POETRY.

THE YOUNGEST.

BY L. E. L.

The voice of the mourner is heard on the air,
And the old hall is darkened as midnight were there,
And the foot-falls are soft, as they feared to awake
The sleep they would yet give the wide world to break.

Their youngest, their dearest, is gone to his rest,
With health on his brow, and with joy in his breast;
The morning he bounded all life o'er the hill,
At night the light step and the glad pulse were still.

His mother put back the bright curls from his brow,
And kissed in her pride the while forehead below:
But the damps on that forehead were gathering fast,
She kissed them away, but that kiss was her last.

There are others, his elders, the bold and the fair,
But they wear not the likeness that he wont to wear,
With his hair of light gold, his eyes of deep blue;
They bring not the father who perished to view.

With his hawk on his hand, his hound at his feet,
With flowers strewed o'er him the wild and the sweet,
He lies that short space before beauty is gone,
When life and when death are commingled in one.

By turns his bold brothers have over him hung,
And wept as they gazed on their favorite, their young;
But his mother sat by like a statue, no tears
Relieving the grief that with them disappears.

Again that dark hall will be opened to-day,
And the hymn, and the pall, and the flowers put away;
And alone in their chapel, the boy will be laid,
And left as the dead are, to silence and shade.

But long will he be to their memory dear—
Long his glad voice will sound like a dream in their ear;
They will miss their boy-hunter from banquet and chase,
And his place, though filled up, be a still vacant place.

A WOMAN OF GOOD TASTE.—The following very happy and equally true sketch is from the London Quarterly:

You see this lady turning a cold eye to the assurances of shopmen, and the recommendations of milliners. She cares not how original a pattern may be, if it be ugly, or how recent a shape, if it be awkward. Whatever laws fashion dictates, she follows laws of her own, and is never behind it. She wears very beautiful things which people generally suppose to be fetched from Paris, or at least made by a French milliner, but which as often are bought at the nearest town, and made up by her own maid. Not that her costume is either rich or new—on the contrary, she wears many a cheap dress, but it is always pretty, & many an old one, but it is always good. She deals in no gaudy confusion of colors—nor does she affect a studied sobriety; but she either refreshes you with a spirited contrast, or composes you with a judicious harmony. Not a scrap of tinsel or trumpery appears upon her. She puts no faith in velvet bands, or gilt buttons, or twisted cordings. She is quite aware, however, that the garnish is as important as the dress; all her inner borders and beadings are delicate and fresh, and should anything peep out which is not intended to be seen, it is quite as much so as that which is. After all, there is no great art either in her fashions or her materials. The secret simply consists in her knowing the three grand unities of dress—her own station, her own age, and her own points! And no woman can dress well who does not. After this we need not say, that whoever is attracted by the costume will not be disappointed in the wearer. She may not be handsome, nor accomplished—but we will answer for her being even tempered, well informed, thoroughly sensible, and a complete lady.

The following description of Gen. TAYLOR sets forth a man of such sturdy honesty, such genuine symplicity, such sterling worth, that the enthusiasm which his name calls forth stands approved as a just tribute to qualities intrinsically excellent and great:

"He is simple and unostentatious as a child—plain as pike staff—homely and unpretending—brave as Cæsar, and as determined and firm as adamant. He has strong good sense—he is unornamental, but useful. His sense is of the cast iron kind, not shining but solid, and altogether practical.—He is the least showy, the most unartificial general or subaltern that is or ever was in the American Army.—He has a power and influence over men, whether individals or armies, that is irresistable. All round him have a consciousness of security and safety, while he is with them. It is this moral power; this magic of the mind, which made his four thousand men superior to twenty thousand well disciplined troops."

A PATCH ON BOTH KNEES AND GLOVES ON.

