EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, MD.

Saturday Morning, Jan. 25.

PHILOSOPHICAL & CHEMICAL LECTURES.— The introductory lecture to the course which has been for some time past advertised, was delivered on Saturday last. The lecturer gave a sketch of the progress of Chemical science, and closed with some pertinent remarks addressed to those who are desirous of mental cultivation.

The first regular lecture of the course is announced for THIS EVENING at 7 o'clock —subject, the Laws of motion, the mechanical powers, &c.—to be treated by Mr. Neely the Principal of the Academy. We hold that our citizens are bound to patronise these lectures, both for the sake of the general credit of the institution the principal of which is one of the lecturers, and for the sake of their own reputation as a literary community; and we doubt not they will prove, by a crowded attendance, that they appreciate the efforts made by the present incumbent to uphold, if not to advance, the character of our town in a literary and scientific point of view.

That our people may be without excuse, we perceive that the tickets for the course have been reduced in price— a ticket at one dollar admitting one gentleman and two ladies.

UNITED STATES SENATORS.

The General Assembly of Maryland on Thursday the 16th inst. elected Reverdy Johnson, Esq., of Baltimore, to the Senate of the United States for six years from the fourth of March next.

The Legislature of Delaware elected on Tuesday 14th inst. that sterling Whig and able statesman, John M. Clayton, Esq. a Senator of the United States for six years from the 4th of March next.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania, in joint ballot on Tuesday, 14th inst. re-elected the Hon. Daniel Sturgeon, United States Senator on the first ballot. He received 72 votes out of the 131 cast.

The Rhode Island Legislature on Wednesday 15th elected Gen. Albert C. Greene, United States Senator, for six years from the 4th of March next, to succeed the Hon. John B. Francis, whose term then expires.

At a caucus of the Democratic members of the Senate & Assembly of N. Y. on Friday evening, John A. Dix was nominated to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Silas Wright, and Daniel S. Dickinson that of N. P. Tallmadge. Mr. D. was afterwards nominated to the same office, for six years from the 4th of March next.

Daniel Webster was on Wednesday 15th inst. elected a United States Senator from Massachusetts for six years from the 4th of March next, vice Hon. R. Choate, who peremptorily declined. The vote of the Legislature in joint ballot stood:—

For Daniel Webster, (Whig)	186
" Marcus Morton, (Loco)	61
Scattering, 1 Whig, 1 Loco	2–66
Webster over all others	120

So Massachusetts has puts her best foot foremost.

The Senate of Indiana is composed of twenty-five Whigs and twenty-five Locos. The latter refused to join the lower House, (Whig,) in electing a United States Senator, and so the work goes by, this year.—The Legislature adjourned on the 13th inst.

POLK WITHDRAWN.—A letter from Washington to the Richmond Enquirer states, that the nomination of Mr. Polk, (brother of the President elect,) as Minister to Naples, has been withdrawn from the Senate by His Accidency.

On this event, the Enquirer says—

"We are glad to understand that Mr. P. has declined the office. We honor him for his forbearance. We are sure that we need not call upon J. K. Polk to keep his skirts clear of all nepotism, [like Tyler] and of all undue partialities in the dispensation of his official patronage. Let him fall into this blunder, and who would be surprised at any body's asking for office? Or who would not expect to see the passion raging without decency or moderation.

APPOINTMENTS CONFIRMED.—Among a number of appointments confirmed by the United States Senate, is that of Moreau Forrest, to be Marshal of the United States for the District of Maryland, vice Thomas B. Pottinger, removed. Adam D. Stewart, to be a Paymaster in the Army, has also been confirmed.

NEW JERSEY.—The Legislature of New Jersey met at Trenton on Tuesday 14th inst. and was duly organized by the selection of Whig officers in both branches.—John C. Smallwood, Esq. of Gloucester, is President of the Senate, and Isaac Van Wagener, Esq. of Essex, Speaker of the House.

A very valuable gold mine has recently been discovered in Franklin county, Va.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—McCurry, the supposed murderer of Mr. Roux, after he had been committed to prison in New York, attempted to commit suicide, by cutting his throat in three separate places with a pen-knife, which he borrowed from a fellow-prisoner. The instrument being small, he failed in the attempt, producing only slight wounds. The prisoner is safely confined, and put under a guard of two men who watch him day and night.

