The House went into committee, and considered the bill for the relief of the heirs of John Paul Jones. Subsequently the bill was passed—yeas 99, nays 77.

The House adjourned until Monday.

[Reported for the Baltimore Clipper]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21, 1848.

SENATE.

A few petitions were presented.

A bill in favor of the heirs of the late John Paul Jones, as amended by the House, after some debate, was referred to the committee on claims.

Mr. Benton then rose, and announced the adjournment of the House, in consequence of the sudden seizure, by extreme illness, of the Hon J. Q. Adams, one of its members, and on motion the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Chase, of Tenn., asked leave to offer a joint resolution of thanks to Generals Worth, Quitman, Pillow, Shields, Pearce, Cadwallader and Smith, and a gold medal to each.

Objections being made, there was a suspension of the rules—110 to 54.

A motion was made to refer the resolution to the committee on military affairs.

Mr. Harralson opposed the reference.—Heretofore, votes of thanks had not been referred, and why should there be a departure from the practice now? If the House were ready, why not vote on the resolution at once?

The previous question was moved by Mr. Chase, and seconded—yeas 77, nays 71. So the motion to commit was thus cut off.

The main question was ordered to be put—yeas 98, nays 85.

The question was then stated on the engrossment of the resolution for a third reading, and the clerk was in the act of reading it, when

A rush was made towards Mr. Adams' seat. He had just been attacked with paralysis or apoplexy, and was near falling from his seat, but was caught by a member in the vicinity. The Clerk ceased; the House adjourned.

EASTON GAZETTE.

EASTON, Md.

SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 26.

Death of Ex-President Adams.—In another column will be found an account of the illness of this venerable Statesman. By yesterday's Sun, we learn that he died in the Capitol, surrounded by the officers of the House, and the Massachusetts delegation, at 7 1-4 o'clock Wednesday evening. ☞ "Justice," "Champion," and "Simon" are unavoidably omitted. They will appear next week.

☞ Among the State appointments made by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, we find the names of Bennett Bracco and Richard Arringdale, Esqs., of this county, as Inspectors of Liquors, and Sam'l Dickenson, Esq., also of Talbot, as Lottery Commissioner.

☞ We are indebted to the Hon. J. W. Crisfield, of the House of Representatives, for interesting public documents,—and to Benj. M. Bowdle, Esq., of the House of Delegates, for Legislative proceedings—Also, to Gen. T. Tilghman, for a copy of the report of the State's Agents, giving an account of the condition and proceedings of the Internal Improvement companies for the year past.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK, for March, has been received. For beautiful typographical execution and interesting miscellany, it is unsurpassed. The Lady's Book, including the Lady's Dollar Newspaper, edited by that talented and well-known authoress, Grace Greenwood, is mailed to subscribers at $3 per annum.

FATAL OCCURRENCE.—A man named Michael Arnold, died in Queen Anne's county last week, from the effects of a blow given him upon the head with a stick, on Saturday, 12th inst., by Mr. John Stull, whose mill he entered intoxicated, made himself troublesome, and finally drew a knife. Stull was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000.

AFFAIRS IN CANADA.—Republican symptoms are increasing every day in Canada The Canadian journals are even discussing the question of ultimate secession from Great Britian, and of annexation to the United States. Articles on this subject are admitted into the government, or conservative, journals there. Even her public men are beginning to change ground.—Clipper.

For the Easton Gazette.

MR. EDITOR:—In your paper appeared some months since, an expression advising a uniformity of books in the primary schools of the county. Can you inform us whether efforts to effect such uniformity are now making? Would it not be expedient to attempt something towards it during the present session of the Legislature? Had the commissioners authority they could very readily establish the uniformity. The superior utility of certain school books, and the advantages of a uniform system of instruction are sufficiently manifest without argument. POLLOI.

St Michaels, Feb. 16th, 1848

We are unable to answer the queries of our correspondent "Polloi" with certainty, but we have not heard of any movement being made to secure the uniformity above mentioned. Can any of our readers enlighten us upon the subject?

For the Easton Gazette.

