were of very rare occurrence among them Indeed, we believe it to be a fact which cannot be controverted that, with those nations where the hair and beard are worn long, the people are more hardy and robust and much less subject to diseases, particularly of a pulmonary character, than those who shave. The Turk the Russ, the Greenlander, the Persian, &c., have been nearly exempt from bronchial and lung complaints in comparison with the European and American. Nor can this be attributed to any climate influence, for no people are more exposed to atmospheric changes than the inhabitants of those northern regions.

The fashion of shaving the beard, like many other foolish and injurious customs of civilized life, has often originated from absurd and ridiculous causes. Among the first who practised shaving the beard were the soldiers of Alexander the Great, who were commanded to remove their beards, in order that they might not serve as handles to their enemies in battle. When Louis XIII ascended the throne of France, in 1656 it was the custom of the inhabitants to allow their faces to remain as their Creator made them. This monarch, however, was a beardless youth, and thus, in order to ape royalty, was shaving introduced and beards proscribed. In Spain, also, was the fashion introduced in a similar manner. Philip V. was a beardless boy, and therefore, for fashion's sake, did his subjects, hitherto noble and manly in appearance, reduce themselves to this unnatural and childish state.

The hair being a bad conductor of caloric, is admirably calculated to retain the heat of those parts which it covers, and to protect the important organs within from the effects of cold and the constant atmospheric vicissitudes to which man must be exposed. The importance of this protective agent will be appreciated when it is borne in mind how many inflamatory attacks are induced by the sudden application of cold, and by suppressing that function so necessary to health, the perspiration. With a long and heavy beard a man can brave with impunity 'the spellings of the pitiless storm,' and bid defiance to the cold winds of winter, while a shaven and unguarded throat must succumb to the piercing blast"

CONFESSION OF A MURDERER

Strange Development—It will be recollected that during last winter or spring a horrible murder of several members of a family took place in Warren County, New Jersey. A man named Carter was arrested and put upon his trial for these murders, but on account of the jury in his case not being able to agree he was set at liberty. Some circumstances have since transpired, that may lead, if true, to the punishment of the real participators in this awful tragedy. They are these:

On Wednesday night a man named Augustus Miller, went into a German boarding house in New Market street near Pegg and got into a controversy with one of the boarders named William Heyer; afterwards he returned to his own stopping place, which it seems was in this same neighborhood, and on last night he came back, and renewed the subject of the preceding evening. They became much excited, when another man, Adam Leichtenheldt interfered and caused a reconciliation to take place between them.

Miller then took the latter aside and told him that he was one of the men who committed the above murder, that he had killed Mr. Parke by cutting his throat and that Heyer was his accomplice and had destroyed the life of the child. He said that by giving him up he could make $1000: but begged him to say nothing about it until he got another night's rest. L immediately told Heyer the statement which he had made and Heyer then went for a watchman and had him arrested.

He was taken to the Northern Liberty police office, where he confessed his participation in the murder, and stated that he had an accomplice but would not implicate Heyer. He refused to give any particulars in regard to the manner that these unfortunate individuals were put to death. He was this morning brought before Mayor Cannon, and by him committed for a further hearing.—No additional particulars were elicited from him. The affair altogether is a singular one, and might induce a supposition that the man is insane but there are not the slightest indications of it—The object in making the confession, he stated, was on account of the disturbed state of his mind—not having been able to obtain any rest since the commission of the dreadful deed.—[Phila. Mercury

AN IMPORTANT MOVEMENT.—The time (Sept 1st) previous to which the Collectors of the several counties were to have paid into the Treasury the Taxes for the years 1841 and 1842, having expired, the Governor has, we understand in conformity with the power vested to him by law directed suit to be brought against the respective Collectors, who are in arrear.

A TOUCHING SCENE.—The Adams Sentinel states, that while Judge Buchanan was passing sentence of death upon the unhappy criminal, Chrise in Cumberland Maryland, his feelings were so excited as almost to impede utterance. After passing sentence, the judge arose and with him the other members of the court, the bar and the whole assembly, when he offered up to the Throne of Grace a most fervent prayer in behalf of the doomed and unfortunate man.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday last while Captain Mears, of the Schooner Experiment, (owned by Wm. B Paca,) was engaged in setting up the sails to dry them, the fastening which attaches the block to the mast head gave way and the block struck the Captain on the head and injured him so badly that he died soon after.—Q. A. Tellescope.

THANKSGIVING.—Proclamations for the observance of this festival, on the days mentioned, have been issued in the following States:

Georgia Nov,	3	Michigan, Nov.	30
Charleston City	16	Missouri,	30
Massachusetts	30	Indianna	30
Connecticut	30	Maine December	7
N Hampshire	30	New Jersey	7
Rhode Island	30	Vermont	7
Maryland	30	New York	14

How easy would it be to have thus solemn rite observed on the same day throughout the Union, and how impressive would be this unanimity.

The Mass Missionary meeting of the Baptists in Philadelphia on Tuesday evening, was large and enthusiastic—Among the speakers was Mr. Kincaid, Missionary from Burmah. After the exercises of the evening were concluded a collection took place, which amounted to $850 and a pair of gold ear rings. A number of pledges were given, among which, says the Tribune correspondence was one in the following words—'One dollar per day so long as the Lord shall prosper me.'

The President of the United States has returned to Washington.

FEVER & AGUE CURED.

For the benefit of the afflicted I am induced to acknowledge the benefit I have experienced from the use of six doses of the STAINBURN EXTRACT PILLS. My case was that of the first stage of Fever and Ague and which came on every 24 hours. I tried almost everything that was recomended to break the chill, but none proved effectual except the STAINBURN PILLS, which I took a bout a half hour before the usual time for the chill to come on, and I can confidently say that they broke it entirely. It is now three days since I took the last dose and I have not had the slightest symptoms of the chills returning. I have recommended the pills to several of my friends, who were afflicted similarly to myself, and their testimonials in favor of the pills are such as to induce me to send their case accompanying this.

DIED,

In this town on the 21st inst in the 4th year of her age Emma daughter of J. A. and Naomi Maynard.

Her languishing head is at rest,
Its thinking and aching are o'er,
Thy quiet immoveable breast
Is heaved by affection no more.
This heart is no longer the seat,
Of trouble and torturing pain,
It ceases to flutter and beat
It never shall flutter again.

On Sunday morning at the residence of her mother Mary Eliz beth, daughter of the late Henry Lloyd of Talbot County in the 9th year of her age, after an illness of two weeks. In the character of this amiable child were united graces which were calculated to please and ennoble. To her weeping relatives how mysterious this dispensations, but it is the Lord let him do what seemeth him good. No tongue but a parent's heart can feel the woes that are felt in such an afflicting stroke of Divine Providence, but although his ways are lost finding out yet we are sure he is too wise to err,

Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace,
Behind a frowning Providence
He hides a smiling face

At the residence of her father, in Caroline county, Hillsborough, on 14th inst., Miss Emma Dixon.

At his residence in Caroline county, on the 10th inst., Nicholas Fountain, after a lingering illness

In Baltimore on the 14th inst. Joseph Lecompte, in the 79th year of his age, formerly of Dorchester county