COUNTERFEITS.—There are, says the Baltimore Clipper, in circulation so many counterfeit one dollar notes of the Farmers' Bank of Maryland, at Annapolis, that store-keepers in the city refuse to take the notes of that denomination of the bank. The plate is a very old one.

From the Maryland Republican of Jan. 22.

THE ELECTION.

We feel highly gratified in announcing to our friends the glorious result of last Saturday's election. Old Anne Arundel is still Whig:

James Kent, Esq. Whig, received	1032
Llewellyn Boyle, Esq. Loco	596
Mr. Kent's majority	436

☞The following nominations of Gov. Thomas, to the Senate, were on yesterday rejected by that body:

William B. Stone—for 1st Judicial District, vice Judge Stevens, deceased.

Samuel B. Semmes—for 5th Judicial District, vice Judge Buchanan, deceased.

John A. Carter, Clerk Montgomery county court.

William A. Griffin, Register of Wills, Cecil county.

And the following were at the same time confirmed, viz:

Stevenson Archer, Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, vice Buchanan, deceased.

Augustus R. Sollers, Clerk Calvert Co. Court:—ib.

PASSED.—The bill from the House of Representatives of the United States, establishing a uniform time for holding the election of Electors of President and Vice President in all the States of the Union, has passed the Senate. It is now a law.

McNULTY, THE DEFAULTER.—It will be seen by the proceedings of Congress on Saturday, that this individual has been turned out as Clerk of the House of Representatives, by a unanimous vote, and that B. B. FRENCH, Esq., has been elected in his place. At the time of appointment of McNulty, the more considerate portion of the Locos were decidedly opposed to him, but they were overwhelmed by the fiery spirits who assumed to take the lead in the House. The deficiency is supposed to be very large, which his bondsmen, Messrs. Allen, Tappan, Potter, and Weller, will have to make up, as far as their bond goes.—Pat.

A SCENE AT WASHINGTON.—The following is from a correspondent of the Baltimore Sun:

The reported defalcation of the Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States, has created as you may suppose, and intense excitement throughout this Metropolis. I hasten to apprise you of a thrilling adventure which took place here this afternoon, and which very nearly hastened the spirit of one of the parties into eternity. Mr. Thomas Fenton Owen, a respectable citizen of the "Old Dominion," has recently taken that fine establishment known as the "Potomac Bridge Hotel," very near the bridge from which it takes its name. Mr. Benjamin Thorn, formerly a police officer, was employed as bar-keeper. Mr. Thorn had been absent for a day or two, and returned this afternoon; on his arrival Mr. Owen remarked that already he had received encouragement in his new vocation; that two ladies and two gentlemen were occupying a room in the second story. Mr. Thorn enquired if they had left their names at the bar, to which the landlord replied in the negative, and asked Mr. Thorn to go up and get their names, and see that they were comfortably situated. Thorn immediately proceeded to their room, when, judge of his astonishment on recognizing two prostitutes sitting in conversation with a man they called McNulty, and old acquaintance of Thorn's named Banks, lying in a bed.

Thorn promptly admonished the prostitutes that they were in the wrong place, and, abandoned as they were, they quietly and respectfully left the house. Banks entreated that he should be allowed to remain in bed, undisturbed; and, as the women had departed, his request was granted —both landlord and bar-keeper assuring him that he should not be molested. McNulty appeared to be deeply agitated, and walked to and fro across the floor, with a quick pace, as he conversed with Banks. Mr. Owen and Mr. Thorn then retired to the bar-room. But a short time had elapsed when McNulty and Banks sent down for Owen to go to their room. He obeyed the call, and in a moment or two the report of a pistol summoned Thorn to the scene of action.

At the threshhold of the door, it seems, the parties attacked the landlord, who fired a pistol in defence; one duck shot was lodged under Bank's eye—another in his chin, and three in his breast. Banks, however, still retained his grasp on Owens' throat, which he held until Owens fainted. McNulty retreated, and escaped the moment the pistol was fired. Thorn held Banks in custody for a short period, until the result of the choking should be ascertained, when he was permitted to depart, Thorn tendering him every assistance in the way of procuring a physician, &c. I understand that Banks is not mortally wounded; but, at any rate, both he and his companion have received a lesson not easily to be forgotten. Thus it is that the fair fame of Washington, and its society, is injured by the outrages of men whose breath is only equalled by the "pestilence that walketh in darkness."