When I rit mi last peace, Mr. Editor, I thot I shudn't hav to trubble you agin with mi ritin; but I saw by the last 'Star,' that Domby is powerfully opposed to mi clamin kin with him in any shape. To prov that I aint no kin to him (the very thing I want proved) he sais he has serched the famly rekurd of the Smiths, and cant find a Solomon amung em. The reson he cant find a Solomon on his famly rekurd is, he is got holt of the rong branch of the Smiths. I am related to the old Smiths—not the present stok, of which Domby would be the most prominent.—He speaks truly when he sais "the present stok of Smiths hav grately degmerated in pint of wisdom, and are inferior to the entire Smith famly cept in vanity," of which he clames a large porshun,—and which will be alloud him without dispute, as he so richly disserves it.

By Domby's objecshun to mi clamin kin to him, it has led me to inquire into his branch of the Smith famly;—and from frequent conversations with an old resident of this town by the name of Smith—Dennis Smith, I have found out this much of a Domby Smith (whether it is the same one that's objectin to be kin to me, cant say,) that wunst was hear.

Dennis sais that on his rekurd many years back he fines the name of Tom Smith, Dennis Smith, and Donkey Smith, and the folloin histry of em.

"Mi sun Tom had a grate likin for a soljers life, and bloed his hed of shootin pop guns—he never had eny edicashun, I was two pore to send him to skool. Mi sun Donkey (nic-named on akount of his smartnes, Domby,) cost me a grate site of munny, by goin to skool—that is, he was runed round the skool house wunst, and had his hed cut with a dickshunnary, which akounts for his smartnes. And mi sun Dennis shode his gud sents by goin to what sutes him best—sawin wood."—So ends Dennises histry.

Mi parents cauld me Solomon—whether or not akount of my wisdom or not I cant say, and will leve for others to juge, but they alwais sed I was so smart I wudn't gro big. But they needn't say that, Mr. Editor, for ef I'd a bin fed on chops and short corn, I could a bin big two, like Domby is—its a grate thing for fatnin.—Ide like to no what Domby means by that "fonetic suit" of hisen. Thare is a thing the doctors feed peple on when they want to to make em sic—is that a fonetic? or is it namd emetic?—its wun or tuther. I dont tak the alminaks nor Jon Donkeys, Mr. Editor, and I cant make out these big words. Ef Dombys a goin to giv us all metics he had better stop ritin, for I, for wun, rekun every bodys sic enuff of em now. Domby talks about a Dondyvon, alias Donkey; but he has saddled the rong Donkey this time—squat that rabit and start anuther. These Donkeys kic sumtimes, as Dombey sais, and he had better look sharp that one of em dont kic him.

And to krown all, Domby has gone to ritin potry. Well, now I thot he was smart, but I didn't think he could rite potry. Read for yourselves; its a "chorus" he sais, and I spose intended for a scripshun on his tomb. He says:

Donkey's my name—slite sprinklin of the pig,
In my own butes I feel mazin big;
Stand back ye critics—let a genus pass,
Nor wunst attemp to rite me down an ass.

How perfekly sublime and how perfekly consistent with all his former ritins—"Donkey's my name, (and natur too) slite sprinklin of the pig." Oh, what a purty thing tuther is. For the present I taik leve of Donkey, hopin I shall have some rest from this ritin bizness. And now brother, with an exchange of brays—augh eh augh—I will retire.

Your frend, SOLOMON.

Jubytown, Feb. 31th, 1872.

P. S. I wud in all kander, advize Donkey alias Domby, before he attemps to place the name of another person before the public, to be shure he has the rite one.

CAPT. BUCHANAN.—The Norfolk Herald, referring to the U. S. sloop-of-war Germantown, thus speaks of her excellent commander:

Capt. F. Buchanan is said to be remarkable for his attention to the police and cleanliness of his ship—as evidence of which, the Germantown only lost one man by sickness during her whole course in the Gulf, while a frightful mortality prevailed on board of the other vessels of the squadron—and that one man caught the fever while employed on shore at Vera Cruz. The fact is highly honorable to Captain Buchanan as an officer and worthy of the highest commendation.

TAYLOR MEETING IN NEW YORK.—The friends of Gen. Taylor held a large mass meeting at Military Hall, N. Y on Tuesday evening. The Hon. Wm. C. Johnson, of Md., & Col. Baker, of Illinois, delivered eloquent addresses to the vast assemblage. The Common Council; by invitation, attended in a body.

