March 4th 1857

My Dear Brother,

I Betsy to day found this Letter on the other page from Carter in 1846. This she is sure was written to the Dr. to smoother over the conversation previously had and the moral condemnation of himself which is spread in that conversation mind caused In that conversation with the Dr Betsey is almost certain he admitted that to avoid himself of the result of Morris suit mind be easy. But that he felt obliged to avoid himself of it for his children sake,

Affect yours,

G H Calvert.

Dear Charles, I have received your several letters, and perceive you are in error in supposing we intended to select Jere Jones Bradley and Cross as the Arbitrators in our affairs. Our intention in proposing Mr Bradley was to substitute in place of Mr Jones who we thought mind not attend to it.

It will readily occur to you that Jerd Jones and Mr Bradley might from looking to your interest as counsel in Morris case view the present with more partiality than mind comport with a fair adjustment of the questions between us.

Upon consultation with Stuart a short time from we thought it best to allow Messrs Cross and Bradley to select the third Arbitrator in case of any difference between them, as in the other way then mind be two against one.

I have been anxiously here for some time in hopes of seeing you. If I do not I wish you mind see Mr Bradley or Cross and give them your views about the matter and inform at home accordingly as I go to day.

Yours Sincerely,

C H Carter.

P.S. I will send you the receipt for having paid me at different times.