From the Nat. Intelligencer, Jan. 20.

SEVENTH WEEK OF THE SESSION.

More than half of the present session of Congress has already passed away without a single act of any consequence having been consumated.

By far the most important business that has yet been transacted at this session, is that which belongs to the Senate in its executive character; and it may be added, by the way, that the subject which has occupied one half the whole time of sitting of the other branch of Congress is business (the "annexation" question) which properly belongs to the Senate, and upon which the House of Representatives cannot act without usurping authority that, so far as either House of Congress is concerned, belongs to the Senate only.

The most important action by the Senate during the last week was upon the Treaty with China, which had the rare honor of being ratified without a dissenting vote. Had it been in our power we should have spread before our readers to-day the documents connected with the negotiation of that treaty, some of which are, we understand, of much interest. It has not yet been determined, however, by the committee which has the subject in charge, what portion of them shall be made public and what portion reserved. It is rather to be apprehended that the documents may, without discrimination, as has happened in one or two cases heretofore, find their way to the public through the press without the consent or permission of the Senate. But we should hope that, in this case, the press, seconding the views of the Government, will refrain from publishing any thing of which the proper authorities do not think it advisable to authorize the publication.

The most interesting legislative transaction of the Senate during the last week was the report back from the committee, with amendments, of the bill to carry into effect the Smithsonian bequest.

It must be a satisfaction to all of our readers to learn that a bill for realizing the noble gift to knowledge in this country which Mr. SMITHSON made, is at length before Congress.

In both Houses, we need scarcely say, the Texas question has occupied its full share of attention during the last week, as during the two or three preceding ones. Its discussion has been pursued in the House with a good deal more of pertinacity than of novelty or force on the part of its supporters. A Tennessee plan, less rash in its provisions than the others, has been brought into the Senate by Mr. Foster, and into the House by Mr. Milton Brown. Further schemes have also been introduced by Mr. Haywood in the Senate, and Mr. Barke in the House.

Thus far as to any thing like right or policy, the question has gone but lamely on a single leg: another, however, seems not unlikely to be found in the introduction of some like measure for annexing CANADA; for which, as we have already apprized our readers, popular petitions may be expected to come in.

Should they do so, and a joint resolution to "annex" follow, we see not by what arguments the favorers of the Southern Annexation should oppose the Northern They will themselves have supplied a system of reasoning and of public morals which, however others may have conflated, they cannot answer.

Like the other, it will be a "re-annexation; for Canada and the present United States were once parts of the same empire. The acquisition of Canada will be a much more positive enlargement of the "area of freedom" than that of Texas; for Texas already enjoys a Republican Government and Canada does not.

Mr. GOGGIN, member of Congress from Virginia, has addressed his constituents, through the National Intelligencer, declining a re-election. In the course of his address he speaks of annexation. After some allusions to the constitutional question involved in that measure, he proceeds to consider it in view of its probable effects upon Virginia.

"We have, too, in Virginia alone, more land than is sufficient to maintain thirty millions of inhabitants. We are possessed also, (besides the lands of all the other twenty-five States,) of a rich and boundless domain in the West, that must remain unpeopled, great portions of it for ages to come. Why, then, it may be asked, shall we covet that which is our neighbour's?—Why need we acquire more, (and that, too, by paying many millions of dollars for it,) when we have already an abundance, and to spare, even to the foreigner, at one dollar and a quarter per acre? Why, in grasping more, should we diminish the value of that which we already possess? for this must be the effect. Bring into market with our own the lands of this foreign country; tempt the Virginia slave-owner with the prospect of immence profits in the Texas cotton fields and his Virginia lands will soon be offered for sale; he will be induced to sell at a low price, because he can buy more where his slave labor will as he supposes, be better remunerated. But the man with a small farm and limited means, who has to perform all his labor himself, wishes to remove to the West or Northwest, to some free State, and he, too, offers his land for sale, but he finds his more opulent neighbour competing with him, finally underselling him, and thus reducing the value of his farm, until it is made almost worthless. The man of wealth will not buy out the small farmer because he is going to Texas, and the small farmer does not purchase the land of his opulent neighbor because he has not the means to do so, and has already, perhaps, determined to go in another direction. The lands of each and every class of our citizens will thus be lessened in value, whether they wish to remove and to sell or to remain in the Old Dominion. That it would, in all probability, add a few dollars to the value of each slave in Virginia for a time, I think may be conceded; yet this advantage is small in comparison with the evils to which I have but adverted.

