EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, MD.

Saturday Morning, Feb. 14

Godey's Lady's Book.—The February No. has been received. The engravings are The Battle Ground of Trenton, by Humphreys—The Fair Client, by Dick—and also a beautifully executed Plate of the fashions for the month. There is in it the usual variety of interesting matter.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE.—The correspondent of the New York Herald writes from Washington—"Lord Aberdeen, through Mr. McLane, has informed this Government that the passage of the Notice dissolving joint occupancy of the Oregon territory, will be highly acceptable to him; and furthermore, that England will not, and cannot take any offence at an act which it is the right of the United States to do at any time, in accordance with the provision of the treaty, relating to the same.

In the remarkable letter of Mr. Paine—"the great shot at"—it is stated that whilst Almonte (the Mexican minister) was in this country, he was "the medium through whom arrangements were made to Santa Anna, at Havana, and Paredes and others in Mexico."

The National Intelligencer remarks that "Almonte arrived at Vera Cruz on the 21st April: Santa Anna did not arrive at Havana until the 7th June. This slight anachronism, however, in a story so otherwise remarkable, can hardly be accounted of much consequence."

THE OREGON RESOLUTIONS.

The final vote in the House of Representatives, on Monday evening, on the passage of these Resolutions, was as follows:

2. And be it further resolved, That nothing herein contained is intended to interfere with the right and discretion of the proper authorities of the two contracting parties to renew or pursue negotiations for an amicable settlement of the controversy respecting the Oregon territory.

The National Intelligencer, referring to the terms of the second resolution, says—

The QUALIFICATION, it is obvious, expresses the true sense of the House on this subject.

THE DELEGATES OF MARYLAND.

In the House of Delegates of Maryland there are 82 members, viz: Farmers, 50; lawyers, 17; doctors, 4: blacksmiths, 1; stonecutters, 1; silversmiths 1; teachers, 1; hatters, 1; tailors, 1; merchants, 4; fishermen; 1; total 82.

We find the following humorous hit at present state of affairs between this country and Mexico in a late number of the Charleston Patriot:

A CARD.—Mexico begs the United States to excuse her. She has so much to do with her family at home that she cannot attend to her foreign Relations.

Bishop Soule, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has returned from Texas. He preached in New Orleans on the 25th. ultimo.

United States Whale Fishery.—From the full and correct annual statement of the condition of the whale fishery in the United States, published in the last number of the "Whalemen's Shipping List," we learn that the whole number of vessels now employed in the whale fishery from all the ports in the United States, includes 680 ships and barques, 34 brigs, 22 schooners and 1 sloop; making an aggregate of 233,282 tons; showing an increase of 15,607 tons during the past year, & an increase of 33,115 tons since January 1,1844. The imports from this branch of commerce during the past year have been 157,715 bls. of sperm oil; 272,730 bbls. of whale oil; and 3,167,142 lbs of whalebone.

Mrs. Niles, a French lady, wife of Dr Niles of Massachusetts, and mother in-law to the celebrated French author, Eugene Sue, is at present in Washington. She has two daughters—twins, young and pleasing girls, of most amiable characters and resembling each other in appearance most remarkably. These girls are the originals from which Sue drew his celebrated characters Rose and Blanche, in the Wandering Jew. This circumstance renders these little girls, scarcely twelve years old, objects of great admiration.—Correspondent of Dedham (Mass.) Dem.

A LEARNED SHOEMAKER.

The Rochester American gives the following account of the acquirements of a journeyman shoemaker in Leroy, Genesee county, New York. It contains a valuable lesson to mechanics, and illustrates the power of the human mind in overcoming temptation. This journeyman shoemaker may some day figure in the halls of Congress, or occupy the chair of the National Institute:

Mr. AMES is a journeyman shoemaker. About five years since, then twenty-four years old, he conceived the idea of making himself acquainted with common arithmetic; the extent of his knowledge at that time was very limited. He had a little knowledge of geography, and could read and write very well but his knowledge of figures did not extend much beyond the fundamental rules of arithmetic. He succeeded so well with arithmetic that he determined to pursue the higher branches of mathematics, accordingly he took Bourdon's algebra; after making himself thoroughly acquainted with this work, he studied geometry, trigonometry, and Farrar's mechanics. Of these he has a good knowledge.

