POETRY.

For the Easton Gazette.

TO ——

I see thee yet—I see thee yet—
The girlish face with sadness wet,
The azure eye, the matchless brow,
All freshen in my memory now;
I see thy form beside me stand,
I feel the pressure of thy hand—
I hear thy sighs—thy throbbing heart—
Thy trembling words, the last—we part!"

I know that in this world of pain
These eyes shall greet thee not again,
That I shall trace those features o'er
And read their language never more;
That other scenes will bless thy gaze,
Than those we loved in other days,
That other tones than mine shall dwell
Within thy heart, remembered well.

I ask not that in future years
The thought of me should wake thy tears,
That on thy young heart's sunny sky
One cloud of mine might ever lie;
Enough if e'er mid light and song
When gaily float thy hours along,
Some mention of my name let fall
Should other long lost joys recall.

For me as earthly objects fade,
And deeper grows time's gathering shade,
The memory of thy worth shall twine
A wreath of roses 'round decline;
The fire that now burns warm and light
Shall blaze with purer wilder light,
And mid the last hour's shadowy gloom
Illume my pathway to the tomb!

HAROLD.

A MEDITATION.

FROM BLACKWOOD.

Some hidden disappointment clings
To all of man—to all his schemes,
A life has little fair it brings,
Save idle dreams.

The peace that may be ours to day,
Scarce heed we, looking for the morrow;
The slighted moments steal away,
And then comes sorrow.

The light of promise that may glow
Where life shines fair in bud or bloom,
Ere fruit hath ripen'd forth to show,
Is quenched in gloom.

The rapture softest blush imparts,
Dies with the bloom that fades away,
And glory from the wave departs
At close of day.

Where we have garnered up our hearts,
And fixed our earnest love and trust,
The very life-blood thence departs,
And all is dust.

Then, nature, let us turn to thee;
For in thy countless changes thou
Still bearest immortality
Upon thy brow.

Thy seasons, in their endless round
Of sunshine, tempest, calm, or blight,
Yet leave thee, like an empress crown'd,
With jewels bright.

The very storms are life to thee;
'Tis but a sleep thy seeming death;
We see thee wake in flower and tree
At spring's short breath.

We view the ruin of our youth,
Decay's wan trace on all we cherish,
But thou, in thy unfailing truth,
Can'st never perish.

ALICE GRAY.

She isn't what I painted her—
A thing all hearts to win—
I saw no beauty when I found
She hadn t got the "tin,"
I loved her upwards of a week—
But I found it wouldn't pay;
So I "took my hat and went ashore"
And cut Miss Alice Gray.

Her dark brown hair was all a sham—
Her forehead "Jones's white,"
One eye an artificial one,
The other far from bright.
Oh, she may twine her purchased curls—
She musn't look this way—
My heart is far from breaking
For the love of Alice Gray.

I've sunk a very pretty sum
In rides and sweetmeats past;
And havn't now the first red cent—
She drained me of the last;
How green, I was, in earnest grave,
I certainly must say!
I shall be cut by all the "B'hoys"
For courting Alice Gray.

'Tis a little thing
To give a cup of water, yet its draught
Of cool refreshment, drained by fever lips,
May give a shock of pleasure to the frame
Renew the life of joy in happiest hours.
It is a little thing to speak a phrase
Of common comfort, which, by daily use,
Has almost lost its sense—yet on the ear
Of him who thought to die unmourned, twill fall
Like choicest music.

A TYPO IN LUCK!—A REAL WINDFALL! Wm. Applegate, printer, of 17 Ann street has a handsome sum left him by a gentlemen lately deceased in Europe, amounting to about $60,000—a part of which is in valuable lands.

It seldom happens that such good fortune falls to the lot of one so deserving.—All who are acquainted with Mr. Applegate's enteprize and untiring industry, with his intelligence and integrity, will rejoice with us at this unlooked for good luck.—N. Y. Sun.

A man who was in the habit of talking to himself being asked the reason why he did so, replied—'Because I like to converse with a man of sense!'

TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A few days ago, an individual celebrated for his fine qualities of heart, which he honestly inherits from a father, of whose acts of kindness and mercy many anecdotes are publicly recorded since his decease, had his attention directed to three children, sitting upon a step and crying bitterly.—They were a brother and two sisters, the eldest of whom, a boy, was ten years; and upon interrogating them, they told him they had just arrived from Ireland at New York, and from there had been sent to this city to an uncle, whom they had never seen, and knew not where to find. Upon this the little fellow pulled from his pocet a dirty scrap of paper, from which the gentleman, after some difficulty, contrived to make out the name of "—— ——, North street" Having some data to base his operations upon, their new found friend immediately had his horse and dearborn ready, and taking the three children, whom, without any great stretch of fancy we can suppose were none of the nicest, in with him, he drove to North street, and after diligent search for "—— ——," found him not to be found. Nowise disheartened, he took them to his store, and upon searching the Directory, he found the name of —— ——, No.— South street, where he immediately drove, and, sure enough, found the name over the door of a refreshment saloon, or something perhaps of not quite so fashionable a nomenclature, where were sold drinks of all kinds, from gentle to severe, and around the door of which were a group of newly arrived Irish women, all of whom were giving vent to their volubility in the richest tone of their own warm-hearted isle. "Sure," said one, "and I can't say for the sowl of me where they are, but it's meself saw the creathurs aboard the ship sound and well, and did not I see them go ashore? and afther that I see them no more at all, and it's meself's afeer'd the purty creathurs is wondering in the streets of New York, all alone by themselves," &c. Stepping from his dearborn, our friend accosted one of the women, who had no cap on her head, and appeared more at home than the others, and enquired if her name was ——. "Sure and it is." "And is thy husband's name —— ——?" "Sure and it is said she. "Then," said he, "come to my dearborn, and I will shew thee something will interest thee." Upon glancing at its contents, our friend describes the scene as rich beyond description. "Sure but it's himself's the broth of a boy and the image of my Peter's brother that's dead and gone. Och but it's Peter will be glad to see the purty creathurs." Upon this up step'd a genuine specimen of an Irishman, no less a person than Peter himself, whose gratification at seeing the children was the occasion of the oddest mixture of the touching and ludicrous. "Och but he's the likeness of Patrick; and sure, children, don't be afther crying, it's meself's your uncle Peter, and will take the care of you all. Come, come in, my darlints, and don't be afther crying." At the same time, while assisting them from the dearborn with one hand, Peter was wiping the tears from his eyes with the other, while the entire bevy of woman were crying with tears of joy, in which the poor little orphans heartily participated. Our friend found the scene too overpowering for his sensitive nature, and was making for the dearborn, when Peter stop'd him, and it was only after refusing the most pressing invitation to take something to "thrink," "any thing in his shop," backed by the delicate hint from the wife, that "the gintleman will sure be after trying some mineral wather," that our friend succeeded in getting away, with, as he describes it, his heart and his eyes full to the brim. The above is a true incident. H.

"I WANT MY MOTHER."—Angelo La Hiver, the little White Mice Boy, died at the Massachussetts, General Hospital on the 25th inst. He was an Italian, only 15 years old, and "had travelled"—his box and white mice being as well known in London as in this city. Separated from home and kindred, his patience and gentleness won the regard of strangers. The sympathy of the officers and inmates of the Institution, showed itself in various attentions and acts of kindness. One of the trustees gave him a number of a recent English publication, which contained a representation of himself exhibiting his white mouse. He contemplated it with as much gratified ambition, as Napolcon would have felt on viewing an engraving of the Battle of Austerlitz. The day before he died a beautiful young white mouse was found in the garden of the Hospital, and brought to Angelo. He was delighted. The bitterness of death was, for the moment, forgotten. The night which followed was solemn and melancholy to all his fellow sufferers, as they listened to his touching ejaculations, "I cannot die, I am afraid to die! I want my mother!"

Preservation of the Tomato.—Mr. R. B. Morrel gives us the following:—"The tomato, which has come into universal use, and is deemed a luxury by almost every one, may be preserved for winter use in the following manner: When ripe, let them be prepared by stewing as for the table, and seasoned to the liking; put them in small jars (one quart) with covers.—Over the top put a piece of linen or cotton cloth, which will cover and press the cover on; then pour into the cavity melted mutton tallow, and keep them in a cool and dry place in the cellar, until required for use. They need only to be warmed to serve them for the table. I use small jars for the reason that when exposed to the air they soon ferment."

"Tom, where can I find the poor-house? I should like to see it." "My dear friend, continue in your present course a short time longer, and you will not need to ask the question."

"Of what fruit is cider made? "Don't know, sir." "What a stupid boy! What did you get when you robbed widow Coffin's orchard?" "I got a licking, sir!"

and Gazette of the Fashionable World.
—ALSO—
The London World of Fashion,
and Continental Feuilletons.

The price of which two Works in England is $12 a year.

☞ As republished by the subscriber they will cost only $1 a year.

Blackwood's Lady's Magazine,
And Gazette of the Fashionable World.—
for Town and Country.
Devoted to Belles-Letters, Music, Fine Arts, Fashions, &c.

The well-known celebrity in Europe and this Country, of Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine has induced the subscriber to commence the re publication of this fashionable London Monthly.

It is a matter of surprise that the Re-publication of this Work was not commenced some years since. On looking over some of the late numbers, we find them filled with Stories and Poetry, and Narratives, the most of which fall but little behind those published in the Edinburgh Work, and many surpass even the emanations from the Giant intellects of the contributors to the great Northern Magazine. The best writers of the day contribute to its pages.

