The Easton Gazette.

SATURDAY MORNING . . . . APRIL 30, 1859.

How Ben Purtle got his Wife.

The very climax of ugliness was Ben Purtle. He was red haired and each hair stood as if it cherished the supremest contempt for tts next neighbor. His face was freckled as the most bespotted turkey egg. His nose supported at the bridge, a large lump, while the end turned viciously to one side. His mouth had every shape but a pretty shape. His form was uncouth as his face was ugly. The very climax of ugliness was Ben Purtle—what was more still Ben had a handsome bouncing, blooming wife—such as can only be grown upon a country farm.

"How the deuce," said I to Ben one day, "did you ever get such a wife, you uncouth mishappen, quintessence of monstrosity?"

Ben was not at all offended at the impertinence of my question, and forthwith began to solve the mystery thus:

"Well, now gals what's sensible ain't cotch by none of your puny and hifalutin airs. I've seed that tried mor'n once. You know Katy was allers considerable the purtiest gal in these parts and all the young fellers in the naborhood used to try to cotch her. Well, I used to go over to old Sammy's too just to kinder look on you know and cast sheep's eyes at Kate. But Lord sakes! I had no more thought that I could get Kate than a Jeru-salem cricket could hide in the air that wasn't on old Sammy's bald head—no siree. But still, I couldn't help goin' an' my heart would kinder flutter and my eyes would burn all over, whenever I'd go to talk to Kate. And one day when Kate sorter made fun of me like, it almost killed me sure, I went home with something like a rock jostling in my brest and swore I'd hang myself with the first plow line I found."

"Did you hang yourself?"

"No, daddy blazed out to me for not taking old Bail to the pasture in the morning and scared me so bad I forgot it."

"Go on," said I, seeing Ben pause with apparent regret that he had not executed his vow:

"Well' soon on Sunday morning——(I recken it was about a year after that hanging)—I got up and scraped my face with daddy's razor; and put on my new copprus britches and a new linsey coat mammy had dyed with sassafrace bark and went over to uncle Sammy's. Now I'd got to loving Kate like all creation, but I never cheaped to anybody about my feelings. But I knowed I was on the right side of the old folks."

"Well, now ain't it quar," continued Ben, after a slight pause during which he rolled his quid to a more convenient place in his mouth, "how a feller will feel sometimes?" Something seemed to say as I went along. Ben Purtle, this is a great day for you, and then my heart jumped and fluttered like a jay bird in a trap. And when I got thar and seed Kate with her new checked homespun frock on, I raily thought I should take the blind staggers anyhow.

Ben paused again to brush the fog from his eyes and then continued:

"Well, I found the order of the day was to go muscadine hunting. Joe Sharp, and his two sisters and Jim Bowles was thar.—I'd knowed for a long time that Joe Sharp was right after Kate; and I hated him worse than a hog hates to find the way out of a tater patch; but I don't let on. Sharp had on white britches and fine shoes and broadcloth coat, but everybody knowed he wasn't worth a red cent. He walked with Kate and you ought to a seen the airs he put on. It was "Miss Kate" this and "Miss Kate" that, and all such nonsense. After a while we came to a slough whar we had to cross a log and I'd a notion to pitch the sassy good for nothing feller into the water."

"Why didn't you?" I asked sympathizing with the narrator.

"Stop, never mind," said Ben, giving me a nudge. "Providence done that all up brown. Nothing must do but Joe Sharp must lead Miss Kate across fust He jumped on the log in high glee and took Kates hand and off they put. Just as they had got half way across a tarnation big bull frog jumped off in the water (you know they holler) "Snakes screamed the blasted fool and knocked Kate off up to her waist in the nasty, black muddy water. And d'ye think the scamp didn't come up after we'd got out and said: "Are you much hurt Miss Kate?".

My dander was up. I couldn't stand it, I cotch him by the seat of his white britches, and his coat collar and gin him a toss. May be he didn't go clear under when he hit the water. I didn't see him out. Me and Kate put for the house. When we started on Kate said:

"Ben jist let me hold on to your arm my knees feel sorter week."

"Gepeat Jeminy! I felt so quar when she tuck hold. I tried to say something nice but my drotted mouth would not go off no how. But I felt as strong as an elephant, and helped Kate along. Bimby Kate said:

"Ben, that Joe Sharp's good for nothing sneaking, nobody; of ever he puts his head inside of our house again I'll souse him with dish water, sure."

"I tried to say something again, but cuss the luck, I couldn't say nothing, but squeezed Kate's hand and sighed like a cranky bellus.

We'd got clean out of sight of the others and Kate says—

"Ben, I feel that you're my protector, and I believe daddy's right when he says you're worth all of the rest of the boys in the naborhood."

"Ben Purtle," says I, "this is a great day for you," and I made a tremendous effort to get my mouth off again, and out it popped sure enough:

"Kate," says I trembling all over, "I love you to distraction, and no mistake. I've loved you long and hard. My heart's been almost broken for two years: and I want you say right straight up and down, whether you're going to have me or not."

Kate hung down her head and didn't say nothing but I felt encouraged, for she kinder sighed. Says I, "Kate, ef you're gwine to have me, say so, and ef you dont want to say so, jist squeeze my hand."

"Well she squeezed my hand right off.—Lordy, how I did feel. I felt as if a stream of warm water or sassafrace tea sweetened with molasses, was running through my bones! and jist cotch her in my arms, and kissed her right in the mouth and she never tried the first time to get loose."

Ben was so overcome with this narration of his courtship, that a pause for breath was necessary.

"How long after that," said I, "before you were married?"

"Old Sammy was mighty proud, and so was the old 'oman, about the thing, and we married next fall after the muscadine scrape."

"Do you think your wife loves you yet?" I asked.

"Why, lordy yes. She thinks I'm the purtiest and the best feller in the world. I tell you, sir, its no use a talking, high-falu-ten airs, and quality dressing and colone and such things ain't gwine to go down with sensible gals, sure."
