FARMER'S COLUMN.

Phosphate of Lime vs. Ashes.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—I have heretofore been slow to adopt the new notions in agricultural improvements, especially in the use of the so-called fertilizers. But within the last two years I have learnt of some results from the application of superphosphate of lime, and this season I have for the first time used that fertilizer. I obtained some of Coe's superphosphate of lime, and on the 23d of May I planted my potatoes, and about the same time planted my garden vegetables. I had spread and plowed in a small quantity of stable manure.—According to my usual custom I planted in drills—tubers about 20 inches apart in the row, and cut so as to be not more than three or four sprouts in a hill. I planted two rows side by side. In one I put unleached ashes, as many as I could well hold in my hand at once, in each hill. In the other I put two-thirds of a gill of superphosphate of lime in each hill. Very early in the season there was a marked difference where the phosphate was put; the vines grew more rapidly, and when they had attained their growth, they were one-third to one half larger than those where the ashes were put. I have now dug the potatoes, and will here state the result:

I dug ten hills where the ashes were put, which contained 36 of good size—weight 8¼ pounds; small size, weight three-quarters of a pound=9 pounds. Ten hills where the phosphate was put, 55 of good size—weight 15¾ pounds; small size, weight 1¾ pounds=17 pounds.

I thought the difference was so great that this statement might not be believed, and my neighbor Mr. Wm. Reed, accepted my invitation to be present at another trial.—Mr. R. made the figures.

I dug ten hills where the ashes were put, 34 of good size—weight, 6 pounds 5 ounces; small size, weight 11 ounces=7 pounds. Ten hills where phosphate was put, 48 of good size—weight 15 pounds 3 ounces; small size, weight 1 pound 9 ounces=16 pounds 12 ounces.

Mr. Reed thought there must be a difference in the condition of the land, that made a part of the difference in quantity. I then dug five hills of each kind in another place.

Five hills where ashes were put, 16 of good size—weight 3 pounds; small size, weight 2 ounces=3 lbs. 2 ounces. Five hills where the phosphate was put, 28 of good size—weight 6 pounds 11 ounces; small size, weight 7 ounces=7 pounds 2 ounces.

In the growth of my other vegetables, I think I have seen much benefit by the use of the phosphate of lime. A knowledge of these facts may be of some advantage to farmers and gardeners. JOHN R. HOWARD.

Culture of Indian Corn.

James Clizbee gives an account, in the Michigan Farmer, of a corn crop grown by him, one acre of which produced ninety-seven bushels of shelled corn, weighing 60 lbs. to the bushel, and says:

My theory of raising corn of the early variety is this. Have the land rich—dry, warm soil for corn—plow deep and pulverize thoroughly; plant four feet one way two the other,—wide way north and south—with from five to seven stalks in the hill; hoe and cultivate often enough to exterminate all weeds. This theory faithfully executed, with the blessings of a kind Providence, will ensure a good crop and good returns for our labor.

I believe we can grow four tons of corn, green cut, where one and a half tons of grass and weeds will grow, and surely to greater profit to the producer. Besides, it leaves the land in much better condition for the coming crop.

I am more than ever convinced that we farmers do not work our land sufficiently deep, and thorough tillage is indispensable to good crops.

INFALILBLE RULES FOR MEASURING CORN IN THE CRIB.

If measured in feet:

1st. SHUCKED CORN.—Measure the length, width and depth of the crib in feet, multiply these three dimensions together, and their product by 8, then cut off two figures to the right; those on the left will be so many hundredths of a barrel.

2nd. UNSHUCKED CORN.—Multiply the dimensions in feet as in rule 1st, and their product by 5½; cut off two figures to the right, and the result will be barrels and hundredths as in rule 1st.

If measured in inches:

3rd. SHUCKED CORN.—Take the dimensions in inches and multiply them together; take one half of the product and divide it by 2,150, and you have the bushels of shelled corn, which is divided by five to reduce to barrels.

4th. UNSHUCKED CORN.—Multiply the dimensions as in rule 3rd, and then take one third of their product and divide it by 2,150; the result will be as in rule 3.

An Irishman was going along the road, when an angry bull rushed down upon him and with his horns, tossed him over a tence. The Irishman recovering from his fall, upon looking up saw the bull pawing and tearing up the ground, (as is the custom of the animal when irritated) whereupon Pat. spilling at him said, 'If it was not for your bowing and scraping, and your humble apologies you brute, faix I should think that you had thrown me over this fence on purpose!'

CAMPBELL'S PURE ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER—Ginger is a grateful stimulant and carminitive, and is often given in Gout, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Cramp, Cholera Morbus, Cholic, Cholera, &c., &c.

In Nervous and Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Nausea, Imperfect Digestion, or from Nausea induced by riding in a carriage, &c., it will be found most agreeable to the stomach and palatable to the taste, and affording at the same time almost in all cases immediate relief.

To the Inebriate it is particularly serviceable; a very small quantity used instead of the usual stimulant, will give tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and impart strength to resist the temptation, and may therefore be constdered a valuable agent in reclaiming the drunkard.

The traveling public will also find it very efficacious in correcting the bad results arising from a change of water and diet, a few drops of which will give a glow and vigor to the stomach, equal to a wine glass of brandy or other stimulant, without producing any of the injurious and overrating effects which are sure to result from the use of stimuli of any kind. It is also a superior article for Flavoring Jellies, Preserves, Cakes, and for other Culinary uses, besides making a good beverage in hot weather.

DOSE.—An adult may take one spoonful; a child from 8 to 14 years old, half that quanity; and for a child 2 to 5 years old, 10 to 20 drops To be given in syrup or in sugar and water. Prepared and for sale by LEVIN H. CAMPBELL,
