SATURDAY MORNING, . . JANUARY 14, 1860.

ty of further provision for the education of the deaf and the dumb. Maryland is sadly behind other States in this respect; and a pressing demand is for a law requiring a levy upon the counties and city for the support of this class of unfortunates.

The house of refuge, for juvenile delinquents, has received aid from the State, for which it has rendered the best possible return, in diverting from the paths of crime to usefulness and industry many who would hereafter add to the expense of her penitentiary. So prudent an expenditure and such true economy is that which pays for the prevention of crime, that no appropriation ever made by the General Assembly has been put to better use.

Liberality to such things is the surest economy in the end; and I respectfully recommend all these institutions and their claims for such aid as the sound condition of the State finances permit, and the exigencies of the public service require.

I also submit for your information the report made to me by John H. Alexander, Esq., who was commissioned to procure certain documents relating to the history of the State, in pursuance of the act of the last Assembly, passed on the recommendation of my predecessor in office. From it you will learn the condition of this matter, and from the report of the Rev. Mr. Allen, whose thorough acquaintance with the State records and archieves made him the fittest person to express an opinion, you will see the state of these, and the necessity and propriety of some step for their furture preservation and the publication of the more important documents. Their recommendations deserve your consideration and invite your speedy action.

The last General Assembly provided for the building a fire-proof place of deposit and record office, where important documents and papers belonging to the State could be preserved, without risk from fire, which, at that session, had threatened to destroy the State-house. They also made provision for the repair and improvement of the State house, and for heating it without the risk of fires within the building. You will not fail to perceive that these most desirable improvements have been made, as far as the appropriation permitted, in the most satisfactory manner. The hall of Delegates has been greatly enlarged; the wing in which the library is kept rebuilt; the Court of Appeals provided with suitable accommodation, and the whole building made more comfortable and convenient. The northern portion of the main building, containing the Senate and executive chambers, needs extensive repair, for which it is necessary that you should make provision.

I venture to suggest that an indispensable condition in such appropriation should be that the Senate chamber, with which are connected so many associations and revolutionary memories, and which is justly admired for the beauty of its proportions and decorations, should in none of these respects, and in no way whatever, be changed or altered; that there should be only a renewal of what is useless or decayed in an exact repetition of the part taken away, so that the room may remain as it was when the Congress of the confederation sat there, and on the day when they received again the commission under which Washington secured the indepence of the republic.

The care of the State house and the public grounds is now, by a variety of laws, resolutions and orders, left to different hands not responsible to any officer having the whole control, care and responsibility. I recommend the passage of a law, such as prevails in every State having a just pride in the preservation of her public buildings, repealing existing regulations, and providing for the appointment of the necessary watchmen, keepers of the house and grounds, by some competent authority, to which they should be directly responsible for the efficient discharge of their duty, and the proper care and good order of the puplic property; and making a regular appropriation, as now therefore to be expended under the direction of the appointing power.

The vouchers for the expenditures made out of the regular contingent fund, at the disposal of the Executive, are ready, with the accounts, to be laid before the committee to be appointed for their examination; as well as those showing the use of the sum appropriated, as usual, in 1858, for the refurnishing and repair of the Government house. It will be seen that this was almost entirely absorbed in the repairs which, from lapse of time and decay, had become indispensable for the preservation of the outside walls and the building itself. I preferred to submit to the inconveniences of insufficient furniture, in order that the property itself might have more thorough repair before many of them should be too late.

The various reports and returns which have been made to me, and which are necessary for your more complete understanding of the condition, in detail, of various branches of State service, are herewith submitted, as well as certain resolutions passed by other States, requesting that copies should be laid before this General Assembly.

I have thus, gentlemen, laid before you the information I have of the condition of the State and the public wants. Many of these are pressing, and will require appropriations now, will save larger sums hereafter. The necessity for these expenditures, which have to be met, renders economy indispensable, and strengthens the suggestion I have laid before you, that it would be unwise, prematurely, to lessen the State tax while such necessities exist. That is not relief which takes off a burden for a moment only to impose a heavier one hereafter. When the good of the State demands it a light one is cheerfully borne; especially when it is remembered that so it must be to enable us to keep our faith, respond to the demands of the public service and the claims of public charity and duty. It is required, also, to enable the State to comply with her duties of protection to her own citizens, and to place her equal with her sister States in progress and condition in that great Union for which she sacrificed so much; which recognizes and is bound to protect the rights of all and each, and which will continue, under the blessing of Providence, to work out its glorious destiny, despite the idle threats and vain fears of those whose only safety is within its ample protection.

THOS. HOLLIDAY HICKS.

Government House, Jan. 4th, 1860.

EXTENSIVE ROBBERIES AND THE DETECTION OF THE THIEF.—For several months past numerous depredations have been made in the way of stealing in the upper part of Cecil county, and the lower part of Chester county, Pa., many mechanics were robbed of their tools, and such articles as harness, grain, flour, bags, pots, pitchforks, and almost every sort of utensils were mysteriously taken and no trace left of the thief. Last week, however, a Mr. Kirk Cooper of the lower part of Chester county, was discovered stealing corn from a field. His premises were searched, and the long array of stolen goods, were found in his house packed up in bales. He was about removing with his spoils to Back Valley, Pa., but was luckily overhauled. He has made his escape.—Cecil Whig.

TOM MOORE, writing to Miss Godfrey, says: "I will send you an epitaph that will make you laugh, if you never heard it before:

Here lies John Shaw
Attorney-at-law.
And when he died,
The devil cried,
"Give us your paw
John Shaw,
Attorney-at-law."

A BOY'S HEAD BLOWN OFF.—A little boy, residing in Union county, Ky., had his head blown off one day last week. He boared a hole in a log and pot powder in it, ramming the powder down with a stick.—He then laid a coal of fire on the hole, and before he could get away it exploded, the stick striking him on the head, knocking the upper portion off, and killing him instantly.

GREAT FIRE IN NEW YORK.—There was a very large fire in New York on Thursday 26th ult. Some ten or twelve warehouses, including that of Cyrus W. Fields, and a number of dwellings. The loss is estimated to be $800,000, the most of which is covered by insurance. Several firemen were injured.

TWO IRISHMEN were in prison—one for stealing a cow, and the other for stealing a watch.

'Mike,' said the cow stealer, one day, what o'clock is it?'

'Och, Pat, I haven't my watch handy,' but I think it's about milkin' time."
