4th X. To the Fourth Cross Inty: she answers that she thinks it was in eighteen hundred and forty one and she thinks it was in January that she heard said conversation referred to in this Interrogatory.
5th X. To the Fifth Cross Inty. she answers that she did mean to say that the deed was made for the purpose of saving and protecting the property of said Osborne from her creditors, deponent knows this, but it was not for the purpose of defrauding her creditors but merely to gain time.
6 X. To the Sixth Cross Inty: she answers, that on said occasion deponent applied to Hamilton Easter, Easter & Co. a silk Store — Botler the China Store. Carlis. Fancy Store. Needles, Cabinet Maker, Canfield, Jewelers, also McDowell and Gable, all of them deponent saw except McDowell & Gable, but one of the firm called afterwards on said Osborne and acceded to her proposition.
7 X Cross. To the Seventh Cross Inty: she answers that said persons were she presumes aware of the manner of life of said Osborne, and they agreed to indulge her in the expectation of receiving their claims out of the profits of her business.
Deponent recollects that when she called on Hamilton Easter and Company she told him that said Osborne was then unable to pay his bill, but that she would pay it as soon as she could and as fast as she could, a part at a time. He replied that he was not afraid of her money and would not have sent in his claim but that he had been told by Eliza Randolph that said Osborne was on the eve of failure, he assented to the proposition, made by deponent she recollects that the other creditors whom she saw (except Needles, with whom she had no conversation as she was accompanied by said Osborne who conversed in her hearing with him) were willing to wait for their money except Canfield who wished it paid weekly the particulars of said conversations she does not recollect. Needles had not sent in his claim to said Osborne, but she called on him and he told her that he was not at all uneasy about his claim although he had heard a report of her intended failure which report he stated he had understood came from Elizabeth Randolph, said Needles was perfectly willing to wait saying that he did not feel uneasy about it.
8th X To the Eight Cross Inty: she answers that she is not acquainted with either of said Complainants McDowell, Gable or Needles deponent had frequently seen Needles before she ever lived with Mrs Osborne, none of them who in the habit of visiting said Osbornes to her knowledge she thinks she saw Mr. Needles there once, that is to say, at the door, not in the house. The other two (McDowell and Gable) she does not know to the best of her knowledge.
9th X. To the Ninth Cross Interrogatory, she answers that she knows no Clerk of said Complainants or any of them who were in the habit of visiting the said Osbornes except one and he was a clerk of the Complainants McDowell & Gable and came frequently with messages from his Employers (McDowell & Gable to the said Osborne)
10 X. To the Tenth Cross Inty: She answers that it was in March or April 1841 that she commenced keeping said Osbornes accounts. 11 X To the Eleventh Cross Interrogating, she answers that said Osborne did not keep regular Books. Deponent kept for her a Book showing what was due her from gentlemen, she does not know what has become of it, but she presumes she destroyed it, Deponent also kept the receipt book now in the possession of Mr. Lucas.

12 X To the Twelfth Cross Inty, she answers that she thinks said loan of $1000, was made during the first year after her living with said Osborne in 1840, and she thinks it was in the Winter or Spring. Deponent did not then keep her accounts, but she recollects the loan, and it was received by Mrs Osborne at Goldsmiths house deponent was not present when the money was paid, but Osborne brought it home immediately and told deponent that she had borrowed it of said Goldsmith.
13 X. To the Thirteenth Cross Inty: she answers, that she thinks she went away the last of July or August 1840 and returned in March or Apl. of 1841.
14. X To the Fourteenth Cross Interg. she answers that she thinks it was in 1842 that the $3000 were lent, and she thinks it was in the fall of the year, a part was paid at said Osbornes in deponents presence the exact sum she does not recollect, and a part was paid at Goldsmiths when deponent was not present.
15 X To the Fifteenth Cross Inty: she answers that said building was commenced in the Spring of 1841 and in May she thinks. The buildings was not entirely finished until 1844, she thinks.
16 X. To the Sixteenth Cross Inty: She answers that it was in the year 1843, she thinks, that the said sum of $100 was loaned the month or season she cannot remember but it was paid in several sums and part was paid in the winter, some was paid at his house and some at her house and deponent was present at some of the payments made at Osborne house, she would not like to say that she was present at all the payments at Osbornes house, but she is sure she was present at some of them, other women were present at one of the payments, she knows. but who they were she could not pretend to say as the women were always changing. she thinks Hannah Atwell was present at one of the payments. The said money was applied by said Osborne in building. Deponent wishes to correct her former answer to said 16th Inty by adding that $5000 was loaned in 1842 before the loan of $10,000.
17 X. To the Seventeenth Cross Inty: she answers that she means to say in the first place that said deed was made to save her property from her creditors, and the property mentioned in said deed was in pledge for seven thousand dollars and he was to hold the property until she paid him that seven thousand Dollars which she was to do in five years and if paid within that time it was agreed between them that she was to have her property back again.
18 X To the Eighteenth Cross Inty: she answers that said Osborne removed to New York in October 1844.
19th X To the Nineteenth Cross Interrogating, she answers that she is very certain that $7,000 was the precise sum and she is certain of this because she filled up and signed the notes for the amount then due, she thinks there were eight notes given for it
