me I should leave your house. Yes said Mrs Emment and you can go this night yet. On Monday I brought her back. Lavinia got out and wanted me to go in. Deponent told her he did not want to go in as they had attempted to give him a round and he did not care about going in Deponent then hitched his horse and went up Street to see Mr Alvey. On his way back he met Samuel about Doyle's Stable. Samuel came across the Street and commenced abusing deponent and said that both deponent and Mr Alvey were damned rascals. Deponent told him that he had gone far enough and asked him why he called deponent a damned rascal as deponent had never cheated him or any body else out of a cent Samuel then went on to say that Lavinia was about to leave Mr Emments and that Mr Emment was going on — and asked why Andrew did not marry Lavinia to board. Deponent told him that Mr Emment had forbid Lavinia the house in Deponents presence. Samuel said that she was angry then or she would not have said it. Deponent then went down Street and when opposite Mrs Emments. Kate Hagerline was on the pavement, crying and said I should go in to see Mrs Emment as she was crying and going on in the House because Lavinia was going to leave Deponent told the girl that it was no use for him to go in as she was there on Saturday and whenever deponent would commence talking the old woman would commence crying and going on. During this time Lavinia came out of Mrs Snyders. Deponent told her that her Mother was not willing for her to board and that she had better go in and stay there She said she could not as they had treated her so bad. Deponent then told her that she had better get married as deponent understood she was going to get married. She said she could not then as she was not ready. She then asked me to see Andrew and ask him to meet her at Mr Underwoods at 10 O'clock deponent thinks it was. When Andrew and deponent got there Lavinia was not there yet. Mr G. W. Smith had been at Mr Emments to try and pacify them Lavinia told me at Mr Underwoods that Mr Smith had told her that she should not leave home on account of her Mother. if she had to lock herself up in a room. She was crying about it and said she did not know what to do. Andy insisted on her to stay and said that she should not go away to board. She said she did not know how she could stay as they treated her so very coolly and talked so very short. She then went over home but came back again and said that her Mother wanted to see Andy and Deponent. We went over with her. Came into the room. her mother was sitting there crying and appeared to fret a great deal and said that she did not want Lavinia to leave. and that she should have a home there as long as she lived. Lady asked her if she wanted to see him and she said that she did. He Andy asked her then if she had any objections to his coming there. She said no. you are welcome to come. if I had any objections you would have found it out long ago. There was some other conversation but deponent does not now recollect it

To the 5th Interrogatory this deponent says that he has heard Samuel E. Schindel speak of Lavinia's temper. He told deponent that she had a very bad temper. He told deponent this in deponent's Orchard one Saturday Evening. Deponent said to him Sam I always thought or heard that your wife was the worst. He said then that his wife had a very bad temper when she got mad she would let it out and it was soon over. but Lavinia's lasted a long time, or words to that effect. Lavinia told me that Sam Wet had said that she had a heart as black as a hat and as large as a half bushel and we didn't believe her on oath.

To the 6th Interrogatory this deponent says. No Sir. he never did, he never told deponent so. nor did she. nor did deponent ever hear it.

To the 7th Interrogatory, this deponent says that he was at Mr Emments on a Sunday while Lavinia was sick there after her marriage. Mr Emment met deponent at the front door and took me up stairs where Lavinia was. Andy was not in the room where she was. he was in the room adjoining where she was sleeping. Mrs Emment told me that Andy had lain down to sleep as he had lost a great deal of rest sitting up and waiting upon Lavinia

To the 8th Interrogatory. this deponent says that he has never known Andrew to abuse or ill treat his wife. never heard of it - never seen anything of it.

To the 9th Interrogatory this deponent says that he was acting as Guardian for Lavinia at the time of the division of the Estate.

Cross Interrogatories to Jonathan Schindel

To the 1st Cross Interrogatory this deponent says that it was sometime in the fore part of last Winter a year. Deponent supposes Andy was going to see Lavinia at the time. Does not know whether he was engaged to her at the time.

To the 2nd Cross Interrogatory this deponent says that he supposes it was in January before last. It was sleighing time. Deponent believes that Andy was addressing Lavinia then from what he has heard. never heard it from Andy. He believes they were then engaged to be married. There was nothing said about their marriage more than deponent said on Monday. Deponent did know that Andy was at that time addressing Lavinia with a view to marrying her. Mr Smith requested deponent to call on Lavinia that day and tell her that a Summons would be served on her and her mother and that it was a mere form. Deponent went to the tavern to see her. She was taking Music Lessons, deponent saw her there. She appeared to be very much in trouble, said she wanted to go into the Country and had no way to get out, and Sam wouldn't take her out. Deponent told her then that he would take her out. Deponent was then attending to business for her. Deponent took to his house. She staid at his house per night. On Sunday and Sunday night she was at deponents fathers. Supposes his fathers house is some two three hundred feet from deponents. Deponent had promised to bring Lavinia back on Monday and was as good as his word. Deponent stated in his answer before why he did not go into the house with her. Andy met Lavinia at Underwoods at her request. Does not know why Andy asked Mrs Emment if she had any objections to his visiting her house. Deponent believes that Andy had before been in