The following, from the Boston Courier is one of the cleverest essays we have met with for many a day. Similar in style, it is not inferior in point to Franklin's best:

"When I was a boy, it was my fortune to breathe, for a long time, what some writers term "the bracing air of poverty." My mother—light lie the turf upon the form which once enclosed her strong and gentle spirit—was what is commonly called an ambitious woman; for that quality, which overturns thrones and supplants dynasties, finds a legitimate sphere in the humblest abode that the shadow of poverty ever darkened. The struggle between the wish to keep up appearances and the pinching gripe of necessity produced endless shifts and contrivances, at which, we are told, some would smile, and some to whom they would teach their own experiences would sigh. But let me not disturb the veil of oblivion, which shrouds from profane eyes the hallowed mysteries of poverty.

On one occasion, it was necessary to send me on an errand to a neighbor in better circumstances than ourselves, and therefore it was necessary that I should be presented in the best possible aspect. Great pains were accordingly taken to give a smart appearance to my patched and dilapidated wardrobe, and to conceal the rents and chasms which the envious teeth of time had made in them; and by the way of throwing over my equipment a certain savor and sprinkling of gentility, my red and toil-hardened hands were enclosed in the unfamiliar casing of a pair of gloves, which had belonged to my mother in days when her years were fewer and her heart lighter.

I sallied forth on my errand, and on my way encountered a much older and bigger boy, who evidently belonged to a family which had all our own dragging poverty, and none of our uprising wealth of spirit. His rags fairly fluttered in the breeze; his hat was constructed on the most approved principle of ventilation, and his shoes, from their venerable antiquity, might have been deemed a pair of fossil shoes—the very ones on which Shem shuffled into the dark. He was an impudent valet, with a dare-devil swagger in his gait, of "I'm as good as you" lear in his eye, the very whelp to throw a stone at a well-dressed horseman, because he was well dressed; to tear a boy's ruffles because he was clean. As soon as he saw me his eye detected the practical inconsistan ies, which characterized my costume, and taking me by the shoulders, turned me round with no gentle hand, and surveying me from head to foot, exclaimed with a scornful laugh of derision, "A patch on both knees and gloves on!"

I still recall the sting of wounded feeling, which shot through me at these words. To parody a celebrated line of the immortal Tuscan:

"That day I wore my gloves no more."

But the lesson, thus rudely inforced, sank deep into my mind; and, in after life, I have had frequent occasion to make a practical application of the words of my ragged friend, when I have observed the practical inconsistencies which so often mark the conduct of mankind.

When, for instance, I see parents carefully providing for the ornamental education of their children, furnishing them with teachers in music, dancing, and drawing, but giving no thought to that moral and religious training, from which the true dignity and permanent happiness of life alone can come, never teaching them habits of self-sacrifice and self-discipline and control, but rather by example, instructing them in evil speaking, in uncharitableness, in envy, and in falsehood, I think, with a sigh, of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see a family in a cold and selfish solitude, not habitually warming their houses with a glow of happy faces, but lavishing that which could furnish the hospitality, of a whole year, upon the profusion of a single night, I think of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see a house profusely furnished with sumptuous furniture, rich curtains, and luxurious carpets, but with no books, or none but a few tawdry annuals, I am reminded of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see public men cultivating exclusively those qualities which win a way to office and neglect those which will qualify them to fill honorably the posts to which they aspire, I recall the patch on both knees and gloves on.

When I see men sacrificing peace of mind, and health of body to the insane pursuit of wealth, living in ignorance of the character of the children who are growing around them, cutting themselves off from the highest and purest pleasures of their natures, and so perverting their humanity, that which was sought as a means, insensibly comes to be followed as an end, I say to myself, "A patch on both knees and gloves on."

When I see thousands squandered for selfishness and ostentation, and nothing bestowed for charity, when I see fine ladies be painted and be jewelled, cheapening the toils of dress-makers, and with harsh words embittering the bitter bread of dependence; when I see the poor turned away from proud houses, where the crumbs of tables would be to them a feast, I think of the patch on both knees and gloves on.

