at the barn near the residence of the late Amelia B. Holliday crosses the Cold Spring Branch, and then by and with said branch to a point where said branch intersects a line where a certain fence stood on the 25th of October, 1884, said fence thence running from a gate on the road leading to the said Amelia B. Holliday's residence to a certain gate on the road leading into the house now owned and occupied by the plaintiffs; the said fence then being the line of demarcation between the wood land and the arable land of the said Amelia B. Holliday; thence from said last mentioned gate by and with a line of fence that now runs from said gate to the point of beginning; and which tract of land the said defendants have retained and still retain possession of; whereby the plaintiffs have been greatly damaged.

2nd. And for that the defendants wrongfully entered upon and ejected the plaintiffs from all their undivided half interest in that lot of land, whereof the plaintiffs were in possession and belonging to the plaintiffs, situated in said Nottingham District, that is to say, all that portion of the wood land of the said Amelia B. Holliday, lying between the following lines:

Beginning at the point where formerly stood an old gate on the road leading into the present residence of the defendants; thence with the line of fence as it stood Oct. 25th, 1884, to the gate on the road leading into the plaintiffs residence; thence with the line of fence on or near the road leading from plaintiffs house to the public road to the point where the gate now stands at the intersection of the road leading to defendants house, and thence with said road to the beginning; which tract of land the said defendants have retained and still retain possession of, whereby the plaintiffs have been greatly damaged.

And the plaintiffs claim the recovery of said lands above described, and $5,000.00 damages for their detention.

Magruder and Wilson.
Pltffs. Attys.

To the amended declaration in this case, the defendants, on the 10th day of April, 1890, filed the following pleas, to wit:

"The defendants, by way of plea to the declaration filed against them, say—

1st. That as to so much of the land mentioned in said declaration as is embraced within the following limits, to wit, by and with the fence line as it now runs from the woods gate leading from Mrs. Wilkinson's side of the farm back towards Dr. Wilkinson's house, until it reaches the point from which said fence, now along the said road was removed, then with the old line to where it joined. The fence running up to the aforesaid woods gate, constituting a triangular piece of land, containing one-half acre, more or less, the defendants disclaim all title thereto, and through their atty. so informed the atty. for the plaintiffs.

2nd. That as to the wood land in said declaration mentioned, left by the will of Mrs. Amelia B. Holliday to be equally divided between the plaintiff, Mrs. Bettie Wilkinson, and the defendant, Mrs. Susan B. Wallis, these defendants deny that they have ejected the plaintiffs from their joint possession of the same; but aver that said tract of wood land and the fences on the same remain just as they were at the time of Mrs. Holliday's death, and are awaiting the action of the Court of Equity to divide the same between