ILLNESS OF MR. ADAMS.

A mournful and agitating event occurred in the House of Representative yesterday, which, as the news of it spread through the city, engrossed all thoughts and filled all hearts with sympathy.

Just after the yeas and nays were taken on a question, and the Speaker had risen to put another question to the House, a sudden cry was heard on the left of the chair, "Mr. Adams is dying!" Turning our eyes to the spot, we beheld the venerable man in the act of falling over the left arm of his chair, while his right arm was extended, grasping his desk for support. He would have dropped upon the floor had he not been caught in the arms of the member sitting next him. A great sensation was created in the House; members from all quarters rushing from their seats and gathering round the fallen statesman, who was immediately lifted into the area in front of the Clerk's table. The speaker instantly suggested that some gentleman move an adjournment, which being promptly done, the House adjourned. A sofa was brought, and Mr. Adams, in a state of perfect helplessness, though not of entire insensibility, was gently laid upon it. The sofa was then taken up and borne out of the Hall into the Rotunda, where it was set down, and the members of both Houses and strangers who were fast crowding around were with some difficulty repressed and an open space cleared in its immediate vicinity; but a medical gentleman, a member of the House, (who was prompt, active and self-possessed throughout the whole painful scene,) advised that he be removed to the door of Rotunda opening on the east portico, where a fresh wind was blowing. This was done; but the air being chilly and loaded with vapor, the sofa was, at the suggestion of Mr. Winthrop, once more taken up and removed to the Speaker's apartment, the doors of which were forthwith closed to all but professional gentlemen, several of whom arrived in succession as the news spread into the city. While lying in this apartment Mr. Adams partially recovered the use of his speech, and observed, in faltering accents, "This is the end of earth;" but quickly added, "I am composed." Members had by this time reached Mr. A.'s abode with the melancholy intelligence, and, soon after, Mrs. Adams and his nephew and niece arrived and made their way to the appalling scene. Mrs. A. was deeply affected, and for some moments quite prostrated by the sight of her husband, now insensible, the pallor of death upon his countenance, and those sad premonitories fast making their appearance which fall with such a chill upon the heart.

In the Hall meanwhile, a gloomy pause occured in the usual hum of voices that fills it. Some members sat in mute suspense; others stood in groups, and made or answered inquiries as to the cause and the probable issue of the attack; other hastened toward the Speaker's room to get the latest intelligence of the sufferer's condition; while many were busily engaged in writing to their friends at home the alarming news. A remark very frequently heard was, "Well, this is just what Mr. Adams could have wished; it is an appropriate ending of his public career: he falls, like a second Chatham, in the Senate House."

Mr. Adams, though for some months very feeble, was, when he entered the hall in the morning, in his usual health, and had but a few minutes before delivered his vote, on a motion before the House, in an unusually distinct and emphatic manner. The attack was believed, at first, to have been a fainting fit; but this idea soon gave place to the appalling conviction that it was a recurrence of paralysis, which has twice before afflicted Mr. Adams, though in a milder degree. Very slight hopes are entertained of his recovering. Mr. A. attained his eightieth year in July last.—Nat. Intelligencer, Tuesday

TUESDAY, 10 o'clock, P. M.—Our Washington correspondent has just sent us a despatch, stating that he had a few moments before left the Capitol. Mr. Adams was not expected to live until midnight. His breathing was heavy, and the death rattles were clearly perceptible. His death is inevitable

His venerable wife was at her residence and had again been seized with spasms, so great was her affliction at the loss of her venerable partner.—Clipper.

THE PROPOSED TREATY OF PEACE.

The conjectures and rumors of the last three or four weeks, to which our readers will have observed that we have always attached an importance which has been generally denied to them, have ripened into reality; and, as we announced in a hurried Postscript to yesterday's daily paper, the project of a TREATY OF PEACE, signed by Mr. TRIST as Commissioner on the part of the United States, and by three Commissioners on the part of Mexico, has been received by the Executive, and has been now for two days under consideration by that branch of the Government.

The substance of the Treaty is, as we understand it, as follows:

First. Peace between the United States and Mexico, and an Armistice between the Military Commanders of the two countries during such time as the treaty shall be in supense.

