I will, also, that Ella Delany receive all my body clothes, my Cania plaid shawl, and any other articles she may fancy, not otherwise disposed of.

Ann McKim Handy.

Witness:- Benjamin Franklin.

Baltimore City, Ss:

On the 4th day of January, 1884, came Benjamin Franklin, the subscribing witnesses to the aforegoing codicil to the last will and testament of Ann McKim Handy, late of said city, deceased, and made oath on the Holy Evangely of Almighty God, that he did see the said testatrix sign and seal this codicil; that he heard her publish, pronounce and declare the same to be a codicil to her last will and testament; that at the time of her so doing she was, to the best of his apprehension of sound and disposing mind, memory and understanding; and that he subscribed his name as witnesses to this codicil, in her presence, at her request, and in the presence of each others.

Sworn to in open Court.

Test:- Robert T. Banks,
Register of Wills for Baltimore city.

I wish Mrs. John McKim to distribute my personal effects, as follows, to my several relatives, and the relatives of my dear husband:

The portraits of my father and my mother, to be given by the mutual desire of my husband and myself to Margaret Hayes and Francis B. Hayes, a sacred trust (in their discretion to the child of their family who can best value and preserve them) I prefer them to be confided to Mrs. Wilson.

The portraits of my husband and myself, to be given to my niece and nephew, Lizzie and Henry Hagelhurst in testimony of gratitude for their kindness to my brother, Richard McKim.

The miniature likeness of my father and mother, to be given to Margie T. McKim; the miniature of my sister, Emily E. McKim, to be given to Mary R. McKim; this was a gift from my brother, John S. McKim.

My father's watch, which he enjoined me to leave to the one who would most value it, I gave to my very dear niece, Helen Duncan, but her Heavenly Father has claimed, I therefore give this watch to John McKim, believing that he will keep it as a precious relic.

The watch chain and emerald pin of my ever present and lamented husband, I give to his favorite nephew, Judge Lewin Irving.

My watch, gift of my husband, also the chain, to be given to his dear niece, Sally Upshur Handy; my valuable gold cable chain also to be given to Sally Upshur Handy; I hope she will wear it for my sake.

My green cashmere shawl, husband's gift, to be given to the wife of William Handy, and daughter of Rev. Robert Busheridge, friend of my husband.

A white cashmere shawl, chosen for me by Mrs. Minton, of New York, I give to Emily McKim Minton.

Fine white cashmere shawl, gift of my sister, Emily, I give to Margie Marriott.

Set of pearl, carefully preserved, I give to my husband's favorite niece, to Jennie Wilson Welsh; California pearl ring, long promised to Margaret Hayes; California gold pencil and pen, to Telfair Marriott.

Real point lace [*] shawl to be given to Meta Wilson;