OREGON.—In a casual conversation which took place in the Senate on Wednesday on the subject of Mr. Allen's call upon the Executive for information of the progress of the negotiation concerning the Oregon Territory, Mr. Archer (Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations) took occasion to intimate that the Negotiation on that subject between the Secretary of State and the British Envoy was drawing to a close, and that the results on the negotiation might be expected to be laid before the Senate in a few days, so as to give time before the expiration of the present Session, for Congress to take any action which it may deem expedient in relation to the controversy that has been depending.—Nat. Int.

From the New York Express.

An Extraordinary Document— The Foreign Poor in our Alms Houses, and the Foreign Criminals in our Penitentiaries.—A highly interesting document from a Committee in the Board of Alderman, upon the subject of bonding alien passengers in New York, has been published. From the document, it appears, that the bonds of nine farms in this city exhibit the enormous liabilities of $16,000,000, that of the 602 children supported by the city, at the Farms School, 457 are the children (many of them illegitimate,) of foreign parents,—that of the latest born infants at nurse, at the city's expense, 33 are foreign and only two American,—and "that the whole number of children 626 have foreign parentage, and 195 American, exhibiting the avesage of more than three foreigners to one native, and an alarming increase of the ratio of foreigners in the more recent births."

The whole number of inmates in our Penitentiary is 1419, shewing an increase of 450 since July last—of these 333 are Americans, and 1198 foreigners. The number of prisoners and paupers to support, we all pay taxes, is 4544, shewing an increase since July last of nearly 1000.

In view of these alarming facts, and remembering that over 60,000 emigrants were computed and bonded here the last year, the Committee make some forcible appeals to the country, which cannot be without their effect. The enormous taxation to which we are subject in order to support foreign paupers and criminals is a great and growing evil, which presses heavily upon industry, as well as upon character, morals and politics of the country.

Young Combs Murdered.—We learn from the N. O. Bee, that a man named George O'Blemis was arrested on the 31st ult., in the neighborhood of his plantation in the parish of Point Coupee, charged with the murder of Francis Combs. The victim was a son of Gen. Leslie Combs, of Lexington, Ky., and it will be recollected, was the first to narrate to the public the horrors of the ill-fated Santa Fe Expedition, of which he was a member. The cause which led to the death of young Combs, was a misunderstanding which existed between him and O'Blemis, who owns a plantation in the same parish.

On the day of the murder, O'Blemis met Combs returning to his plantation on horseback, when he was accosted by O'Blemis, and told to prepare himself. Combs immediately dismounted, but before he could draw his pistol, he was shot by O'Blemis with a double barrel gun, the charge from both barrels passing through his head.

Messrs. Kendall and Lawrence, of Windsor, Vt., have obtained a contract from the General Government, for manufacturing rifles to the amount of some $120,000.

FOR SALE.

A Farm on the Salt Water.

I offer for sale 240 acres of land, beautifully situated on the waters of Third Haven, and about six miles from the town of Easton in Talbot county. This land was originally very fertile, and is now capable of producing very fair crops of small grain, and is powerfully acted upon by Plaster of Paris. There are on the premises Calcarious and other manures abundntly sufficient, to restore it to a high state of fertility in a short time. It is susceptible of division into two farms one of 125 acres, and the other of 115—and there are beautiful situations for BUILDING, on each part. It will be sold to suit purchasers, either as a whole or in two farms It rarely happens, that a situation can be obtained combining the advantages of health and beauty in so eminent a degree. The buildings on the premises are suited to the accommodation of an overseer.—The undersigned will show the premises to any one desirous of purchasing: letters directed to Easton Md., will receive prompt attention. This land lies between my residence and that of Thos S Hayward, Esq., & opposite to the residence of Wm. E. Bartlett, Esq.
