FARMER'S COLUMN.

From the Working Farmer.

Parsnips.

This root is fast gaining favor as an esculent. The days of potatoes and beef alone are fast passing away, and farmers are learning that, in addition to producing a variety of food for their animals, it is equally proper to do so for themselves.

Parsnips are materially improved by frequent freezing and thawing, and therefore no more of the crop should be taken up in the fall, than is required for fall and winter sales or use; for those left in the ground during winter are materially improved in quality for spring use, beside increasing their quality, as they continue to grow until arrested by "very winter." The digging of parsnips can be best performed by the lifting sub-soil plow, run so deeply as not to cut off the tap-roots, but merely to raise the whole mass of soil, and thus loosen them so that they may be pulled out by their crowns. In addition to facilitating the gathering of the parsnips, this practice disintergrates the soil so as to render its spring preparation for other crops much more readily performed.

Parsnips, after having been frozen, from an excellent food for hogs, and in moderate quantities, alternating with carrots or beets, for cows, fatting cattle, etc. In the island of Guernsey milch cows are nearly sustained during winter on the parsnip.—Upon this island they grow in great perfection, and give an immense yield. We have raised, what a Committee of the American Institute estimated as fifteen hundred bushels or parsnips, on a single acre. Therefore, as an alternating crop, parsnips may be grown with profit. Their culture cleanses the ground of weeds, and leaves it in high tilth for other crops, while the parsnip does not remove an undue quantity of pabulum from the soil.

Storing of Turnips.

A correspondent of the Irish Farmers' Gazette writes as follows: "Having had occasion to raise a quanity of swedes early in November, for the purpose of sowing wheat, I formed a small pit, tapering to the top, and thatched it securely with a quanity of barley straw, enough to exclude all effects of rain, wind, or frost. The remainder, about 50 tons, I formed in one large pit, about six feet wide at base, four feet high, and three feet wide at top: this remained exposed for a few days, when it received a light coat of turnip leaves, which soon became decomposed, leaving the roots in many places quite exposed. Now for the result. In the pit, which was securely thatched, at least one-half of the roots have decayed, and in that which was exposed to wind and rain, they are quite sound. In the latter case I acted under the directions of a large farmer in this neighborhood, who raises all his turnips in November, and never covers them save with a few of their own leaves, putting them invariably in an exposed position. My reason for touching on this subject is, that in all agricultural works we are advised to choose a dry and sheltered locality for turnips, taking care to have them securely thatched.

CLEAN MILKING.

It is sometimes forgotton that the last gill of milk draws from the cow's udder, is the best part of every milking. Careful experiments made in England (show according to a report lately published) that the "quantity of cream obtained from the last drawn cup from most cows, exceeds that of the first in the proportion of twelve to one." The difference in the quality also is considerable. Hence, a person who carelessly leaves but half a pint of milk undrawn loses in reality as much cream as would be afforded by six or eight pints at the beginning; and loses, too, that part of the cream which gives the richness and high flavor to his butter.—N. E. Farmer.

CAMPBELL'S PURE ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER—Ginger is a grateful stimulant and carminitive, and is often given in Gout, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Cramp, Cholera Morbus, Cholic, Chodera, &c., &c.

In Nervous and Sick Headache, Sea Sickness, Nausea, Imperfect Digestion, or from Nausea induced by riding in a carriage, &c., it will be found most agreeable to the stomach and palatable to the taste, and affording at the same time almost in all cases immediate relief.

To the Inebriate it is particularly serviceable: a very small quantity used instead of the usual stimulant, will give tone and vigor to the digestive organs, and impart strength to resist the temptation, and may therefore be considered a valuable agent in reclaiming the drunkard.

The traveling public will also find it very efficacious in correcting the bad results arising from a change of water and diet, a few drops of which will give a glow and vigor to the stomach, equal to a wine glass of brandy or other stimulant, without producing any of the injurious and overrating effects which are sure to result from the use of stimuli of any kind. It is also a superior article for Flavoring Jellies, Preserves, Cakes, and for other Culinary uses, besides making a good beverage in hot weather.

Dose.—An adult may take one spoonful; a child from 8 to 11 years old, half that quantity; and for a child 2 to 5 years old, 10 to 20 drops. To be given in syrup or in sugar and water. Prepared and for sale by LEVIN H. CAMPBELL,
