FARMER'S COLUMN.

Diseases of Swine.

The importance of attending to the study of disease in hogs, is so much undervalued, and consequently, so little understood, that it is considered almost ridiculous, at least absurd, for any one to attempt the treatment of a sick pig; and yet we have, or could have more experience in their diseases, and more post mortem examinations, than in almost any other domestic animal, from the fact of their great relative numbers. There are a sufficient number of pigs that sicken and die yearly, on a moderate-sized farm, if properly attended to, and experimented upon, to furnish us, in a few years, with more light upon the subject than is really known at the present day The prevention of disease in them should demand the attention of every scientific farmer, and when the hog is really sick, we should be able to do something for him. A few of his diseases, however, have received some attention, as follows:

QUINSY

Is an inflamation and swelling of the glands of the throat, so as to impede, or even prevent breathing.

Treatment.—Bleed from the ears, by cutting them off, in order to abstract the blood from as near the seat of the disease as possible. Give tartar emetic 1 scruple, sulphur, 1 dr., twice per day, in water or slop, if the patient will take it, put a pill if he will not. Rub hot turpentine well under and around the throat, with a warm iron, and keep him in a warm bed. It is either epidemic or caused by cold. When the epidemic is raging, hogs should be well sheltered, and fed in a trough smeared with tar, and have salt and sulphur given them every few days, as a preventive.

PNEUMONIA

Is caused by cold, and is recognized by heaving, and a red nostril and mouth.

Treatment—The same as for Quinsy, except that the application of turpentine should extend over the entire chest also, give nitre 1 dr., tartar emetic 1 scruple, twice per day.

STAGGERS.

In this disease the hog staggers, and is unable to hold the head in one position, it being generally turned to one side.

Treatment.—Bleed by cutting the ears, in order to take the blood directly from the brain, the seat of the disease. Give the tartar emetic and nitre, as above directed; and splitting the skin of the forehead, insert a pea, or some salt, as a counter-irritant.

MANGE

Is cured in hogs, if recent, by first washing with soap and water, and applying train oil and tar, equal parts, every day or two, but exclude the pig from your straw-house or stable, where he contracted the disease. Where it is far advanced, and the skin cracked and raw, after the washing, apply a solution of blue-stone 1oz. to the pint of water. This should be used every third day, applying the oil and tar after each application of the blue-stone. One or two washings will usually effect a cure.

MEASELS

Are said to exist in swine, and sulphur and beer to be the remedies.

TUMORS AND WENS

May appear on any part of the body.—The first is to be opened when the softness of the parts indicates the presence of matter, and dressed with tar and fat. The latter may be cut out if necessary.

Hogs fed on grass exclusively, especially clover, frequently scour, urinate too much, and slobber. Salt, given every day or two, is the remedy. It should be regularly given throughout the Summer season, and will be found to greatly facilitate the fatteniug process. A few ashes sprinkled occasionally upon the salt-ground will prove beneficial.

CHRONIC COUGH

In pigs, causes them to waste away gradually and die. If sleeping in dust be the cause correct it. If the lungs be diseased, give the tartar emetic and sulphur daily, and feed them in a tartar trough. They should sleep warm, and a total change of food and habits are requisite.

COOKING FOOD FOR SWINE.

Samuel H. Clay, of Kentucky, has been experimenting in feeding several lots of hogs, changing them from raw to cooked, and from ground to unground food, with the following results: One bushel of dry corn made five pounds and ten ounces of live pork; one bushel of boiled corn made fourteen pounds and seven ounces of pork. One bushel of ground corn, boiled, made, in one instance, sixteen pounds and seven ounces, and in another, nearly eighteen pounds of pork. Estimating corn at 90 cents a bushel, and pork at eight cents a pound we have, as the result of one bushel of dry corn, 45 cents worth of pork; of one bushel of boiled corn, 116 cents worth of pork; and of one bushel of ground corn, 136 cents worth of pork.—N. C. Planter.

GLASS LAMP GLOBES.—To get stains of oil out of opaque glass lamp globes, wash them with the very best rectified spirits of turpentine, then with soap and water, and finish with pure cold water.—London Field.

PARISIAN MODE OF ROASTING APPLES.—Select the largest apples, scoop out the core without cutting quite through; fill the hollow with butter and fine soft sugar; let them roast in a slow oven, and serve up with syrup.

TO TAKE MILDEW OUT OF LINEN.—Rub it well with soap, then scrape some fine chalk, and rub that also on the linen; lay it on the grass; as it dries wet it a little, and it will come out afer twice doing.

A SHOT IN THE FLOCK.—We wonder if the followiug Paixhan shot from the "Notes from the Plymouth Pulpit," by Henry Ward Beecher, hits any body in all this region round about? We hope not. Mr. Beecher said:

There are sitting before me in this congregation now, two hundred men, who stuff their Sunday full of what they call religion, and then go out on Monday to catch their brothers by the throat, saying: "Pay me that thou owest; its Monday now, and you need't think that because we sat crying together yesterday over our Saviour's sufferings and love, that I am going to let you off from that debt, if it does ruin you to pay it now.

THE FAMILY JOURNAL.

A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

Devoted to Literature, News, Romance, Science and Art.

JOHN B. WILLIAMS, } Editors & Proprietors.
CHAS. H. MOORE. }

IT is a well-known fact that the South is almost entirely dependent on the North for its hebdomadal literature. It is to be seen whether the Southern States cannot support a literary journal of its own. The parties undertaking this new enterprise are determined to spare no effort or expense to produce a paper which shall effect this purpose, and deserve a share of the support of the reading public. Such a paper, it is hoped, will arouse the somewhat dormant literary condition of our (Baltimore) city, develop its inactive talent; and offer at our own doors a vehicle for the expression of thought, interchange of ideas, and the imparting of new items of information.

The Family Journal will contain Original Stories, Sketches of Travel, Biographical essays, a Summary of News, domestic and Foreign; Reviews of Books, Dramatic and Musical Criticisms, Reports of Popular Lectures, and such general information as will make it a welcome guest in every family. The proprietors are determined that their journal shall be second to none in the variety, interest and value of its contents; in its literary excellence and high moral tone. Politics and Sectarianism will be most rigidly excluded.

Particular attention paid to "answers to correspondents," a talented gentleman having been especially engaged for that purpose.

Arrangements have already been made with a distinguished corps of American contributors, and negotiations are still in progress which will ultimately secure the best talent in the country. It is intended that the literary matter in this journal shall be chiefly original; the appropriation from foreign sources, without acknowledgement, in the newspapers of the day, is already too frequent.—Should any article be selected on account of its superior excellence, credit will be invariably given where it is due.
