citing scenes in the affections of a great people, ever desirous of accomplishing their gratitude through the highest public channels. Catering for this feeling the press in many places has, very injudiciously as we think, placed the existing idol of the country prominently forth as the next candidate for the Presidency; ex necessitate rei. We are not yet prepared for this step. Not that we hold General Taylor in less personal admiration, or esteem him incapable of doing the same justice to a high civil station which he has exhibited in the distinguished military post he at present holds. Our sentiments upon these points have been already expressed. Gen. Taylor is, in any position, a great man, and we doubt not would render illustrious any office to which he might aspire. But there may be qualifying circumstances, merged in the present excited state of the public mind which will hereafter come up for serious and judicious consideration, and render it necessary to make some other selection for this high and responsible trust. Who in Maryland dreamed that the Harrisburg convention of 1840 would have nominated any other Whig for the Presidency in preference to Mr. Clay who was the idol of our hearts and whose name had been inscribed upon our banners? And yet General Harrison was found to be the choice of that meeting; the sage of Ashland generously acquiesced in its decision, and the result vindicated the policy.

Military enthusiasm has ever been the rock upon which the proudest republics of history have perished, and it is no, without its dangers at this day. There was a period, and we dare affirm it, when this subject was not without objection to the Whig party of the Land; and we recollect in our school-boy days hearing our fathers declaiming against the elevation of a distinguished general, now deceased, to the highest office of the country upon the ground that he was a military chieftain, and his election, by throwing open the doors of civil preferment on account of merit in arms, would furnish a hazardous and alarming precedent. To say nothing of this feature of the case we confess our private opinions are decidedly in favor of keeping the military and civil departments in a government like ours, distinct and separate. Civil offices should be open to civilians because they prepare themselves by long courses of study for these important trusts. How indignant was the whole country when but a little while ago it was proposed to place in rank above our veteran Generals a man from the walks of civil life, whose thigh had never worn a sword, and yet the whole country are conspiring to supersede those whose heads have grown gray in the halls of legislation, by one who has had quite as little to do with politics and statesmanship as had Colonel Benton with military tactics and prowess! Let this precedent prevail and there is an end to all incentive to the study of sound statesmanship with a view to these high places, and those who now direct their studies to such ends will divert them into other channels where their privileges and rights are better respected and encouraged. We speak as a friend to the party, and from no captious motive. It is a private sentiment, which as a part of the press we feel bound by every principle of honesty and patriotism unflinchingly to avow. We believe that General Taylor himself has the correct view of this whole matter, and we cannot too highly commend the indignant rebuke which through his published letters he is bestowing upon the general and immature agitation of his name in connection with the Presidential office. When the Convention shall decide upon the man it will then be time enough for the press to nail his colors to the mast head and fight his battles. Should Gen. Taylor prove to be the choice of the people, as from present indications seems highly probable, we shall expect to be found at our post doing our duty in the ranks. Until then, however, we stand pledged to no man, nor shall we attempt to forestall public opinion by asserting the claims of any before the community, in connection with the peculiar office in question.

Almost a Famine.—No flour or bread could be obtained at any price at Monterey in California, at the last advices. Tea was selling at 3$ per lb., coffee 75 a 80 cents per lb., sugar, common kinds 25 a 31.—Nothing could be had but fresh beef and occasionally a few potatoes, the latter at 4 and 5 cents. per lb. The common brandy of the country was selling at $5 a gallon, and no other could be had.

Freak of Lightning.—During the thunder gust last week, says the Cecil Whig the lightning cut some strange antics at the railroad depot at that place. It split the pump stalk in the watering house—ran along the telegraph wire and down several of the poles tearing them as it went, and going into the ten pin alley, made a twelve strike with one roll, knocking down all the pins and two of the players.

POSTCRIPT.

From the correspondence of the N. Orleans Delta under date of April 3d, contained in the Baltimore Sun of yesterday; we learn that Gen. Twiggs, whose command numbers between 2500 and 2700 men, had fallen in with a large Mexican force at Cerro Gordo, a stone mountain fort, 22 miles from Jalapa, and that a skirmish ensued in which Capt. Johnson, Topographical Engineers, and several others, were severely wounded, Gen. Worth, by summons of an express had repaired to the scene of action. The capture of Cerro Gordo is confidently anticipated though Santa Anna is said to occupy a position between Vera Cruz and Jalapa, with a force from 12000 to 15000 men It is also stated, on authority of an intelligent Mexican, that Santa Anna had with him four prominent members of the National Congress hoping by their aid to negotiate a peace.

GEN. TAYLOR NOMINATED IN KENTUCKY.—A meeting of the citizens of Mason county was held in the town of Washington, on 12th instant; "to take into consideration the claims of Gen. Taylor to the admiration and gratitude of the people of the United States.' The meeting was addressed by F. T. Chambers, W. H. Wadsworth, Judge Beaty, and John A. McClung brother of the gallant Lt. Colonel who was wounded at the battle of Monterey. A resolution was adopted, "that, as obedience to orders is the first duty of a soldier, so is submission to the righteous will of the people the first duty of a citizen and that righteous will' now is, that Gen. Taylor bow his plumed head to the civic wreath which the people are weaving for his manly brow.

Another of the resolutions was in these words:

Resolved, Therefore, that we, the people of the county of Mason, in consideration of the glory which he has given to his country's arms, his freedom from the trammels of party, the honesty and directness of his character, and the strong, clear, and sagacious intellect manifested by his conduct and in his writings, nominate him to our fellow-citizen of the Union as the worthy successor of that "hero sage" who was—Washington.

SHOCKING AFFAIR.—Mrs. Martha Stevens, (Wife of Mr. Albert Stevens, of Windham, Me., who had been confined about a week before,) on Thursday night, while lying in bed with her sister, who took care of her, asked her for a handkerchief, which the sister handed to her. This was about 10 o'clock. At 12 her sister again awoke, and found a piece of the handkerchief about the infant's neck, and another around that of her sick sister. They were both strangled to death! This was the only child—they having been married but about a year, and were in good circumstances. Mrs. S. was only 25 years old. —Portland Argus.

Fire in Charles County.—We learn that the beautiful dwelling of the Hon. D. Merrick, late U. S. Senator, at Allen's Fresh, in Charles county, was entirely consumed by fire on Thursday morning last, with about one-half of its valuable contents.—The loss is from $7,000 to $10,000, and unfortunately was not insured.

The recent cold weather killed, it is feared much of the early fruit. The Upper Marlboro' Gazette of Friday last says—

We hear that Dr. Bayne examined his Peach orchard, and found the fruit on trees in even the less exposed positions entirely destroyed. His loss, as well as that of other fruit gardeners, will be considerable The crops have suffered some, but to what extent we have not been able to learn.

In the neigborhood of Washington the fruit on the peach trees has been almost entirely destroyed.