TYPE CUTTERS.—Persons unacquainted with the whole process of type making, says the Anglo Saxon, would be surprised to hear that there are not more than three men in the United States acknowledged by type founders and printers to be good type cutters, and there are not ten men in the Union who even pretend to cut type. Type cutting is a very difficult art to acquire. There are many trades and professions which any one of moderate capacity can acquire so as to be tolerably useful in them. It is not so, however, with type cutting.

"SUGAR COATED" PILLS.

BEWARE! CAUTION!!

The increasing popularity of Dr. G. BENJ SMITH'S IMPROVED INDIAN VEGETABLE SUGAR COATED PILLS, has induced a number of persons to make something they call PILLS, and coat them with sugar, in order to sell them for the genuine, while they do not possess a particle of the goodness, nor even assimilate in appearance to the original, Dr. Smith's Pills. In short they are intended FRAUD upon the community. A minister who at first had an interest in an imitation Sugar Coated Pill, manufactured at Albany, N. Y., has given them up as he says on account of the miserable dishonest parties concerned in manufacturing them. The same party are now industriously circulating reports calculated to injure Dr. Smith and to affect the reputation of his valuable pills; but rather than notice them in public. Dr. Smith is about to institute legal proceedings against them for their slanders, as he has in another case against a similar party, in which he recovered a large amount of damages. These miserable imitators have to resort to the most abominable means to palm off their counterfeit pills as the public know that Dr. Smith's are the original and genuine. Several instances have come to public notice in which life has been endangered by the unfortunate use of the counterfeits. It is Dr. Smith's Pills that are doing so much good in the country—as the following plainly show.

MORE MINISTERS.

Use and Recommend Dr Smith's Pills than all others.

This is to certify that I have used the Sugar Coated Pills Manufactured by G. Benjamin Smith of New York, for some time, and believe them to be a good medicine; also, from inquiry in that city I am persuaded that he is the original inventor, and therefore is entitled to the benefit of the invention.

S. WILLIAMS.
Pastor 1st Baptist Church.

From the Blue Hens's Chicken, (Del.)

We call the attention of our readers to the certificate of Rev S Williams, Pastor of 1st Baptist Church, Pittsburgh, in relation to Dr. Smith's Pills. We can ourselves bear testimony to the excellence of these Pills, one of us having used them and experienced great relief from them.

The above is the best paper in the State of Delaware.

The "improved indian vegetable Pills," (Sugar Coated,) are certainly doing much good in the whole country, and are highly esteemed, if one half is true that people write and say about them. They are so easy in their operation that all like them The editor of the Northern State Journal, (one of the largest and best papers in the State of N Y.,) writes as follows.

Watertown, May 31, 1846.

Dr. G Benj. Smith—

Dear Sir I was laid up with a bad cold some time since my return from N Y. and during my illness I made trial of your pills and I must say I found them excellent. They are the best medicine for the purposes they are intended, that I have yet seen I seldom take pills, but I found yours entirely free from the objections to which other pills are liable. I hope they will continue to be a source of profit to you, as I doubt not they will be a means of relief to the afflicted on a large scale. Yours truly,

J. GREEN.

Tonawanda, Pa., Sept. 18, 1846.

Dr. G. Benj Smith—

Dear Sir. Your agent left with me a lot of your Sugar coated Pills, and I have but a few boxes left. Every box I have sold has given entire satisfaction. I have taken them myself and I consider them the best pills I have ever used, and I am not afraid to recommend them to the public. I wish a further supply at once.

Yours respectfully,
JACOB KIBLER, P. M.

Huntington, Ind., June 21, 1846.

Dr. Smith—

Dear Sir. I am most out of your "Indian Vegetable Sugar Coated Pills," and find them selling so fast that I think you had better send me two gross immediately. They give such general satisfaction that people come at least twenty miles for them, and as it is generally known I am agent for them, it would be very sorry to get out.

Yours respectfully,
SAML. MORE & Co.

BEWARE!!!

If G. BENJ SMITH, be not written with a pen on the bottom of the box, all "Sugar Coated" Pills are counterfeit!