Secondly. Mexico agrees, in consideration, &c., that the boundary between the United States and Mexico shall hereafter be from the Sea up the middle of the Rio Grande to the boundary of New Mexico, and thence in a line which (with some digression) is to run west (or nearly west) to the Pacific Ocean, and strike a point south of the port of San Diego.

Thirdly. In consideration of this large cession of Territory, the United States are to pay to Mexico the sum of Fifteen Millions of Dollars, and to satisfy all the just claims of citizens of the United States against the Government of Mexico.

The Treaty is understood to contain many provision, of detail; but does not as we hear, include any provision, as has been reported, for the maintenance of a military force by the U States for a certain time in Mexico.

The Treaty makes its appearance in a questionable form; being concluded by Mr. TRIST, as with full powers, after those powers had been withdrawn, or intended to be withdrawn, by the Executive. It is understood, however, that the Treaty, such as it is, will be submitted by the President to the Senate for its consideration. What will be its fate in that body we shall not undertake to predict.

We can at least rejoice at one thing; that for the present there is a cessation of hostilities in Mexico. May it be perpetual.—Nat. Intelligencer.

CLAY MEETING IN NEW YORK.—The friends of Mr. Clay, who desire to have him run again for the Presidency, held a meeting in Castle Garden, in that city on Thursday evening, 17th inst.—The assemblage was very large, estimated at from five to ten thousand. The meeting was called to order by Philip Hone, Esq., Chairman of the Whig General Committee, on whose motion, Henry Grinnell, Esq., was appointed President, with 18 Vice Presidents, and the same number of Secretaries.

Mr. N. B. Blunt, from the Committee appointed to prepare an address, presented & read it, and it was unanimously adopted.

The meeting was then addressed by John L. White, Dudley Seldon, and Horace Greeley, Esqrs Letters were read from Hon. J. M. Botts and Hon. R. W Thompson, who had been invited to attend, but were detained in Congress to vote on the loan bill

The feeling of the meeting was very enthusiastic. At the conclusion, Mr. N. B. Blunt proposed nine cheers for Henry Clay, which were given with the most overpowering enthusiasm, and the meeting adjourned in perfect order.

A STRANGE MISNOMER.—The Washington Union and other partisan Journals on the side of the Administration and its war are extremely fond of calling the Whigs Mexicans, as a term of reproach. This is odd in two points of view—in reference to the facts of the case and to the choice of the appellation. The Whigs are not the people who love the Mexicans. On the contrary the Whigs dislike them so much that they cannot with patience hear of their being taken into the Union, amalgamated and identified with its citizens. It is the Democrats who love the Mexicans—and not only their persons, but every thing they possess.—The Democrats wish to adopt them as brothers and fellow citizens—The Whigs desire to keep aloof from them, to have nothing to do with them except in the way of fair trade and civil intercourse at a respectful distance. Clearly, then, it is wrong to call the Whigs Mexicans. The title should be assumed by the partizans of the President.

And it is odd tha the Democrats, loving the Mexicans as they do, employ their name as a term of reproach. The act is not exactly commendable as a token of friendship We advise the Union and its followers to change this item of their vocabulary, calling themselves Mexicans and the Whigs anti-Mexicans.—N. Y Com. Ad.

Married,

On Thursday evening last, 17th inst., by Rev. Joseph Aspril, NATHANIEL P. JENKINS, to SARAH ELIZABETH, daughter of Wm. Hambleton, Esq., of Bayside.

DIED,

On the 18th inst., Mrs. Charlotte Faulkner, in the 51st year of her age.

For several years previous to the death of this estimable lady, she was severely afflicted with that dread disease which seldom fails to bring death to its victim,—consumption. She maintained a character in the various relations of life, pure and unblemished, generous, warm-hearted and affectionate in her disposition, she was ever willing to administer to the wants of the sick and afflicted. An humble follower of her Saviour, she made no vain ostentation of her religion before the world, but preferred rather that her conduct should give evidence that hers was the religion of the heart and that which prepares the soul for endless enjoyment in the realms of bliss. Her last moments were spent in ascribing praise to Christ her Redeemer, and in giving admonitions to those around her to seek salvation through the means devised by the gospel, in order that they might finally obtain that rest which is in reversion for the people of God.