"Mr. Ames then turned his attention to the study of English grammar; and after becoming familiar with its principles, he commenced the Latin grammar. As he had not time to study until after his day's work was done at night, he was accustomed to write down the conjugation of the verbs, and such passages in the grammar as it was necessary to have perfectly committed, and place them where he could occasionally get a glance at them during the day. Every day, when going to his meals he was learning the conjugation of some latin verb. His progress in translating was at first extremely slow. Not having the benefit of a teacher, it took a long time for him to become satisfied that he had rendered a sentence correctly. But he persevered until he read six books of Virgil, Sallust, three books of Tacitus, and a portion of the odes of Horace. He then commenced Greek, and can read and translate it with considerable facility. He has also learned the French language. He has read Telemachus, Guizot's History of Civilization, and several other French works.—The language he reads with great fluency.

"During the five years Mr. Ames has been pursuing these studies, he has found time to make himself familiar with the historical works of Josephus, Rollin, Gibbon and Bancroft. He has just commenced studying the German language, with a full determination to persevere. Though he has pursued his studies without a teacher he pronounces the different languages he has learned with a good degree of accuracy."

ANECDOTE OF DANIEL WEBSTER.—The Transcript copies from the London Sun a pleasant sketch of Daniel Webster, which concludes with the following amusing anecdote of this remarkable man:

"The distinguished man, just before Lafayette's last visit to America, formed one in a fishing party in Massachusetts Bay—He had been selected to deliver the welcoming speech to the Frenchman on his approaching visit, and during his occupation of hauling up codfish and tautog, he was observed to be very abstracted. It appeared afterwards that he must have been studying that part of his speech in which he afterwards addressed Lafayette, for a gentleman who was fishing next him observed him pulling in his line hand over hand, with some difficulty, as if a large fish was hooked, yet without exhibiting any satisfaction on his face at having captured a prize. At length the fish was seen approaching the surface and gleaming through the green waters, like a lively bladder of quick-silver; still Webster's face gave no smiling welcome; but just as the fish came to the surface he burst out with 'Venerable man! the representative of the two hemispheres, welcome to our shores,' and down flopped the 'monster cod' on the deck!"

The Wife.—It needs no guilt to break a husband's heart. The absence of content, the muttering of spleen, the untidy dress and careless home, the forbidding scowl and deserted hearth: these and other nameless neglects—without a crime among them—have harrowed to the quick the heart's core of many a man, and planted there, beyond the reach of cure, the germ of despair. O! may woman, before that sad sight arrives, dwell on the recollections of her youth, and, cherishing the idea of that toneful time, awake and keep alive the promise she so kindly gave. And though she may be the injured, not the injuring—the forgotten, not the forgetful wife—a happy allusion to that hour of love—a kindly welcome to a comfortable home—a kiss of peace to pardon all the past—and the hardest heart that ever locked itself within the breast of selfish man will soften to the charmer, and bid her live, as she has hoped—her years in matchless bliss—loving and contented—the soother of a sorrowing hour—the source of comfort and the spring of joy.

The Snow Storm of 1717.—The storm of 1717 shut people up as snugly at home as if they had been locked in. Those who were blockaded had to use furniture and the like, for fuel; in some places the snow was thirty feet deep. People made their exit frequently from the second story windows, and the trees cut down for fuel, left long stumps behind.

"What are you writing such a thundering big hand for, Pat?" "Why you see my grandmother's dafe, and I'm writtin' a loud letter to her."

"What paper do you take?" asked one loafer of another.

"Egad," replied the other, "I take every one I can lay my hands upon."

The world produces too many such newspaper takers.

"Out of darkness cometh forth light," as the printer's devil said when he looked into the ink-keg,

Married.

At Hambrooks, on the 3rd inst., by the Rev. Dr. Mason, Mr. DANIEL LLOYD, of Talbot County, to Miss KATE, eldest daughter of John C. Henry, Esq., of Dorchester County.