It has now been published seventeen years in London, and has a circulation exceeding 70,000 copies through England, Scotland, Ireland, and the continent of Europe. It is translated into several of the continental languages —it being the only instance of an English Magazine receiving that compliment.

The publication will commence in October next, and will be continued monthly.

The publication price of the above wark, in London, is six dollars.

The London World of Fashion,
And Continental Feuilletons.

A Monthly Publication of the Courts of London and Paris.—Dedicated to High Life, Fashionables, Fashions, Polite Literature, Fine Arts, the Operas, Theatres, &c. Edited by several Literary & Fashionable Characters

In the above two works will be found, all the Gossip of London, Paris, and the principal Cities of the continent of Europe Royal Gossip—Description of the Queen's Drawing Room Parties, with accurate accounts of the dresses of the Ladies of Rank—Noblemen's Fetes—Description of every New Opera, with criticisms on the same—Performers, &c. Tales by the best English Authors, Poetry, New Music. Her Majesty's visit to Different Noblemen—Description of New Paintings, & the Artists—Varieties. &c.

The publication price of the above work, in London, is six dollars.

Those who are afflicted with worms will rejoice to learn that a sovereign remedy has been discovered for this pernicious affliction Hemsley's Worm Destroying Syrup, has recently been introduced into this city, & has already met with unexampled success Empyricism and quackery seems to fall before it, and its efficacy alone constitutes its chief recommendation. Such a remedy has long been needed in this city, and we are well assured that thousands of lives have already been saved by it We have been shown a certificate by a gentleman from New Town (a village in Fairfield County, Connecticut,) signed indiscriminately by a large number of the citizens heads of families, that have used the Syrup, and speak from their own experience of its intrinsic value.

WISTER'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY,

THE great remedy for Consumption, & the best medecine known to Man for Asthma of every stage, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Influenza, Coughs, Colds, Bleeding of the Lungs, Shortness of Breath, pains and weakness in the side, breast, &c and all other diseases of the PULMONARY ORGANS.

A very important disease over which this "Balsam" exerts a very powerful influence, is that of a DISEASED LIVER. In this complaint it has undoubtedly proved more efficacious than any remedy hitherto employed, and in numerous instances when patients had endured long and severe suffering from the disease without receiving the least benefit from various remedies, and when Mercury has been resorted to in vain, the use of this Balsam has restored the Liver to a healthy action, and in many instances effected PERMANENT CURES after every known remedy had failed to produce this desired effect.

Besides its astonishing efficacy in the diseases above mentioned, we also find it a very effectual remedy in ASTHMA, a complaint in which it has been extensively used with decided success, even in cases of years standing.

It not only emanates from a regular Physician, but has also been well tested in all the complaints for which it is recommended. It is not my intention therefore, either to cloak it in mystery, or in any way deceive the public by overrating its virtues, on the contrary, I shall simply endeavour to give a brief statement of its usefulness, and flatter myself that its surprising efficacy will enable me to furnish such proofs of its virtues as will satisfy the most incredulous that Consumption may and "Can be Cured," if this medicine be resorted to in time.

Opinions of a regular Physician.

Exeter, Me. Sept, 30, 1845.

This certifies that I have recommended the use of WISTER'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for diseases of the Lungs, for two years past and many bottles to my knowledge have been used by my patients, all with beneficial results In two cases where it was thought confirmed consumption had taken place, the Wild Cherry effected a cure. E BOYEN, Physician. at Exeter Corner.

NO QUACKERY! NO DECEPTION!

All published statements of cures performed by this medicine, are, in every respect, TRUE.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS & IMITATIONS.

The unparalleled and astonishing efficacy of Dr. Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry in all the diseases for which it is recommended, curing many cases after the skill of the best physicians was unavailing, has effected a large & increasing demand for it. This fact has caused several unprincipled counterfeiters and imitators to palm off spurious mixtures of similar name and appearance, for the genuine Balsam.

Be careful and get the genuine DR. WISTER'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. None genuine unless signed by I BUTTS. Address all orders to SETH W. FOWLE, Boston Mass.

The American Farmer.

The 2d volume of the new series of this journal will commence on the 1st of July, 1846, and the subsequent numbers will be issued on the first of each month as usual. The very extended circulation which the FARMER has attained since its publication in its present form, (being a large octavo, of 32 pages each No.) is a gratifying evidence that the labors of its conductors have not been in vain. The "FARMER" is the oldest agricultural publication in the United States, the volume just completed being the 27 year of its existence; and evinces in its vigorous old age, a stamina which will favorably compare with any of its contemporaries.

Terms for the forthcoming volume —Single copies $1—Six copies for $5—Thirteen copies for $10. Sample Nos. will be sent to any one desirous of aiding in the circulation of the "Farmer".
