POETRY.

"DAYS OF ABSENCE."

Aye, "Days of Absence," I can sing,
And feel the sadness of the theme;
For lonely are the hours they bring,
And oh! how very long they seem.

I sit in my secluded room,
And muse amid its silence drear;
Ask what doth cloud my brow with gloom?
They are not here—they are not here.

I move amid the festive throng,
Of joyous men and smiling fair;
Ask if I join the laugh and song?
They are not there—they are not there.

What tho' I pause, her voice to hear.
And children at their gleesome play—
It comes not to my anxious ear—
They're far away—they're far away.

By day within my voiceless halls,
But echo answers to my tread;
When night the scene with darkness palls,
What visions throng around my bed!

I dream I see each absent form;
But ere I clasp them to my breast,
All glowing with affection warm,
The vision fades—I wake unblest.

I sleep again, and see arrayed,
The funeral train, the bier and pall.
There stands the sexton with his spade,
And clods upon the coffin fall!

I feel my stricken bosom heave,
With grief's wild, agonizing pain;—
I wake—the dream almost believe—
Then sleep—and dream it o'er again!

To toil by day, with gloom oppressed,
Uncheered by love's soul soothing tone,
And e'en in sleep, to find no rest—
Oh! this it is to be alone.

WOUNDING WORDS.

The wound may be sharp as the pointed steel,
And long may the sufferer lay,
Moaning in grief ere the smart shall heal,
And the fever pass away;
But in time he may rise in joyous glee
From the restless couch of pain,
And walk with a spirit light and free
Through the bright, glad world again.

But ah! there are wounds of far keener smart
Than those of the lance or sword,
When the inmost depth of the gentle heart
Is pierced with a wounding word;
The sufferer seeks not the shaded room,
Nor seems from the world estranged—
But he walks through the world with a glance of gloom,
And a spirit sad and changed.

Oh! oft are the pangs of an outward wound
Allayed by assiduous care,
The patient lists to the murmured sound
Of the loved one's fervent prayer;
And he greets the gaze of anxious eyes,
And he thanks the Power that sends,
In his need, the soothing sympathies
Of tender and watchful friends.

But he who is stabbed by a wounding word
To no ear his hurt reveals:
Silent he bears it, by shame deterred
From telling the pain he feels;
But life's fair prospects it seems to blight,
And the voice of hope to quell:
And it comes on his spirit by day and night,
Like a mocking, maddening knell.

Alas it is sad in a Christian land
Such evil things should be;
And the open warfare of the hand
Methinks, I would rather see,
Than witness the scenes of moral wrong,
Where the strong oppress the weak,
And the stealthy warfare of the tongue,
Is waged on the good and meek.

Yet none will the probing-poisoned dart
At my poor behest resign,
For the power to change the cruel heart
Is in higher hands than mine:
But the taunts men utter, with harsh intent,
By a God of Peace are heard;
Oh! may He bid offenders in time repent
Of the sin of a wounding word!

THE YOUNG AND THE OLD.

It is disgusting to witness the extent to which self-indulgence has reached among the young men of the present day; it seems, indeed, that their own ease and gratification are the sole aim of their lives; even in the most trivial matters the foible creeps out. Enter a modern drawing-room, and instead of the profound respect formerly paid to the aged, you will now see the merest boys indolently lounging on the most luxurious couches, or reclining on the easiest arm chairs before the fire, while their elders and superiors are obliged to content themselves with any chance seat which the impudent puppies may have rejected. The era of galantry is also gone by, for even the presence of the fair sex is no longer a check to this species of selfish impertinence. Often have I blushed to see a delicate young girl in a ball-room, weary with dancing, remain standing nearly a whole evening, while some dandy, too fine, too lazy, or too stupid to join in the waltz or quadrille, has never (excepting, perhaps, at supper-time) stirred from the bench on which he has been stretched, half asleep, half awake, all the night through.

Wash for Fruit Trees.—Ley that will bear an egg will kill all the vermin and the moss that gathers on young trees. Apply it in May or June, when the vermin are to be seen. It will do more service than in cold weather.

One pound of potash; dissolved in one gallon of water, will form a ley that will be strong enough for the vermin, and not injurious to the bark.—[Ploughman.

WISTER'S BALSAM OF

WILD CHERRY,

THE great remedy for Consumption, & the best medecine known to Man for Asthma of every stage, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Influenza, Coughs, Colds, Bleeding of the Lungs, Shortness of Breath, pains and weakness in the side, breast, &c and all other diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

A very important disease over which this "Balsam" exerts a very powerful influence, is that of a Diseased Liver In this complaint it has undoubtedly proved more efficacious than any remedy hitherto employed, and in numerous instances when patients had endured long and severe suffering from the disease, without receiving the least benefit from various remedies, and when Mercury has been resorted to in vain, the use of this Balsam has restored the Liver to a healthy action, and in many instances effected Permanent Cures after every known remedy had failed to produce this desired effect.

Besides its astonishing efficacy in the diseases above mentioned, we also find it a very effectual remedy in Asthma, a complaint in which it has been extensively used with decided success, even in cases of years standing.

It not only emanates from a regular Physician, but has also been well tested in all the complaints for which it is recommended. It is not my intention, therefore, either to cloak it in mistery, or in any way deceive the public by overrating its virtues, on the contrary, I shall simply endeavour to give a brief statement of its usefulness, and flatter myself that its surprising efficacy will enable me to furnish such proofs of its virtues as will satisfy the most incredulous that Consumption may and "Can be Cured," if this medicine be resorted to in time.

Opinions of a regular Physician.

Exeter, Me. Sept, 30, 1845.

This certifies that I have recommended the use of Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for diseases of the Lungs, for two years past and many bottles to my knowledge have been used by my patients, all with beneficial results. In two cases where it was thought confirmed consumption had taken place, the Wild Cherry effected a cure. E BOYEN, Physician. at Exeter Corner.

NO QUACKERY! NO DECEPTION!

All published statements of cures performed by this medicine, are, in every respect, TRUE.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS & IMITATIONS.

The unparalleled and astonishing efficacy of Dr. Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry in all the diseases for which it is recommended, curing many cases after the skill of the best physicians was unavailing, has effected a large & increasing demand for it. This fact has caused several unprincipled counterfeiters and imitators to palm off spurious mixtures of similar name and appearance, for the genuine Balsam

Be careful and get the genuine DR. WISTER'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. None genuine unless signed by I Butts. Address all orders to Seth W. Fowle, Boston Mass.
