon terminated in death.

Mr. Dwight, adds the Herald, was a son of Mr. J. Dwight, of New Haven, late of Richmond, Va and a grandson of the late President Dwight. He was only 21 years of age, and graduated at Yale College in the class of 1840. He was a gentleman of fine promise and his loss will make a serious void in the social and literary circles to which he was attached.

Fassit the young man, who now stands guilty of perpetrating the highest crime known to our laws, has left the city, and will probably escape. We understand, however, that measures have been instituted for his apprehension, and that a requisition will be made to the Governor of Pennsylvania for his apprehension, and surrender to the hands of justice.

We learn from the Philadelphia U. S. Gazette that Fassitt has been arrested in that city and required to give bail in the sum of $5000, to await a requisition from the Governor of Connecticut.