DIED?

In Dorchester county on Monday evening, the 2nd inst., Capt. EDWARD TRIPPE, at the advanced age of 75 years.

Near Easton on Saturday last, Col. William Price.

At the residence of Noah Hoxter on the 12th inst., after a short illness Woolman Porter, aged 19 years, 11 months, 2 days. He recently professed Religion and joined the Methodist Church and was perfectly resigned to meet death.

In Easton on Thursday 12th February, Ravenscroft Abercrombie Mason, aged 5 years and 7 months, youngest child of the Rev. Dr H. M. Mason, Rector of St. Peter's Parish.

Interesting above most children even at his interesting age, this lovely boy gave promise of a degree of talent and decision of character which would doubtless have rendered him a distinguished man.

His ready and not seldom pertinent and witty replies and observations made him a welcome visiter among the numerous and devoted friends of the family; while to his parents his engaging prattle and his playful tricks made his presence a perpetual treat. Bereaved of one of their dearest pledges, they will now resort to that ever-flowing fountain of consolation which they so well know how to apply to themselves and to administer to others.

"Faith touching all things with hues of Heaven," beholds the departed one among that happy band of the loved & lost to earth, with whom ere long the lingerers here will be inseparably united.

"Is it well with the child?
It is well.'

Died at Wye Landing, the residence of her husband, on Thursday 5th inst., Mrs. Caroline E. W. companion of Charles W. Benny.

A young and blooming bride, amiable in disposition and affectionate in all her relations, she was universally beloved and her death has filled many a fond heart with incurable sorrow. As the ornament and pride of her family, a Mother's tender tears are moistening her tomb. And we cannot but sympathize earnestly with the bereaved partner of her bosom. The heart in which he had so lately centred his choicest treasure of happiness and love and with which he was inwoven by the strongest ties of our nature—is thus soon laid lifeless in the grave and all his bright visions of hope and happiness dispelled forever!—There is but one sure consolation to the mourners under such affliction—and that is whispered in a voice from Heaven. May it fall in tones of soothing sweetness on their ears.

I saw two happy lambs one summer day
In sportive gambols frisking o'er the lawn
The Vulture from his eyrie watched their play
And, stooping, bore away the gentler one.

Two summer clouds, beneath the morning Sun
Were floating zephyr-winged across the heaven
And now were blending sweetly into one
When by the sudden whirlwind they were riven.

The fairer cloud was torn from out the sky
And headlong buried in the thirsty plain
The other, lonely, sought no more to fly
But fell in tears to join its mate again.

Two mountain streamlets winding through the heather
With am'rous whispers sparkled in the beam
And now had joined their limped waves together
To flow more sweetly in one crystal stream.
But lo! the avalanche came down the mountain
And on the purer steamlet, icy, fell
It sank—but bursting from a far-off fountain
Stole down the vale in summer sea to dwell,
The other slowly wound along the dell
With weary wave—and silent, measured motion
Nor joyed till whisp'ring breezes came to tell
That happy Streamlets met again in Ocean.

PERUVIAN GUANO.

To the Editors of the Balt. American.

GENTLEMEN—I have seen in your paper of 10th inst., an advertisement signed F & W Redewald, offering for sale part of a cargo of GUANO imported into New York in the Caroline Amelia "as Peruvian from the Chinca Islands and warranted equal to any ever brought to this country."

The Caroline Amelia was loaded under a Chilian license nearly a thousand miles from the Chinca Islands, and the quality of her cargo is very inferior to that obtained on the coast of Peru. The only Paruvian Guano imported into the United States, is shipped by the Guano Company of Lima, under the authority of the Government of Peru and will come to my consignment at New York, or to Mr. Sam'l K. George, of Baltimore. None but such as thus imported is Peruvian—Farmers must be cautious in purchasing, to ascertain the origin of what they buy; otherwise they may lose not only their money, but their crops; for much that has been gathered on the cost of Chili has been found to be entirely worthless.

Respectfully, your ob't. servant,
